WILL NOT PARLEY

COAL OPERATORS WILL NOT AGAIN SEE SENATORS.

THE DECISION IS POSITIVE

CHAIRMAN THOMAS, OF ERIE ROAD, SO DECLARES.

NEGOTIATIONS AT AN END

SECRETARY ROOT THOUGHT TO BE WITH MORGAN.

New York, Oct. 11.—It was stated today at the office of E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie railroad, that the reports to the effect that there was likely to be on Tuesday of next week further conference with Senators Quay, Platt and Penrose, were incorrect. The statement issued by Mr. Thomas at the conclusion of the conference on Friday morning definitely covered the situation.

It was explained that in the early conferences with the civic federation certain propositions had been submitted by Mr. Thomas. Those propositions are understood to be the basis of all the negotiations on the part of the operators ever since and to which the operators adhere.

THE PROPOSITIONS.

The propositions are:

First. The anthracite companies do not undertake in the slightest manner to discriminate against members of the United Mine Workers of America; but they do insist that members of that organization shall not discriminate against nor decline to work with non-members of such association.

Second. That there shall be no deterioration in the quantity or quality of the work and that there shall be no effort to restrict the individual exertions of men who, working by the ton or car, may for reasons satisfactory to themselves and their employers, produce such a quantity of work as they may desire.

Third. By reason of the different conditions, varying not only with the districts, but with the mines themselves, thus rendering absolutely impossible anything approaching uniform conditions, each mine must arrange, either individually or through its committees, with the superintendents or managers, any question affecting wages or grievances.

ONE KIND OF STATEMENT.

On the other hand the Associated Press has received the following from an authoritative source on the other side of the dispute:

"The two days' conference between the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads and Governor Odell and Senators Platt, Quay and Penrose was not the failure that it was reported to be. The operators practically agreed to a certain advance in wages and to certain propositions that would result in the resumption of coal mining. The authority here mentioned is of the opinion that the conference was not adjourned because an agreement apparently could not be reached, but because the operators were not willing to have it appear that they were yielding under pressure. The conference, according to the present plan, will be resumed on Tuesday, but a final agreement may not be reached that day. At this time it looks as though a settlement will be effected before the series of meetings is ended, although something may be said or done while the present efforts are being made that would wipe out the work already accomplished."

THOMAS' ABSOLUTE DENIAL.

When the above was shown to Mr. Thomas, he said:

"This statement is unqualifiedly wrong. No conclusions were or could be reached through that channel. The incident may be considered as absolutely closed, the operators positively declining to accept the suggestions made. Nothing will be done on Tuesday."

The presence here of Secretary Root, who came over last night from Washington, gave rise to reports that he would at least confer with the representatives of the coal interests on behalf of the president. Mr. Root, however, said that he had merely come to New York to register. But later in the day when Secretary Root failed to appear at any of the places which it is his custom to visit when here, it was reported that he was in conference with J. P. Morgan. As Mr. Morgan did not appear at his down town offices today, it was taken to indicate that he and the secretary of war had gotten together at some secret place of meeting. One report had it that Mr. Root had gone off to Mr. Morgan's yacht, Corsair, which secretary of war disappeared and no trace of him could be obtained.

ODELL MAY HAVE PLAN.

Close friends who saw Governor Odell before his departure for Newburg today were inclined to believe that he has formulated a plan of action in the event that the strike is not settled at an early day. This plan, however, is not believed to have any direct bearing on the settlement of the dispute between the operators and miners, but looks to a project by which coal may be supplied to the suffering poor of this state.

ATTACKED THE MILITIA.

Mt. Carmel, Pa., Oct. 11.—Early this morning persons on a hill close to the Sixteenth regiment encampment, began hurling rocks and discharging revolvers at the officers' quarters. After a half dozen bullets fell into camp, Lieut. Col. Richards and forty line and staff officers, who had been apprised that an attack was to be made on the camp, left their quarters and ran in the direction the firing came from. The officers shot several times ahead of them, but at daybreak no signs of the soldiers' assailants were found.

MAY AID STRIKING MINERS

MAYOR WILL RECEIVE FORT WAYNE CONTRIBUTIONS.

Issues Address at Request of the Detroit Conference Setting Forth Conditions.

Mayor Berghoff and the Fort Wayne members of the committee who participated in the recent "get-coal" conference at Detroit, returned home yesterday, and as a result of the visit Mayor Berghoff this morning issued an address to the people of Fort Wayne setting forth his willingness to receive and forward contributions to aid the miners. Employes in many of the factories of the city, together with private individuals, have from time to time forwarded contributions to the cause of the striking toilers, but until this time there has been no public call issued inviting aid.

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

"Mayor's Office, City Hall, Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 11, 1902.—To the people of Fort Wayne:

"At a meeting held at Detroit on the 10th of this month for the purpose of devising some means to bring about a settlement of the coal strike and to relieve the terrible conditions confronting the public in general, and the miners among others, a resolution was passed asking the mayors of different cities to call for voluntary money contributions to assist the miners in the anthracite coal regions. The idea of the meeting being that this would not only prevent extreme poverty among the miners, but would also give a most effective expression of public opinion, therefore I call upon the citizens of Fort Wayne to make such money contributions as they see fit, direct them to me, and I shall forward them to the proper authorities. H. C. Berghoff, Mayor."

WAS ONCE A MINER HIMSELF

REV. T. J. JOHNSON WILL MEET FORT WAYNE MINISTERS.

Former Pastor of Simpson M. E. Church Anxious to Assist Struggling Toilers.

Rev. T. J. Johnson, formerly pastor of Simpson M. E. church in this city, will arrive in Fort Wayne Monday on a mission connected with the struggling toilers in the anthracite regions of the east, and he desires to meet all the Fort Wayne ministers at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. Johnson is an eastern man, and previous to entering the ministry he was a coal miner. He knows by experience something of the hardships and the struggles of these toilers in the depths of the earth, and his sympathies are active in their behalf.

It is Rev. Johnson's purpose in visiting Fort Wayne to arouse, if possible, a more pronounced interest in their behalf, to secure an expression of sympathy and possibly to open the way for more substantial

FAIR AT A FINISH

CLOSING DAY SEES GOOD CROWD PRESENT.

INDICATIONS POINT TO 5,000 ADMISSIONS TODAY.

FAIR MANAGERS GRATIFIED

ALREADY TALK OF PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR.

This is the closing day of the big Fort Wayne fair, and so well has the public sustained interest in the great show that another good-sized crowd is in attendance today. During the morning hours there was a continuous though not very heavy movement toward the grounds, and by noon the cars were again loaded heavily. At 1:30 this afternoon the crowd was still arriving at the grounds and it was believed that the attendance for the day would reach 5,000.

The exposition has been a splendid success from every point of view and the attendance has been extremely gratifying to the fair management, demonstrating as it does that people have not deserted the old-fashioned county fair. While there has been no fabulous amount of money made, there will be a very creditable balance upon the right side of the ledger.

Already officials are informally discussing plans for next year, when it is proposed to far eclipse the present show. It is the present intention to expend a considerable sum of money in additional new buildings and the grounds will be put in the best possible condition.

The racing this afternoon is of course the center of the closing day's attractions, and upon the grounds are many of the school children who were unable to attend earlier in the week without missing sessions of school. Shober's First Regiment band is furnishing the music today and all the attractions are yet in full blast. The greater part of the exhibits will not be removed until Monday.

SOME PRIZE PUMPKINS.

None of the departments made a finer showing than that of the fruit and farm products, and it was pronounced far superior to that shown this year at any of the surrounding fairs. There was a lively contest in the pumpkin department, and some mammoth specimens were exhibited. For field pumpkins the growths were marvelous, and it created some degree of envy among the squashes. Of the latter, one specimen weighed 117 pounds. But talking about pumpkins, the one brought in by Thomas Kaough, a genuine field pumpkin weighing 84 pounds, took first money. William Bierbaum came second, Charles Lahmann third, William Hartman fourth, Charles Lahman fifth, George Harmon sixth, August C. Brudi seventh and J. E. Ballou eighth. George Vachon won two prizes—one for having the smallest specimen and another for having the ugliest.

ANOTHER GOOD DAY.

All days are evidently good days at the Fort Wayne fair, and despite the tremendous crush on Thursday, there were 11,000 people attracted to the grounds Friday, and the day was in all respects an ideal one. The public was impartial with its attentions, and every department proved attractive to the visitors.

The racing card was one of the strongest of the week, and it furnished some interesting sport for the big crowd that completely filled the grand stand. In the first heat of the free-for-all trot, Hesperus, Gold Standard and Maggie Anderson made a hot finish with less than half a length between them, Hesperus taking the heat in 2:18¼. In the second Maggie Anderson looked like a winner after the back stretch was reached, though Hesperus bid strongly but could not land, breaking badly. Gold Standard was second. In the third Maggie Anderson, with a bad start, lost the rail at the first turn, but gorged well to the front half way down to the stretch. Her driver claimed a foul, but the judges declined to allow it. Hesperus beat her to the wire in 2:13½, and later won the final heat in 2:11½, with Gold Standard second.

Hal Clipper and Mosie Moore made a fast finish in the first heat of the 2:11 pace, Clipper winning in 2:10¼, with Mosie Moore close at his side. Billy Mack was third and Taylor H fourth. In the second Hal Clipper forged to the lead quickly and held it from the first; time, 2:14¼. Taylor H and Billy Mack had a pretty contest for second place, the former a good chance for first place in the third heat Mosie Moore broke badly and Hal Clipper again won handily.

SCHOOL BOARD IN TROUBLE

SOUTH OMAHA TRUSTEES ARE CHARGED WITH BOODLING.

Said to Have Received Bribes From Teachers and Were in Typewriter Deal.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11.—Three members of the board of education of South Omaha, A. V. Miller, president, and Members J. L. Kubat and Theodore Schroeder, were arrested today charged with receiving bribes. The specific charges are receiving money from school teachers in consideration of the latter securing increases in salary and bribery in connection with furnishing typewriters for the board.

The charges are supported by twelve affidavits placed in the hands of the county attorney and on which the warrants were issued. The investigation on which the complaints were issued has been in progress for some time and it is said other arrests will follow.

GAS MAGNATES IN THE CITY

MR. DIETERICH AND MR. PROAL HERE THIS AFTERNOON.

Came Directly from New York—Visit Said to Have No Particular Significance.

President C. F. Dieterich and Secretary A. B. Proal, of the Fort Wayne Gas company, arrived in the city late this afternoon. They came directly from New York to Fort Wayne and were driven at once to the local offices of the company.

It is said that the visit of the officials at this time has no especial significance, and that they are merely making an inspection of the outlook for supplying gas during the coming winter.

Mr. Dieterich and Mr. Proal will leave this evening for Lafayette.

WORK PROGRESSES NICELY.

Work upon the new public library building is progressing nicely and Architect Grindle said this morning that it was expected the entire building would be under roof within six weeks. All the stone work upon the circular stack room at the rear is completed and that portion of the building is now receiving the roof. Workmen are also placing the main cornice at the front of the building.

FIVE NEW HICKS PATENTS.

Attorney Walter G. Burns today received five new Canadian patents which have just been granted to Dr. Thomas H. Hicks, of this city, for apparatus in connection with his extracting processes. The five letters today cover a mercury and amalgam separator, a spiral concentrator, a gold-extracting process, a mercury separator and a pulverizing machine. Other applications are to be filed at once by Dr. Hicks.

TWENTY-NINE APPLICANTS.

C. B. Woodworth returned last evening from Indianapolis, where he attended the regular meeting of the state board of pharmacy. There were twenty-nine applicants for license as pharmacists. The next meeting of the board is to be held at Indian-

MADE A FINE HAUL

ROBBERS SECURE $50,000 ON THE BURLINGTON.

TRAIN HELD UP IN NEBRASKA

EXPRESS CAR LOOTED AND BANDITS ESCAPE.

JOB DONE WITH DISPATCH

ROBBERS WERE EVIDENTLY HIGH CLASS EXPERTS.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11.—Three masked men held up the Pacific coast express train of the Burlington road four miles from Lincoln shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. They used explosives on the express car, shattering it badly, and after wrecking the safe, rifled it of its contents, securing booty of an estimated value of 50,000.

The loss in the train robbery given out by officials of the Burlington is placed at $50,000. They have offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the gang.

The train was a few minutes late and was in charge of Conductor C. A. Lyman and Engineer A. L. Clayburg. On the crest of a hill midway between the city and the town of Woodlawn the engineer saw a red light waved across the track and brought the train to a standstill. Two men sprang quickly into the cab, covering Clayburg and his fireman with revolvers. They lost no time in giving their orders and were just as promptly obeyed. The express car was cut from the balance of the train and sent ahead a short distance. The robbers found the door locked, and after commanding Messenger William Lupton to open it and getting no response, fired two or three shots into the car. The door was then opened. A heavy charge of dynamite tore the safe to pieces. Fourteen packages, said to contain a hundred dollars each, were taken, together with other valuables. The two men who were in the car politely bade the trainmen good morning, jumped from the car and disappeared in the darkness. The passengers were not molested, nor were the trainmen asked for their personal property.

BRAKEMAN GIVES ALARM.

While the robbery in the express car was going on a third robber walked alongside the track by the passenger coaches, firing his revolver occasionally to keep inquisitive passengers quiet. Brakeman Moore, who alighted from the rear coach to go ahead, found a revolver pushed in his face, with a warning to go back where he belonged. He ran the four miles to the Lincoln yards and was the first to give the alarm. The robbers were cool, talkative and apparently experts. The whole job occupied little time. The train was run back to Lincoln. The wrecked express car was taken out and at 4 o'clock it resumed its journey, the original crew going out with it. Following it was an engine carrying Chief of Police Hoagland, Detective Malone and his two bloodhounds and three police officers. At the scene the scent and the pursuit of the robbers was begun.

Every town and village marshal and every county sheriff in southeastern Nebraska has been notified of the robbery and told to be on the watch. The Adams Express company says its loss is not large.

ARREST OF FRANK SOMERS.

Frank Somers, a young man well known about town, and heretofore frequently in trouble, was arrested late yesterday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. He had just returned to the city after an absence of several weeks and going to his home made trouble and began to destroy the furniture. He was arrested on a warrant from Justice Tancey's court and his case came up this morning, but hearing was postponed until 4 o'clock this afternoon. When Sheriff's Deputies Huguenard and Daseler served the warrant at the Rich hotel bar, where the young man was found, he asked to step away a moment to get his overcoat, and he then made a break and got away. A short chase brought him to and he was locked up for the night.

WILL OBSERVE RALLY DAY.

Wayne street M. E. Sunday school will appropriately observe rally day tomorrow, the program beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Miss Lillian Schrader will be heard in a violin solo, and Frank E. Stouder will render a vocal selection. Rev. A. S. Preston and A. S. Coverdale will deliver brief addresses, and there will be a program of songs and recitations by the children.

MORE OFFICE ROOM.

The Indiana Road Machine company has just let to J. O. Brown a contract for adding another story to its office building. The improvement is made to secure more office room for the company, and work will begin very soon.

LOCAL LINES.

Dr. W. D. Ruhl was called to Hoagland on professional business last night.

Sion S. Bass post, G. A. R., will attend the funeral of the late Captain Dickinson.

Mrs. W. J. Vesey will go east on Monday for a visit with friends at Pittsburg.

A. E. Harris, of the Merit Manufacturing company, left today on a business visit to Pittsburg.

Corwin Price, interne at Hope hospital, who was operated on Thursday night for appendicitis at Hope hospital, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon LaRue, of Indianapolis, will be the guests tomorrow of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Smith, of East Wayne street.

Rev. C. F. W. Meyer, of the English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, has completely recovered from a severe attack of bronchitis and will occupy his pulpit as usual tomorrow.

The Nurses' Alumni association of Hope hospital gave a delightful reception at the institution last evening in honor of the class to be graduated Monday evening. About forty-five guests were present, and there was a social program that was highly of Raphael if traced ments was but a collec- ted paints such as any to daub the crude pic- ture, and the brushes used were such as the most mediocre artist used. The statue of an Angelo stepped out of a common block of marble such as anyone might cut out of the mountain. Just the ordinary paints and brushes, just the crude unshapen mass of marble. Very different indeed in appearance from the finished product which artistic conception and the skill of genius were able to call into being. So with the finished product of God's workshop. It is very different from the crude materials which are first received. And what of this raw material?

Scripture is clear and positive in its description and identification of the raw material with which God has to deal. From the Old Testament flash such declarations of God as: "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." "There is none that doeth good. They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one." And the New Testament lays bare the awful condition of the human heart and life, its desperate need, when it declares: "Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, trucebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." This long and full enumeration by Paul is but the different manifestations of the condition of the human heart and life, which is one of deadness, until it is called into life in God's workshop; for we are all "dead in trespasses and sins."

Let Ezekiel, the prophet, supply us with a metaphor which he applied to the house of Israel, likening them to a valley full of dead and dry and bleaching bones. The blackness and silence of death there. Heaps on heaps of hideous, grinning skeletons, but no life, no activity, no usefulness there. Such is the condition of the world. A great valley full of the deadness and blackness of sin. The world does not see it, for it loves darkness rather than the light because its deeds are evil. But the Holy Spirit, the Active Agent of God's workshop, is out in the world trying to convince it of its dead condition. If you will let Him present His overwhelming arguments to your soul He will convict you of your condition and your need.

The very best salesman in the world with an article of the most pronounced merits would not be able to sell it unless he could secure an audience with the prospective buyer. The need of the latter might be most pressing, and the argument of the salesman unanswerable, yet it all would be of no avail if he should refuse to listen. The Holy Spirit is pressing upon the human heart on every hand for an opportunity to present His claims and secure raw material for God's workshop. Let Him clarify your vision and you will be able to see the dry bones all about. And can these bones live? Is it possible that out of such hideous and revolting material can be made a saint to shine eternal in the heavens? Is it possible for that black and jagged rock before the smelter door to yield the pure, untarnished gold? Is it possible for the blocks of steel and brass in the factory to yield the perfect little timepiece, ticking off the vanishing minutes? Is it possible that that blackish tar, that foul-smelling refuse of the gas plant, can yield under the proper processes the pure white paraffine? Is it possible that Mother Nature can take the cold, black earth with its offensive fertilizer and pour into your lap the golden grain and the ripened fruit? Ah, how wonderful! But how infinitely more wonderful is it that God can take into His workshop the raw material of man's failure and recreate him in Christ Jesus.

The Power of Choice.—But suppose the gold quartz should refuse to yield to the refining process, the steel and brass should not submit to lathe and drill, the black offensive tar should persist in flowing to waste instead of into the retort where its different elements could be chemically separated, or Mother Nature should disdainfully turn from the rich, black loam to the glistening white hard sand of the sea shore? No bright and shining gold, no busy ticking watch, no white paraffine, no grain and fruit. Useless would be the plants established to carry on these processes. So is it with man. Unless he lets the Holy Spirit have him to take into God's workshop, there to carry on the wonderful transforming work, the infinite love and power of God cannot be manifested in him. Man can say to the quartz, the steel and the brass, and the coal tar, you must. But God does not go to the human heart with any such imperative summons. He has given to man the power of choice. He must decide himself whether to enter God's workshop and submit to the molding of the Divine hand and will.

The Process.—The world has been asking with Nicodemus, ever since that midnight conversation in the presence of Jesus, how a soul could be born again, how God could create it anew. And the Lord comes with the same answer as of old: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." And would we dare to attempt to lay bare the hidden mysteries of God? We may not enter into the workshop of God and spy out with curious eye the wonder-working operations there. We may not study the life-giving process, as an astronomer searches out new facts in regard to the tiny star, or the scientist through his microscope learns more and more of the infinitesimal microbe, but, oh! we may submit to the hand of God and experience the thrilling joy of the new life.

"I know not how this saving faith
To me He did impart,
Nor how believing in His word
Wrought peace within my heart.

"I know not how the Spirit moves,
Convincing men of sin,
Revealing Jesus through the Word,
Creating faith in Him.

"But 'I know whom I have believed,
And am persuaded that He is able
To keep that which I have committed
Unto Him against that day.'"

The Pattern.—As in every workshop where raw material is taken and manufactured into articles useful and ornamental, there is the pattern, the working model which is followed, so it is in the workshop of God. The perfect man, Christ Jesus, is the model after which all the constructive work of the shop is carried on. The first Adam disobeyed God and became subject to death as a consequence of sin. All molded after his pattern in the world since then have borne the same disfiguring marks of sin and death. You cannot expect the machine which is constructed after the imperfect model will be free from defects. It was necessary, therefore, if man was to be reconstructed, recreated, a new and perfect model must be secured. For centuries God was busy preparing for this tremendously important event in the world. In the fullness of time He chose His dearest treasure, His only begotten Son, to go to the earth and by His life among men, and as a man, supply the perfect pattern after which the new and Heavenly race was to be constructed. He perfectly kept the law of God and did His Father's will. He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. Wherein Adam the First failed, He won glorious victory over Satan, and forever put the arch deceiver of mankind to flight. As the perfect pattern He stood upon the mountain of transfiguration and the glory of God transformed Him and He was revealed to the eyes of sinful man as the perfect man. He was ready to go back to God, as far as He Himself was concerned.

But from beholding the face of His Father in Heaven He turned His gaze back to earth and saw the sons of Adam the First dead in trespasses and sins. He had demonstrated His own purity and holiness. Now came the working out of a plan by which death as punishment for sin could be overcome and man could be recreated after the perfect pattern. And this was the subject of conversation between Christ Jesus, the perfect man, and Moses and Elijah. He talked with them concerning His decease, or exodus, which He should accomplish at Jerusalem. He was to become more than the pattern. He was to become the vitalizing force by which the dead soul was to be called into life again.

He was perfectly ready to step back into His place in Heaven, but He so loved the world that He came down into its midst again and became "sin for us, Who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." He became our substitute for sin, for "the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." Thus in Christ man escapes the consequences of sin, while at the same time God's judgment against sin is perfectly satisfied. He triumphed over death in His resurrection, and thus became not only the perfect pattern to be used in God's workshop, but the vitalizing force as well.

The new-born babe does not suddenly spring into manhood, but develops step by step from babyhood to maturity. So in God's workshop, the new-born soul is not suddenly crowded to the "measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," the perfect model, but grows step by step into His likeness. And herein is where the workshop of God is kept constantly busy. The Holy Spirit, the Active Agent, "maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered," for with His eyes on the perfect model He sees what is needful to shape us into that likeness. And God begins to cut off here and smooth down there, to mold and polish the soul into the perfect likeness of the pattern. And the process goes on gloriously if we will be submissive, for "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth," until some day we come into His presence and are made in all fullness like Him.

Good Works.—Man in his workshop builds machines to perform certain work. They are expected to do that work or be cast aside as worthless. No less is this true in God's workshop. "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus, unto good works." God cannot be satisfied with the soul which is content to rest in the thought that it is safe in Christ Jesus. He wants to see that new-born creature in Christ Jesus performing the functions for which he was created. "Created unto good works." Impossible to do good works apart from Christ, but in Christ such activity becomes possible. It is evidence that the soul has been born again, and it is absolutely essential to its life and growth. God found Peter an ignorant fisherman by the lake of Galilee and made him into an apostle and preacher, not for himself alone, but that he might preach on the day of Pentecost and win three thousand souls for Christ. And that he might go on doing the good works of God, from raising the lame man at the temple gate all through his busy ministry to the glory of his martyrdom. God reached down and dragged out of the awful depths of unbelief and hellish hate Paul, the "chiefest of sinners," not for Paul's sake alone, but that he might become the great apostle to the Gentiles and reveal the wonderful mysteries of the glorious Gospel of Jesus Christ. God takes you and me, my brother, into His workshop and creates us anew in Christ Jesus that we may begin to work for Him. Saved to serve.

"Serving God through all our days,
Toiling not for purse or praise;
But to magnify His name,
While the Gospel we proclaim.

"Seeking only souls to win,
From the deadly power of sin;
We would guide their steps aright,
Out of darkness into light."

Lesson in the International Series for October 12, 1902—Crossing the Jordan.

THE LESSON TEXT.
(Joshua 3:9-17).

9. And Joshua said unto the children of Israel: Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God.

10. And Joshua said: Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11. Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12. Now therefore take you 12 men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13. And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap.

14. And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people;

15. And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water (for Jordan overfloweth all its banks all the time of harvest),

16. That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan; and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17. And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

GOLDEN TEXT.—When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee.—Is. 43:2.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Preparation.—The host had been encamped on the upper terraces of the Jordan valley. Early on the morning of the 7th of Nisan they broke camp and descended to the water's edge. It was on this day that Joshua made arrangements for the food supply (1:10, 11). Here, as if watching their chance to cross, they remained for three days. But for their faith that somehow God would find a way, this would have been very hopeless business. Joshua used the days of waiting to perfect the arrangement for the crossing, and directed that the people sanctify themselves (see Ex. 19: 10).

The Crossing.—The Jordan valley may be described as a great trench "160 miles long, and from two to 15 broad, which falls from the sea level to as low as 1,292 feet below it."—G. A. Smith. The river itself is a small, turbulent shallow stream, about 90 feet in width—about the width of many of our city streets. At certain seasons, however, it overflows its regular bed, and spreads out over the bottom lands, becoming quite a formidable stream. The river was high at the time of our lesson, and the fords, usually covered by only three feet of water, must have been impassable. The two spies probably crossed by swimming. "Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you:" In the few encouraging words which Joshua spoke to the people before the start, he centered their attention on God, who was a living, helping present person. In Him was their strength. "The Lord of all the earth:" An idea of God vastly superior to that of the surrounding nations. "A significant title of the Most High at a time when the conquest of the land was contemplated."—G. F. Maclear. "When they that bare the ark were come unto the Jordan:" The priests, whose duty it was to carry it. They were over half a mile in advance of the people. Remember that Israel was a great company, and was spread out for a long distance up and down the river. The movement of the ark could not have been seen if the people had swarmed in all around it. From this time on, the ark, and not the pillar of cloud, was to be the symbol of God's guiding presence. "Rose up in one heap, a great way off, at Adam:" This damming up of the river took place over 15 miles above the point of crossing, probably near Tell Damieh, where the mountains crowd the river, and where a landslide or "jam" of floating trees could easily accomplish the result described. At the crossing of the Red sea God used "a strong east wind" to accomplish His purpose. Here it was probably some unusual obstruction near Tell Damieh. As a matter of fact, exactly this thing happened in the year 1267 A. D. at this very place. "What occurred 650 years ago, by what we call natural causes, may well have occurred 3,000 years before, timed by Divine interposition."—Canon Tristram in Sunday-School Times. "The people passed over:" Probably below the place where the priests stood in the river bed, that they might feel that God stood between them and the returning waters. The crossing was hurried, and effected at many different points.

The Memorials.—This memorial was a constant reminder of what God had done for them as a nation. Think, in this connection, of the value to us of our various memorials—soldiers' monuments, national holidays, Christmas, the Lord's Supper, etc.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Those who desire God's help should sanctify themselves, so that He can give it to them.

Then the ark of God went before the people, leading them in safety; flow we follow the cross.

If the cross leads into deep waters, we may be sure that a path will be made through them.

When God says: "Arise, go over this Jordan," faith will not shrink, and God will make a way.

When God opens a path, then is the time to go over. Soon the Jordan may roll on as before.

Overworked Backs

Being Relieved in Fort Wayne.

You say it's from overwork when you're all tired out from sitting at your desk all day long, from sticking right to it no matter what your daily task may be. You go home with a torturous ache in the small of the back, with sharp pains in the loins. The kidneys rebel at overwork and the many aches and pains tell you they are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Set the kidneys right again; remove the ache by curing the cause; cure every kidney ill from common backache to diabetes. Read this Fort Wayne proof:—

Mr. C. J. Noll, of 115 Barthold street, butcher employed at H. Strodel's meat market, says: "When I was working in Frenchtown an attack of kidney disorder got hold of me and though I tried every known remedy I was unable to get rid of it. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Meyer & Co.'s drug store. Before I took these pills I was greatly troubled with backache. I could not rest at night in only one position, and when I was up it was almost impossible to stoop. The kidney secretions were discolored, had a bad odor and at times I grew very dizzy. I commenced feeling better as soon as I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills and by the time I had finished the first box I was entirely cured"

Falling Hair Stopped

I had typhoid fever this summer, consequently was losing my hair terribly, and my head in places was perfectly bald. Newbro's Herpicide had just come into use in Phillipsburg, and the doctor strongly recommended it to me. After three or four applications my hair stopped falling out, and is coming in again quite thick. I used to be troubled greatly with dandruff, of which I am now quite cured, so you see I have cause to praise Newbro's Herpicide.

THE MAN IN ARMOR

Was no match for the microbe. Giants he might slay but this microscopic organism defied him, and in many a campaign more men were destroyed by camp diseases than by the enemy's sword.

The one way to arm against microbic disease is to keep the blood pure. Impure blood both breeds and feeds disease.

The signs of impure blood are easy to read. Pimples, boils, and eruptions generally proclaim the blood to be impure. Scrofulous sores and swellings, salt-rheum, eczema, etc., are other signs of a corrupt condition of the blood.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and cures diseases caused by the blood's impurity. It cures scrofulous sores, boils, pimples, eczema and other defiling and disfiguring diseases.

"It gives me great pleasure to express my faith in the virtue of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Ezekiel Floro, of Graytown, Ottawa Co., Ohio. "I suffered everything for two years with humor on my face, which baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. Was at once advised to go to the hospital; was doctored there for three months without success. Came home discouraged. Then began to doctor with a 'chemist.' He also failed to help me. Then I began Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with no faith whatever in it. Did it only to please my wife; but I am happy to tell you that after taking five bottles I am entirely cured."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SHORTEST RAILROAD

It is at Los Angeles, But 300 Feet Long, and Pays Good Dividends.

The most unique, as well as shortest, dividend-paying railroad in the world, has recently been put in operation at Los Angeles, Cal. It is only 319 feet long and in that distance makes an ascent of half as many feet, so that it is also one of the steepest lines ever built. On its little white cars more rides may be had for a dollar than on any that ever ran, yet if ordinary railways were as profitable in proportion to length as this picturesque affair they would yield astonishing dividends.

The "Angels' Flight" is the appropriate name of this ingenious carrier of passengers, which affords means of transportation between the lower and level part of the city and the lofty hill portion, a large and beautiful residence section known as "Olive Heights." Formerly that eminence could be reached only by a long detour or by climbing half a dozen flights of exceedingly difficult stairs. Among those who trudged up and jolted down these steps was Col. J. W. Eddy, and he conceived the idea that a railway up the incline could be made to pay, though railroading on so small a scale had never been attempted.

Colonel Eddy designed the diminutive system, and failing to interest anybody else, undertook its construction. While the financiers laughed at him and the public ridiculed his project, he pushed the work, making large expenditures, and soon had it completed. The enterprise proved a marked success from a financial as well as mechanical standpoint and is now the property of a distinct corporation, the Los Angeles Electric Incline railway company, with Colonel Eddy as superintendent. The people who scouted it are now patrons of the line. A street in the heart of the city that had been practically useless, save for the tunnel beneath, has been converted from an unsightly weed patch into a singularly attractive public utility. Electric fountains, grass-covered terraces and flowers make the place a pleasant resort. It has been named "Eddy park."

The "Angels' Flight" is built on the three-rail, automatic, turnout system. Two neat coaches, the "Olivet" and "Sinai," are attached to the ends of a double cable, which is wound over the drum of a ten-horse power electric motor in the power house at the top of the hill—a plant so small that it might be mistaken for a playhouse. As one car goes up the other descends, thus counterbalancing each other and effecting a great saving in power and expense. The chariots hold ten persons each, seated, and they are never "packed" as on any other railroad, because it is not permitted. Standing is positively prohibited, because a possible sudden stop might throw a passenger out and down to certain death. Absolute safety is assured, the breaking strain of the cable is placed at 31,000 pounds and the weight of a car is 2,700 pounds, which could not be doubled even if the car were crowded. Should the working cable give way another is ready to take its place, and in case that broke a safety clutch would stop the car instantly.

At the lower station the "bill of fare" informs the passenger that he may have one ride for 5 cents, three for 10 cents, ten for 25 cents, or 100 for $1. The designer estimated, in fixing the rates, that the people residing on the heights would pay the expenses of operation with one-penny fares, and the 5-cent fares of the thousands of tourists and curiosity seekers who would be eager for so novel a trip would furnish the profit. His calculation has been more than justified. The cars run every minute, are nearly always occupied, and the one man in the power house performs all the functions of conductor, brakeman, engineer and fireman on ordinary railways, so that the operating cost is small.

Entering at the lower station, the passenger steps upon the car and is seated, an electric bell rings, and the odd ride begins. The ascent is speedily made, and upon arrival at the upper terminus he passes through a wicket, first dropping a coin or ticket in the slot before the operator. Then he finds himself in a pretty, open building, provided with comfortable chairs, and cooled by the breezes wafted in from the sea and never felt at the base of the incline. This place is happily designated "Angels' Rest" and is surmounted with the gilded figure of an angel. The management asserts that the catchy names have had much to do with the success that has attended the scheme.

From the "Angels' Rest," the upper station, stairs lead up a steel observation tower, over 200 feet above the street at the foot of the hill and commanding a magnificent view. On the elevated platform visitors have the advantage of a powerful searchlight, a camera obscura and strong binoculars.

Spread out before the beholder is a panorama that would be hard to equal anywhere else. In the foreground is the heart of the stirring, bustling metropolis of the southwest, and stretching around is fifty square miles of the city, with the mingled charm of age and newness. On the one hand, range after range silhoutted against the cloudless sky, is the stately mountain scenery of the Sierra Madres, unexcelled in grandeur and interest; on the other, the eye reaches the white surges of the Pacific ocean twenty miles away. A view of the city at night, with its glisten of lights, seems like a glimpse into a fabulous jewel casket. In the distance a score of towns glow with electricity generated by mountain streams, and rushing trolley cars look like trails of colored fire in the valleys.

WHAT IS A FULL GENERAL?

Until recently the highest rank in the American army by regular promotion was major general, but the law has been changed and now lieutenant general is the highest. People use the word general mistakenly in speaking of or in addressing a lieutenant general, a major general or a brigadier general, but the single word "general" as denoting rank has a distinct application. It is purely an honorary rank, the highest that an officer can attain in this country and is conferred by congress for specially distinguished services and it always expires with the death of the man holding it. The only full generals that we have had are Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. Many persons believe that Washington held the rank, but that is an error. As commander of the continental army he was major general and as commander of the United States army in 1798, when war with France was threatened, he was made lieutenant general. Congress passed an act March 3, 1799, creating the rank of full general for him, but his commission was never issued.

The only lieutenant generals that we have had besides Washington are Scott, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Schofield and Miles, the last named now holding the rank. The active commanding officer of the army used to be the senior major general; now it is the lieutenant general, but he is not the "commander in chief." That is an error into which most people fall. The commander in chief is the president, made so by the constitution—"commander in chief of the army and navy." No other person has or can use that title. Official orders issued by General Miles are signed "the lieutenant general commanding," not "commander in chief."

In the navy the highest rank obtained by promotion is rear admiral, the rank of full admiral being within the gift of congress, like that of general in the army. Dewey is a full admiral, but that rank will expire when he dies and cannot be revived without a special act of congress.

GREAT LOVERS OF SWEETS.

It is a fact not generally known but readily believed that the people of the United States consume more sugar products than those of any other country on the globe, but it will surprise even those conversant with the fact to learn that they devour eight times as much per capita as they did in the first quarter of the last century, four times as much as the average per capita during the decade ending with 1850 and twice as much as they did in any year prior to 1870. In the years immediately prior to 1825 the average consumption of sugar was about eight pounds per capita; in the decade 1840-50 about ten pounds per capita; in the years immediately prior to 1870 the average was about thirty-two pounds per capita (omitting the war years, in which the consumption was very light); from 1870 to 1880 it averaged about forty pounds per capita; from 1880 to 1890 fifty pounds per capita; in 1891 the figure was sixty-six pounds per capita, and has ranged from sixty-two to sixty-eight pounds per capita since that time, the figure for 1901 being 68.4 pounds.

This growth in the consumption of sugar is evidently not confined to the people of the United States. The increase seems to have been equally rapid in other parts of the world. Figures recently published by the bureau of statistics showed that the sugar production of the world was eight times as great in 1900 as in 1840, the figure for 1840 being 1,150,000 tons and that for 1900 8,800,000 tons.

This increase in production and consequently in consumption has come largely through the development of the beet sugar industry, which increased from a production of 50,000 tons in 1840 to 5,950,000 tons in 1900. During the same time cane sugar production increased from 1,100,000 tons in 1840 to 2,850,000 tons in 1900. Beets in 1840 supplied 4.35 per cent. of the total sugar product of the world; in 1900 67.71 per cent.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the United States is greater than that of any other country except the United Kingdom, in which the consumption ranges from eighty-five to ninety-nine pounds per capita, against sixty to sixty-eight pounds in the United States.

A NIGHT AT THE PLAY.

ROBERT MANTELL.

Robert B. Mantell, who comes to the Temple next Wednesday, was born in Irvine, Ayshire, Scotland, not far from the birthplace of Robert Burns. He began his stage career in the Lancashire town of Rochdale, in England, when he was about 18 years old. He played there the Sergeant in "Arrah-na-Pogue," and Father Dolan in "The Shaughraun," and soon afterwards toured in the company of Miss Marriott, an English actress, whose professional taste led her to attempt Hamlet, Romeo and Richard III. Later he became associated with Charles Mathews, whom he has always looked upon as his dramatic instructor. On quitting Mathews he joined Mr. and Mrs. George S. Knight for a brief English tour.

Scene in "The Vinegar Buyer," Ezra Kendall's new comedy.

About 1874 Mr. Mantell came to America with the intention of joining the Boston Museum Stock company, but a hitch in the arrangements resulted in his early return to England, where he appeared in support of the leading lights of the British stage. In 1878 he returned to this country to join Modjeska's company and at the close of that engagement he once more returned to England to support Miss Wallis in a line of characters that included Romeo, Orlando and Charles Surface. For three years thereafter he labored continuously in the legitimate. In the meantime he had attracted the attention of Dion Boucicault, who was then starring in England. The result was that on his return to the United States he bore a warm recommendation from Boucicault to the leading American managers. He was given the part of Jack Herne in "The Romany Rye," and then traveled two seasons with Fanny Davenport, when he made his memorable hit as Loris Ipanoff in "Fedora." In the autumn of 1884 he created the leading part in "Called Back," and in the following spring was engaged for Steele Mackaye's "Dakolar."

The season of 1885-86 was passed as leading man for Miss Davenport's company, and in the fall of 1886 he began a tour in "Tangled Leaves," a modern drama written by John W. Keller, a newspaper editor. In 1888 Mr. Mantell brought out "Monbars," Louis Nathal's version of a play by the Frenchman, Adolphe D'Ennery. That was followed by a revival of "The Corsican Brothers," and it by "The Marble Heart," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Lady of Lyons," "Othello," "Hamlet," "The Fate in the Moonlight," "A Secret Warrant" and this season "The Dagger and the Cross."

Mr. Mantell has easily retained his place as the leading romantic actor of America and in the magnificent production of "The Dagger and the Cross" he has added another to his already long list of successes. This is Robert B. Mantell's sixth season under the direction of M. W. Hanley, the well known New York theatrical manager.

WILLIAM H. CRANE IN "DAVID HARUM."

Charles Froham will again present William H. Crane in the dramatization of Westcott's widely-read book, "David Harum," at the Temple Friday next. Mr. Crane has been in possession of the play for over two years and during that time it has had a phenomenal measure of success. For sixteen weeks it ran in New York, for six weeks in Chicago, for two months in Boston, where it proved to be a record-breaker in point of attendance, and six weeks in Philadelphia. In transplanting the story from the book to the stage the dramatizers were careful to take few liberties with Westcott's work. Into three acts the play is divided and all of the scenes are laid in Homeville, N. Y. In the first act the audience sees David's bank on one side, Aunt Polly's house across the road and in the background the big barn wherein David kept his horses. All of the familiar characters are quickly introduced. There is David's factotum, Dick Larrabee, and Dug Robinson, who drives the stage from the depot. Then comes that old skinflint, Zeke Swinney, and shortly after the little Widow Cullom, the pellet of Billy P. Mary Blake then puts in an appearance, and herein is where the only liberty that is taken with the story is introduced. She comes to Homeville to get a position in the public school, she having learned that for years she was dependent on General Wolsey. Her independence asserted itself and she determined to earn her own living. She went to Homeville because her mother was buried near there, and—well, because she knew that after the death of his father—John Lenox went to work in David Harum's bank. John Lenox comes into view and so does pert little Chet Timson. There is dear old Aunt Polly, and sloping along comes the village tough, Bill Montaig. Crane makes his first entrance as Harum behind that pesky critter, the bay hoss, which has been giving him a "dumb tough time of it" on the river road. The story is quickly developed. Deacon Perkins comes to look the bay "hoss" over and the animal is brought out of the barn and down to the trough. David then effects the sale of the animal, which will "stand without hitchin'."

The second act is laid in the office of the counting room of the bank. It is essentially the office of a man who loves horses. In this act there is the incident of the counterfeit bills, the tussle with Bill Montaig, the resignation of Chet Timson and the securing of the mortgages on the Widow Cullom's home.

In the third act another phase of David Harum's character is shown—his home life. The scene is laid in Aunt Polly's sitting room and the time is Christmas morning. It is snowing hard outside. Aunt Polly is having John Lenox's things surreptitiously removed from the Eagle tavern to her spare room. The Widow Cullom comes in answer to David's summons, expecting to be bereft of her home. There is the story of David's visit to the circus, the giving to the widow of her home, the engagement of John Lenox and Mary Blake and the curtain falls on the Christmas dinner, with David's opening that famous bottle of champagne.

"THE EVIL EYE."

At the Temple on Tuesday next will appear Charles H. Yale and Sidney R. Ellis' "The Evil Eye," or the further funny freaks of Nid and the continued comical contortions of Nod. This spectacular musical extravaganza is easily the biggest and best entertainment today before the public. It is a paragon of pretty girls, rich costumes, trick specialties and electrical scenic effects, which in combination with a hundred other features serve to keep the audience in an uproar from the beginning to the end.

This season everything is new, clever and original and Messrs. Yale and Ellis promise it the best "Evil Eye" of its five years of continuous success. In the sea of comedy which "The Evil Eye" presents two great features float triumphantly on the tidal wave of merit. One is the new great Phasey troupe of sixteen young pretty English maidens and the other is Armstrong's bewildering electric ballet augmented to more than 5,000 lights. The sensation created by these two great acts has been emphatic and sincere and but emphasize the fact that "The Evil Eye" is always the leader in novelty and merriment. Richard T. Brown is now the traveling American and Josie Sisson the millionaire widow, who dotes on distributing her fortune to the four quarters of the earth. The Brothers Kennard are those monkey trick youngsters Nid and Nod and the balance of the long cast are acrobats, singers, dancers, actors and pantomimists of well known talent. "The Evil Eye" is an entertainment embracing mirth, music, mystery and marvels.

"THE VINEGAR BUYER."

"The Vinegar Buyer" is the title of the new comedy which Liebler & Co. have had Herbert Hall Winslow write for Ezra Kendall, and which is to be given its first representation in this city next Saturday. The title is an odd and amusing one, but it imperfectly describes the Joe Miller of the play, the character which Mr. Kendall impersonates, for Joe Miller does lots of things in the play which are of vastly more interest than his vocation as a vinegar buyer. Really the vinegar buying business cuts but a small figure in the play, though Joe Miller is a "vinegar buyer" beyond question. Still he is a grand, good fellow, whom the whole village learns to love for his big heart and wise head and generous impulses, whose whole life is devoted to good works, and whose bump of shrewdness and knowledge of human nature enables him to overcome the machinations of the wicked and care for the unfortunate and oppressed in a way that warms the cockles of the heart of the auditor, and makes him glad that he is alive. "The Vinegar Buyer" is in fact an attractive human story of real life in a small town in Indiana, and into which is woven a collection of interesting characters, bright and witty dialogue, and impressive situations, all of which in the hands of a superb cast, supporting the inimitable Ezra Kendall, should prove a most delightful entertainment.

ROBERT MANTELL.
In "The Dagger and the Cross."

NO "HALF HOUR" IN THIS.

Those who have experienced the infinite delight of listening to one of Ezra Kendall's half-hour monologue sketches, which have won for him the proud position of the king of vaudeville, will be pleased beyond measure to know that at last we are to have the opportunity of spending an entire evening in his society, for Ezra Kendall, the most delightful comedian on the American stage, has been taken in hand by Liebler & Co. and will this season appear as a star in a full fledged three-act comedy, which is soon to be presented in our own city.

And the play, they say, is a "corker" in all that that comprehensive and emphatic term implies. It is founded on a Whitcomb Riley's poem of "Jap Miller," with which Mr. Kendall has been greatly enamored for years and around which character he tried to persuade Mr. Riley to write a play years ago. Mr. Riley is not a playwright, however, but a poet, and he couldn't be persuaded to change his profession for "filthy lucre."

The conferences with Liebler & Co. resulted in that enterprising firm taking the matter in hand and engaging Herbert Hall Winslow, one of the best playwrights in America in that line of work, set him at the task. Kendall lent his assistance in the way of innumerable suggestions, especially those that were peculiarly applicable to Kendall and Kendallisms, and the result was a play which made short rehearsals imperative, for the mental and physical make-up of the actors couldn't stand the merriment the lines and situations of the play would evoke.

This is the play that Fort Wayne is to witness on Saturday next, and with such an impersonator of the leading role as Ezra Kendall and the support that has been given, such an evening should prove an unalloyed delight.

MY CHROMATIC-NOSED FRIEND

A Good, Common-Sense Sermon from the Pen of Robert J. Burdette.

For a good, common-sense temperance sermon brought right down to practical, every-day experience, there could be nothing better than the following from the pen of Bob Burdette. What he says of liquor drinking may be applied with equal force to all other expensive habits that seem but small items when counted singly, but which, when figured up as a whole, amount to enough to build a home in a few years, or to start a man in business. He says:

"My homeless friend with the chromatic nose, while you are stirring up the sugar in a ten-cent glass of gin, let me give you a fact to wash down with it. For some years you have been drinking a good improved farm at the rate of 100 square feet at the gulp. If you doubt this statement, figure it out for yourself. An acre contains 43,560 square feet. Estimating, for convenience, the land at $43.56 an acre, you will see it brings the land to just one mill per square foot. Now pour down the dose, and imagine you are swallowing down a strawberry patch. Call in your friends, and have them help you swallow that 500-foot garden. Get on a prolonged spree, and see how long it will take you to swallow enough pasture land for a cow. There is dirt in it—300 feet of good, rich dirt, worth $43.56 per acre.

"Now is a good time to look the matter square in the face, and cut off the expensive and useless custom of throwing money—five, ten, twenty, or thirty cents at a time—into the beer and whisky till, and save it instead, as the beginning of a fund to buy a farm or home. There is one thing sure as truth, and that is, that you can't give your earnings to somebody else, and also keep them for yourself. The men you give them to will neither buy you a farm nor build you a home. They may build homes with the money you give them, but the homes will be for themselves, and the farms they buy will be for themselves. Wherever you plant it, there it will grow. If you drop it on another's soil, he will harvest the crop; if you plant it for yourself, you may reap the fruitful increase, and gather the golden grain into your own granary; where by every God-given right it belongs."—American homes.

CHILDREN INEBRIATES.

So common is the evil of drunkenness among children in New York city that the temperance societies are going to petition for a law making it a misdemeanor, punishable both by fine and imprisonment, for parents to give alcoholic beverages to their children under any circumstances whatever, unless for medicinal purposes and under the supervision of a doctor or apothecary, and there is a pretty fair chance that their petition will be granted.

Whatever may be the underlying cause, the amount of drunkenness among mere children is something appalling to contemplate. In certain sections of the town there are well organized gangs of boys, their ages ranging from 10 to 15, who make a practice of hopping onto weak-looking adult pedestrians and robbing them in order to get together the price of a "kag" of beer, which they carry to a vacant lot and guzzle until they are in a state of brutalized intoxication.

At the political clambakes and other out-of-door affairs of the east side population the number of miserably drunken young girls tottering around before the festivities are well under way is something sad to see, and yet such exhibitions attract little or no attention and elicit no other sensation than that of mild amusement from the grown up individuals attending such affairs.—Omaha Bee.

An Important Suggestion.

Discussion about the food-value of alcohol is closed by the Journal of the American Medical Association with these wise words: "Whatever may be said for alcohol will be utilized unscrupulously by advocates of the liquor interest. Give them an inch and they will take a mile. We believe it will be found far safer for medical men to stand on the facts opposing the general use of alcohol than even qualifiedly to advocate its usage, except exclusively as a medicine and under medical prescription." The best minds in the profession are undoubtedly agreed on this point, to give the saloonkeeper a monopoly of the liquor business—and to send him no customers.—Youth's Companion.

INFANTILE MORTALITY.

Statistics Which Show It Is Less Among the Jews Who Are Free from Drunkenness.

In the paper read by him at the meeting of the British Medical association at Manchester, Dr. J. M. Rhodes drew attention to the comparative lowness of the infantile death rate among the Jews in districts where infantile mortality generally is abnormally high. In Manchester the death rate among children up to one year was 198 per thousand, but in the district of Cheetham, which is largely occupied by Jews, the rate was but 124—less than two-thirds of the average. The Manchester Jews are not peculiar in thus exhibiting the lowest infantile mortality of the Jewish population. Dr. Maurice Fishberg, a New York physician, has been studying the mortality statistics for that city with reference to races, and finds that the densely populated wards which are largely inhabited by Russian Jews had an average death rate of only 15.92, when that for the whole city was 18.53; while in two where the population is almost exclusively Jewish, the figures sank to 14.52 and 14.23. Dr. Rhodes lays stress upon the general freedom from drunkenness among the Jews of Manchester as an important element in the case, and Dr. Fishberg similarly speaks of the temperate character of their coreligionists in New York.—London Daily News.

A TREACHEROUS PLATFORM.

Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.—1 Cor. 10:12.

A BOY'S INFLUENCE.

Story of How Charles Spurgeon Drove a Member of a Church from His Cups.

When Mr. Spurgeon was a little boy he lived with his grandfather, who was a minister. One of his members, named Roads, often went to the public house for a "drop of beer." This annoyed his pastor greatly. Little Charles saw his grandfather's sorrow. One day he exclaimed: "I'll kill old Roads, that I will."

His grandfather reproved him for saying such a thing. Charles said that he would not do anything wrong, but he was going to kill Roads. A day or two afterwards Charles came into his grandfather's room, saying: "I've killed old Roads; he'll never grieve my dear grandpa any more."

His grandfather was perfectly astonished, but his grandson said that he had been about the Lord's work.

Some time afterwards Roads called at the house and told the following story: "I was a sitting in the public house, just having my pipe and mug of beer when that child come in and says: 'What doest thou here, Elijah? Sitting with the ungodly and you a member of the church.'"

Roads was so struck that he went out of the pub and fell before the Lord, asking His forgiveness. He never touched beer again.

TEMPERANCE FACTS.

Measures to promote temperance in Swiss towns are impeded by the fact that in nearly all hotels and restaurants guests are expected to drink wine or beer.

In accepting nomination for the lord mayoralty of Sheffield, England, Alderman J. Wycliffe Wilson has stipulated that as his total abstinence and nonsmoking principles are well known, his colleagues must not expect him to make provision in these directions in any hospitalities that may take place if he is elected.

Three African monarchs, Emperor Menelik, King Lewanika and King Khama, have barred the entrance of drink into their territories. Thus the war against alcohol is being waged, and sober and enlightened heathens are teaching civilized Europeans valuable lessons in wise government.—The Temperance Record.

The board of aldermen of Elizabeth City, N. C., a town of 5,000 inhabitants, recently passed an ordinance making it an offense subject to a fine for a minor to smoke cigarettes upon the streets. The first offender was W. O. Saunders, editor of a local paper, aged 20, who refused to pay his fine of $50, and was sent to jail. He has appealed the case to the supreme court.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon, the temperance advocate of Quincy, Mass., has again recognized the services of the Christian church in the work of keeping the city free from liquor control, and sent his check for $100 each to the 28 clergymen, with his opinion that "the church holds the key to the situation; in every city or town the church or saloon is the ruling factor in government, and each citizen is serving one or the other."

Novel Way to Fight Rum.

A new and practical arrangement for providing masons and other building laborers, coachmen, errand boys, policemen, and others with cheap food and non-alcoholic drinks has been called into being by the Berlin section of the German Society for Popular Hygiene. At stated hours special carts pass through the streets and dispense sandwiches, bread and butter, the sausages so dear to the German palate, tea, cocoa, coffee and soup, all at the lowest possible prices.

OUT OF DEATH'S JAWS.

When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble, that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Muse, Durham, N. C., "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health." Best pills on earth and only 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s store.

For the Children.

THE BOY GIANT SAVES THE BABY CROWS

Copyright, 1900, by Caroline Wetherell

On the top of a cottonwood tree
There dwelt once a crow, Jimmy C,
His family of six
In a nest made of sticks
Were happy and cozy and free.

In a neat little house down the hill
There lived a boy—Birdsnesting Bill.
He climbed that tall tree
And frightened Jim C.
And threatened the children to kill.

The kindly young giant, Ah Grim,
And Jack of the Beanstalk with him,
Caught Bill at the nest,
His jacket they dressed

A Dry Land Yacht.

A yacht which sails on dry land is the novelty which may be seen on the great trackless plains of the Mojave desert, near Death valley. One day two young miners were trudging their weary way over the plain when a gust of wind struck them and blew away their hats. One of them suggested that if they had a wagon with sails on it they might overtake their hats or at least be able to travel faster than they could walk. Accordingly they set to work and built a low truck, on which they mounted two sails. Between their camp and their mine lay the smooth, hard surface of the plain, formerly the bottom of a lake, and they were soon able to manage their wheeled yacht so that they could make the trip in a few minutes. It is said that in favorable winds they can travel at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

Arithmetic in Japan.

Do you know that the little ones of Japan, just as you do, become interested in arithmetic by seeing and feeling what a pretty thing a cone, a sphere or cylinder is when cut out of wood with a lathe. They also make outlines of solid figures out of straw, with green peas to hold the joints together, and the blind children have flat blocks with the Japanese letters on them.

The Game of Homonyms.

In this game two persons are sent from the room, and they select two words which are pronounced alike, but have different meanings, such as bear, bare, sea, see, etc. Suppose they settle upon the words bear and bare. Then they re-enter the room and one says, thinking of bear, "It has a thick coat." The other says, thinking of bare, "it has no coat at all." Then they continue to contradict each other, each telling the truth about his own word, until the players guess what the word is. The first one guessing must choose his partner and leave the room to think up another homonym, and the game is repeated till the children want to play something else.

A Mother's Love.

There is an old legend that at creation's dawn an angel came down to earth seeking something to take back with it to heaven. It returned with a bouquet of flowers, a baby's smile and a mother's love. When it reached again the gates of paradise, the flowers had withered, the baby's smile had vanished, but the mother's love was found to be as pure and eternal as the waters that flowed by the heavenly throne, and all the angels exclaimed, "There is nothing on earth fit for heaven but a moth change."

BOWSER ON CROQUET

SAYS HE DOESN'T KNOW OF A MORE INTERESTING GAME.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

At 3 o'clock the other afternoon a delivery wagon left a box at the Bowser mansion, and Mrs. Bowser opened it to find balls, mallets and arches. She decided that a mistake had been made, but when Mr. Bowser came up to dinner he explained:

"There is no mistake. I bought the outfit and ordered it sent home."

"But you don't mean that you are going to play croquet?" she asked in surprise.

"But I do. We might as well have some amusements around home. I don't know of a more interesting game than croquet. To play a good game one has got to have a mathematical eye and a skillful hand. It beats golf all hollow. I don't understand your surprise."

"I WILL SET UP THE ARCHES, AND WE WILL BEGIN."

"Isn't it a great game to quarrel over?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Pish! Folks who want to quarrel will quarrel over any game. Yes, I've read in the papers that croquet has separated husbands and wives, broken engagements and caused ministers to resign from churches, but that's all nonsense, you know. There's more wrangling on a Sunday school excursion than over a thousand games of croquet. Indeed, what is there to wrangle about?"

"I thought there were many things, but perhaps I've forgotten or am thinking about something else."

"There isn't one single thing, and I'll prove it to you. After dinner I'll set up the arches, and we'll have a game. You used to play, didn't you?"

"Y-yes," she reluctantly replied.

"And I've heard you brag what a game you played. I will whitewash you four times out of five."

Mrs. Bowser groaned inwardly. If Mr. Bowser had brought home a horse, a cow or a dozen chickens, she might have dodged a row, but with croquet—never. She thought of sudden twisting her ankle or being overcome by the heat, but Mr. Bowser's eye was upon her and she could not escape.

"Why, come to think of it," he said at the dinner table, "we used to play croquet when I was courting you, and I don't remember that we quarreled. No, of course we didn't."

It was true that they didn't, but it was because Mrs. Bowser shut her eyes to his brazen tricks to come out ahead. She didn't say so, however. She simply hoped that by some miracle a game or two might be played without an outbreak.

"Now, then," he said when dinner was finished, "I will set up the arches and we will begin business. If there is a misunderstanding of any sort, you will be to blame for it. Wrangle? Why, I could play for a month of Sundays and not have a word. There may be some excuse for wrangling over golf, but croquet is soft and gentle and placid."

Mrs. Bowser was pale faced and anxious looking as she selected a mallet and ball. She had determined to play her poorest and dispute no assertion. She did not mean to win the first shot, but it came to her. She meant to miss one of the arches as she made her play, but the ball insisted on going through both. As a matter of fact, carelessly as she tried to play, she had gone to the upper stake and was on her way back before Mr. Bowser got a shot. She had heard him breathing hard, but he didn't say anything until she made a miss. Then he remarked:

"I see I have got to play against bullhead luck and chicanery, but—I think I can hold my own."

"Do you mean that I cheated?" she asked.

"Never mind what I mean. You can settle things with your own conscience. I'm coming for your ball."

Mr. Bowser passed through the first arch, missed the second and got in position to hit Mrs. Bowser's ball and send it away. There was a glare in his eye as he sent it fifty feet away and went back to the second arch. But luck was not with him. Before he could get through she came down and hit the stake and finished the game.

"Do you know what you are doing?" he asked as he leaned on his mallet and looked at her.

"Why, I've just whitewashed you. Haven't I?" she replied.

"And how did you accomplish it? Do you know the meaning of the word honesty? Have I got to keep my eyes on you all the time to get a fair deal in this game?"

Mrs. Bowser made no reply. She saw the end in view, and she hoped that if struck with a mallet death would be instantaneous. Mr. Bowser took the first shot, and by good luck he made the two arches. He was left in bad position, though, and before he could get through the third arch Mrs. Bowser overtook him and arranged to carry his ball with hers.

"What are you going to do?" he asked.

"Carry your ball along to play on."

"But you can't do it. There are rules in this game."

"Where is the rule that says I can't carry your ball along to play on again?"

"Go ahead, then. I knew you'd cheat the eyeteeth out of me if you could, but I told you that I shouldn't wrangle."

Mrs. Bowser used his ball until she was in position for the fourth arch and then sent it away and passed through the fourth and fifth and hit the stake. She was getting ready for the return when he advanced and quietly said:

"I will excuse you from further play this evening, and you may retire to the house."

"What's the matter? You surely can't say that I've cheated."

"I say nothing, madam—nothing except that you may retire. I shall probably have a little talk with you later on, a little talk. There are some things I want to say to you."

Mrs. Bowser had escaped death, and she was only too glad to drop her mallet and escape into the house. Mr. Bowser was knocking the balls about and gritting his teeth when a tramp came along and leaned on the fence to say:

"I used to play that game myself when I was an aristocrat, and I was purty good at it too."

"Do you understand the rules?" asked Mr. Bowser.

"I think I do."

"Then come in and take a mallet. I want a straight game and no monkey work."

The tramp had "been there." He played clear to the upper stake without a miss, and he was getting ready to return when Mr. Bowser walked over to him and said:

"You can drop that mallet and get out of here!"

"But I'm only half through," protested the man.

"It makes no difference. How did you get in here anyway?"

"Why, you asked me to come in."

"Never! I'm not playing croquet with tramps!"

"I'd hate to be a mean old cuss like you!" said the man as he moved away. "You couldn't go through an arch if it was as big as a barn door, and it makes you mad to see any one else"—

Mr. Bowser jumped for him, and there was a struggle. They fell to the ground and rolled over and over, while two boys shouted for the police. Then, at the end of a minute, the tramp scrambled up and ran away with his hair flying and fright in his eyes. Mr. Bowser got up, but with more dignity. There was a long scratch on his nose and blood on his ear, but his voice was firm as he stalked into the house and stood before Mrs. Bowser and said:

"Woman, there is such a thing as crowding a husband to the dead line. You have crowded me there, and now the worm has turned. We will telephone our respective lawyers and settle on the amount of alimony, and tomorrow—tomorrow, Mrs. Bowser, you can return to the arms of your mother!"

Topic: "Fruitful or Fruitless."

In a day, almost, the blossom seems to bud and bloom; and in a day, almost, the fruit seems to form and glow ripe; but back of these days of surprisingly swift blossoming and fruit-bearing were scores of ordinary days when the tree was doing only ordinary work, drawing up the moisture, drinking in the sunshine, storing up energy for the time of sudden outburst. It is these ordinary days that count in our lives for more than the days that show great achievements.

The reports of Plymouth Congregational society show it to be in a most flourishing condition. The past year has been the best financially that the society has experienced. It has spent $50 this year on missions and has nearly doubled the amount accomplished in that branch of C. E. work in other years. Seventy new members have been taken in, which is an indication of the good the society has done in a spiritual way and the energetic work of its members. The president states that all of the committees have been reorganized for the coming year and are now ready for even greater things than they have yet accomplished.

The installation of officers of the Plymouth society was held in Plymouth church Friday evening, October 10.

The society of the First Presbyterian church will hold its meeting at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. This is an experimental meeting to see if that time will be convenient for all the members. The old time conflicts with the time for church, which has been changed to the afternoon.

There has been a change of officers in the West Creighton avenue Christian church which has not been reported to us before. But we are glad to extend our heartiest good wishes to both the retiring president, H. E. Brunner, and the new president, Hiram Drummond.

Let us call your attention for the last time to the social to be held in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church Friday evening, October 17. There will be a business session of the local union followed by a social evening.

AER IS REBUKED

GOVERNOR ODELL CALLS DOWN THE COAL MAGNATE.

RESENTS INSOLENT REMARK

MINE OPERATOR THEN MAKES AN APOLOGY.

ODELL'S IRE IS AROUSED

TELLS OPERATORS UNION IS PERFECTLY PROPER.

New York, Oct. 11.—"What do you mean by politicians? I want you and all the other operators to understand that I am the governor of New York, the chosen representative of 7,000,000 people, and that I am here in this matter solely in that capacity and to relieve if possible an intolerable situation. And what is more, I intend to use every power at my command to do it."

Governor Odell made this statement yesterday to President Baer, of the Reading road, in the presence of United States Senators Platt, of New York, and Quay and Penrose, of Pennsylvania. It was the culmination of a rather heated interview in the office of Senator Platt and the result of the first meeting between Governor Odell and President Baer.

OPENED BY PENROSE.

Mr. Baer was not in the best of humor when, accompanied by E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie railroad, he entered Senator Platt's office. The conference was begun with a statement made by Senator Penrose that the situation was becoming so serious that some solution must be found at once. He suggested that the operators should incline to some concessions toward a settlement.

"If you mean by that," said President Baer, "that we are to recognize the existence of a labor union, I tell you right now that the operators will consider no such proposition."

Governor Odell was on his feet in an instant. Holding a half-burnt cigar in his hand and white with excitement, he said:

"Are we to understand that no kind of a conciliatory proposition will receive consideration at the hands of the operators?"

"I did not say that," answered Mr. Baer, "but I do say, and I reiterate it, that we will not accept political advice or allow the interference of politicians in this, our affair."

Then it was that Governor Odell made the statement quoted heretofore.

APOLOGY FROM BAER.

President Baer, evidently appreciating that he had gone too far, bowed to Governor Odell and said:

"Governor, I beg your pardon. No personal affront was intended and we will listen to any suggestions you have to make. But again I repeat that we must refuse to recognize the union as represented by Mr. Mitchell."

"I believe," said the governor, "that your position from a public view is absolutely untenable. If coal operators, railroad men and other business men can combine for mutual profit and protection, there is no reason why laboring men should not."

"What is the proposition?" said Mr. Baer, coldly.

"Just this," said Governor Odell, "I am sure that the labor organization of which Mr. Mitchell is head desires him to be fair with the general public. If the operators will consent to give the men 5 cents a ton increase I will personally present it to the miners, and I believe they will accept it. It is a fair proposition."

STAND FOR UNION.

"Does this mean, Governor Odell, that we are to recognize the miners' union?" Mr. Baer asked.

"It certainly does," answered Governor Odell quickly, "and there is no reason why you should not."

Mr. Baer and Mr. Thomas rose to go, Mr. Thomas remarking that the matter would be presented to the other operators and that an early answer would be forthcoming. Mr. Baer said:

"We are to meet a committee of the manufacturers' association on Tuesday and we may have an answer then."

The conference broke up, Mr. Baer and Mr. Thomas withdrawing. Senators, Platt, Penrose and Quay talked over the matter for a short time and then they too separated.

Governor Odell was not in a talking mood when he left the conference. He went directly to the Fifth Avenue hotel and during most of the afternoon received callers. Mayor Low, Anson G. McCook, Edward Lauterbach, Congressmen Lessler and Littauer and Senator Platt were among his callers

ACTION IS PROMISED.

To one of these the governor said: "The coal operators may postpone this matter until Tuesday, but I don't propose to postpone it They are not acting fairly toward the people. I believe I shall find some remedy."

RUNDELL.

Myron J. Shell, formerly of Fort Wayne, now of Hicksville, Ohio, writes as follows:

"My Dear Sirs:—This is to certify that I, the subscriber to this article, was taken sick with Inflammatory Rheumatism and continued helpless for five weeks, unable to dress or undress, lace my shoes, or even put my hands to my face. My nights were without sleep. A heavy footstep on the floor would make me cry with pain. At the same time I was troubled with my heart and expected death at any moment.

After doctoring for the five weeks, I heard of Rundell's Rheumatic Cure, procured a bottle, took the medicine as directed, and slept the first in many weeks. My heart grew stronger, appetite improved, and two bottles of the remedy completely eradicated the rheumatism. I recommend Rundell's Rheumatic Cure to anyone afflicted with rheumatism."

GONE FROM EARTH

cepted a position in the office of the Huntington Democrat, then under the management of Hon. John W. Hilligoss, since deceased.

CAME TO FORT WAYNE.

In August, 1880, Mr. Hench resigned his position and came to Fort Wayne, where, on the 11th of that month he accepted the position of foreman of The Sentinel's composing room, a position which he retained continuously until his death, with the exception of two years, during which Mr. Hench was one of the lessees of the American Farmer, a monthly agricultural journal then published in Fort Wayne.

While a resident of Huntington, on February 29, 1880, Mr. Hench was united in marriage to Miss Lily U. Provines, of that city, who survives him. Mr. and Mrs. Hench were the parents of five children. The eldest, a daughter, Cecil, died in early childhood. The surviving children, four in number, are Clyde U., Lucille, Marguerite and Neal.

LODGE AFFILIATIONS.

In fraternal circles Mr. Hench has been active for many years, and he has been the recipient of signal honors in each of the organizations in which he held membership. He was a charter member of Summit City lodge, No. 36, Ancient Order of United Workmen, a member of Degree of Honor, No. 2, of Phoenix lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Court No. 96, Tribe of Ben Hur, and of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

In many instances these societies have recognized the services of Mr. Hench in a substantial manner. The grand lodge of Indiana, A. O. U. W., conferred upon him the title of Past Grand Master Workman, and several times selected him as one of the Indiana representatives at the supreme lodge of this order. In June last Mr. Hench attended the supreme lodge at Portland, Oregon, in this capacity. He had filled all the chairs in his local lodge of the A. O. U. W., held offices in the state grand lodge and was a past chief of the Tribe of Ben Hur. Mr. Hench carried life insurance in the fraternal orders to the amount of $2,950—$2,000 in the A. O. U. W. and $950 in the Tribe of Ben Hur.

A LEADER OF LABOR.

Union labor found in Mr. Hench a staunch advocate and a steadfast friend, and he was active in this domain for many years. He held membership in the International Typographical union, had served as president of the local union, and twice represented his Fort Wayne brethren in the international meetings—last year at Birmingham, Ala., and in August of 1902 at Cincinnati.

Early in the '90's he served with signal ability as president of the Trades and Labor council, and later held prominent committee places, as well as representing his own union in the central body. His fame in labor circles spread far beyond the limits of his own city, and he had for several years up to the time of his death held the position of district organizer for the American Federation of Labor under appointment from President Samuel Gompers. Many of the local trades unions in Fort Wayne were organized under the supervision of Mr. Hench and he was popular with the members of each of them.

SERVED IN COUNCIL.

Politically, Mr. Hench was a firm adherent to democratic principles, and his grasp of public questions was clear and comprehensive. He was elected from the First ward to the city council in 1898 and re-elected in 1901. His efforts as a public official were invariably directed toward serving the best interest of his constituents, and he was recognized as one of the leaders of the municipal body. He held chairmanship of both the committee on health and the committee on judiciary and was the second member of the committee on rules, regulations and ordinances.

SORROW IN THE SHOPS.

The news of the death of Mr. Hench reached the shops shortly after he had breathed his last and the sorrow which it caused there expresses the esteem entertained for him by the employes. He had taken a very prominent part in the organized labor movement, was known personally to almost every member of the labor unions and was considered a friend of each. His death is regarded by the men in the light of a personal bereavement.

T. D. Neal, of Indianapolis, grand master workman, and Fred Baker, of Evansville, grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., have been notified of the death of Mr. Hench, and a telegram from each brings the information that they will come to Fort Wayne to attend the funeral obsequies.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1117 Elmwood avenue, and at 2:30 from Westminster Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Hench was a member. Rev. J. Budman Fleming will deliver the funeral discourse, and the interment will occur at Lindenwood. The active pallbearers will be from Mr. Hench's brethren in the A. O. U. W., representing the Summit City, Maumee and Fort Wayne lodges. The list is as follows: H. F. France, Charles Haiber, Norton Conover, Al Roby, S. D. Melsheimer and E. S. Hurlburt.

The honorary pall bearers are selected from the membership of Fort Wayne lodge No. 155, B. P. O. E., and the city council, and are as follows: E. C. Miller, A. C. Hobrock, Joch J. Bauer, F. E. Purcell, W. J. Hosey and C. O. Essig.

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

Judgment was entered for the plaintiff in the sum of $84.31 in the case of the Hamilton bank against William Heck and the Otto Herbst estate.

Nancy Eix was granted a divorce from Frederick Eix.

Sheriff Stout at noon left for Richmond, having in charge Eliza Smith, who was accepted for treatment there yesterday. Mrs. Stout accompanied the sheriff.

The superior court was not in session today. Court will reconvene on Monday morning, when several jury trials will be held.

The county commissioners were in session today transacting miscellaneous business, of which very little was presented.

Nanck Eix was yesterday divorced from Frederick Eix by Judge O'Rourke.

Herman Michael has qualified as guardian of Christine Julliard, a woman adjudged of unsound mind several days ago by Judge O'Rourke.

ABOUT DITCH MATTERS.

The county commissioners yesterday acted upon some ditch matters already before them and took up a number of new petitions. In the matter of the Warner ditch, in Cedar Creek township, the hearing of protests was continued until October 18. The Hursh ditch in Cedar Creek township was established upon the report of the viewers as was the Felger ditch in Lake township.

Viewers were appointed on petitions for new ditches as follows: Fry ditch in Springfield township—J. W. McNabb, B. F. Frederick, Joseph Barney. Griff ditch in St. Joseph township—Jacob Shaffer, John Rapp and Hugh M. Rockhill. Fry ditch in Jefferson township—Amasa Shaffer, John Hoffman and Nathan Brown. Hamm ditch in Scipio township—David Dalman, William Hagan and Alfred Corbet.

BUCKET SHOPS LOSE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 11.—Special.—Edward Daniels, sitting as master in chancery in the federal court here, today reported his decision on the case of the Chicago board of trade against the Indiana bucket shops. He found that the board was entitled to control its quotations as proprietor and should have the relief asked for in an injunction against the bucket shops. If concurred in by Judge Baker this will close the bucket shops of Indiana.

Out Lots

I now offer the 120 acres on Walton avenue immediately south of the Lutheran college land, price $24,000 for the entire tract, $200 per acre, which will retail out at $400 per acre. Good opportunity to double your money. Terms easy, small payment down, long time on remainder. When we cleared off the very heavy timber on this rich land, many years ago, 900 thrifty young shade trees were left for outlot purposes, all of which are still there and growing. The population of Fort Wayne is steadily increasing and a still more rapid growth is now about to develop.

RETU... OLD ... ENT.
Adams County (Iowa) Free Press

Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Salts departed on Thursday for Washington, D. C., where they will attend the national encampment of the G. A. R., after which they will visit their old home at Roanoke, Ind., also relatives and friends at Fort Wayne and Huntington. At Roanoke the doctor will visit the scenes of his boyhood days, when he was a mule driver on the old Wabash canal from Toledo, Ohio, to Evansville, Ind., when not engaged in battling with the chills and ague so prevalent in that country in those days. When the war between the states was declared he joined the Twenty-second Indiana and did valiant service for the union."

ILL IN WASHINGTON.

David Smith, of Eel River township, who attended the Grand Army reunion in Washington, D. C., this week, was taken ill while in the capital city, and was unable to return home. Mr. Smith is one of Allen county's most highly respected citizens. It is not thought that his illness will be serious.

EPILEPSY

FITS OR FALLING SICKNESS.

The Cause, Dangers and Cure.

The Uncertainty of Time and Place for the Occurrence of Paroxysms or Fits Causes Epilepsy to Be Especially Dreaded—The Afflicted One is Never Safe Alone and Even When Closely Watched May so Suddenly Fall Where He Will Be Burned, Drowned, Seriously or Fatally Injured That the Alertest Friend May Not Be Able to Prevent, Shield or Rescue Him.

Twice in the writer's experience have epileptic subjects consulted, promising to begin treatment in a few days and been killed while in a fit before procuring the medicine that would have prevented such convulsion.

Newspapers frequently report violent or sudden deaths that occurred because a fit exposed to what was otherwise unlikely to be a danger.

One girl fell in the fire of an open grate, a woman scalded in a bath tub, a man fell into a mortar box of slaking lime, a woman drowned in a few inches of water in a ditch, to the edge of which she stepped to pluck a flower; a man in falling fractured his skull on the stone walk; a woman in a fit run down by a street car, and many accidents resulting from sudden seizures.

That epileptic fits have been prevented and cured is verified by the following reports:

"My brother, 24 years old, has been subject to epileptic fits since 8 years of age, often having eight or ten a day. His head and body are covered with scars from cuts, burns and bruises received from his falls. He has had no further trouble since taking Golden Remedy, twenty-one weeks now. It is such a relief to have him go up town and not be brought back all bruised and bleeding from his falls. Maud White, Walkerville, Ont."

"My sister had been having two or three spasms a day, but since taking Golden Remedy she has not had any. Oakie Asher, Pecksburg, Ind."

"I haven't had a symptom of fits since using Golden Remedy. S. H. Barksdale, Felden, Va."

That epilepsy is not often cured by the family doctor is a fact evidenced in most communities and readily admitted by physicians themselves. That both mild and severe forms of the dread disease have been cured by Golden Remedy is established by hundreds of instances similar to the above. That fits in others may be cured by Golden Remedy is a natural and reasonable inference to be drawn from the reported cases.

Epilepsy is a chronic functional disease. The paroxysm or "fit" being only a symptom of manifestation—a discharge of nervous energy from an over-excited nerve center, the real disease remaining after the explosion and tending to its recurrence.

Golden Remedy by lessening nervous excitability, reducing irritation, preventing congestion, restoring and maintaining nerve balance, does away with the causes that lead up to the explosion, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion or fit.

If you, or any friend or member of your family, are subject to epilepsy, confidentially write us all about it and we will advise you free.

Golden Remedy is for sale at drug stores, or we will send it anywhere on receipt of price—$1.

There is always an element of danger in epilepsy, many fits may be experienced without serious accident, but again the very next one may be fatal, so there is risk in delay. Do not put off taking Golden Remedy to some future or more convenient season and take chances, but start treatment at once and risk no more fits.

BURSLEY FIRM ENTERTAINS.

The wholesale grocery firm of G. E. Bursley & Co. entertained about 400 of their out of town customers at luncheon at noon yesterday. One of the spacious show rooms on the second floor of the building was fitted up in a very attractive manner, a long table capable of seating forty guests being laid out in the center of the room upon which were several large vases of carnations. The women employes of the firm acted as waitresses and served an excellent menu comprising many very palatable dishes of which the guests showed due appreciation. With the exception of the ice cream every dish was prepared from stock carried by the firm and by the employes and the luncheon was a most pronounced success. The visiting grocers were from towns within a radius of 100 miles of Fort Wayne.

TO BUY WAYNE'S PICTURE.

The local chapter of the D. A. R. is conducting a rummage sale on Barr street for the purpose of raising money to purchase the portrait of Gen. Anthony Wayne, which is at present on exhibition in the relic room of the court house. The painting is by Mrs. Jarrard, of this city, and it is said to be an excellent likeness. It is hoped to raise enough funds at the sale, and at the coming card party at the Wayne club to purchase show cases in which to keep relics presented or loaned to the chapter.

MARRIED IN HAMILTON.

Miss Gertrude Katte, of Hamilton, and Guy Ford, formerly of this city, were married in Hamilton on Thursday by Rev. Father Gorey, of St. Mary's Cathedral. The bride's dress was of blue cloth, with hat and gloves to match. She is a daughter of Mrs. Nannie Katte and quite popular in Hamilton social circles. Mr. Ford holds a fine position with a large supply house in Hamilton.

FOOD VS. RECREATION.

Good Food of the Greatest Importance.

There is really no need to go away for rest if one will take scientifically made food that rebuilds the nerve centers and makes work a comfort and pleasure.

One of our prominent novelists was sent to Colorado. "Ride every day, sleep in a tent, eat when you are hungry," my physician told me, but food did not satisfy me and rest would not end the fatigue that had me in its grip. I was a mere machine, eating, sleeping, walking, riding, but unequal to a day's work and with no zest for the day's pleasure.

"At the lowest ebb of strength and courage my eye fell on a piece of newspaper with which my guide was making a camp fire, and I picked it up and read: 'Grape-Nuts, a Food for Brain and Nerve Centers.' I read on; it seemed to be a description of my own case cured by a diet of Grape-Nuts. I sent for a supply of the food by the next pack train that left my camp. It came 45 miles from the nearest settlement on a burro's back. That night I ate Grape-Nuts without cream, milk or sugar. It tasted good. I felt that for the first time in six months I had been fed.

"I went to my bed of pine boughs, slept like a tired child, and woke rested. Then I knew that I had found what I needed better than a new sky, better than exercise, better than rest, because lacking the food that exhausted nature was crying for, these things could not help me.

"I am well now. If in the future I win any rewards by my pen, I shall count them gained by the food that made work possible to me and that gave back to me my old joy in living." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

GEORGE ROBERT HENCH.

The death of Councilman George R. Hench will cause the hearts of a host of friends to sorrow deeply, but to all persons connected with The Sentinel establishment the passing away of Mr. Hench is the source of bitter grief. He was one of the pioneer employes of The Sentinel under its present proprietorship and for more than a score of years had been constantly associated with the paper in some capacity, save a short time when he was one of the lessees and publishers of the American Farmer. He had been foreman of The Sentinel news room since 1881, with the brief exception noted. He had always been a faithful and capable employe, a most considerate foreman and an altogether pleasant, companionable and worthy associate. Friendly ties of unusual intimacy and strength subsisted between him and his fellow employes on this newspaper and to them his death comes with all the poignancy and shock of a personal bereavement.

Mr. Hench was a man of much more than common ability and energy. He had a taste for politics and had long been an influential figure in the councils of the democratic party. As an advocate of the principles of organized labor he was whole-hearted and tireless. As a member of the city council he had acquitted himself with signal ability, with benefit to the public and without taint of self-interest or aspersion of his honesty attaching to his name.

He will be greatly missed by an unusually large circle of friends throughout the city and county and in this office where for so many years he was an intimate and daily associate he leaves a place that to his employer and fellow workmen will always be unfilled.

HERE TO GET SOME POINTERS

PROMINENT ANDERSON CITIZENS VISITED FORT WAYNE.

Investigating the Feasibility of the Air-Lift System for Waterworks.

Half a dozen prominent citizens of Anderson, including city officials and President J. J. Netterville, of the Anderson gas company, were in Fort Wayne yesterday afternoon to inspect the city waterworks system.

The waterworks system at Anderson is said to be distressing and the city is setting about to improve it. At present river water is used, but it is the intention to discard it for a supply to be secured from deep wells, and the main idea of the trip to Fort Wayne was to investigate the air-compressor system of lifting the water from the wells.

Occupying two hacks and chaperoned by G. Max Hufmann and Frank H. Cutshall, of the Fort Wayne Gas company's offices, the party was driven to the waterworks station, where the compressors were shown in operation, and afterwards the gentlemen were driven about the city.

The party left last evening for home. It was composed of J. J. Netterville, M. W. Atherton, D. F. Mustard, J. K. Johnson, H. H. Rodgers and C. F. Heritage.

REDISTRIBUTION ORDER BY SUPERINTENDENT.

An Examination of the Eighteen Districts Show Each One is Very Large.

The periodical change of policemen from one beat to another was announced by Superintendent Gorsline. To familiarize all the patrolmen with every part of the city these changes have been deemed advantageous, but it has been months since such a radical transposition was made. The officers assigned to the eighteen patrol districts in the city, with the corresponding changes, are as follows:

White from district 9 to district 1; Lavanway from 10 to 2; Elliott from 5 to 3; Borgman from 8 to 4; Goeglein from 17 to 5; Kelley remains on 6; Rohrer from 13 to 7; Chevlron from 4 to 8; Thomma from 2 to 9; Heller from 7 to 10; Krauckenberg from 18 to 11; Murphy from 14 to 12; Smith from 16 to 13; McKendry from 11 to 14; Strodel from 1 to 15; Collins from 15 to 16; Richardson from 3 to 17; Trebra from 12 to 18.

To the average layman and reader the above schedule is about as intelligible as Greek or Choctaw unless the key to the puzzle is furnished with the picture. It is scarcely a matter of wonderment that the chiefs of the department of public safety have persistently insisted that the patrolling force of the city is too small to cover the territory assigned to each officer. The city is divided into eighteen police districts, to each of which a single patrolman is assigned, except on down town streets, where two districts merge and where one officer is responsible for one side of the street and another for the opposite side. At district intersections like the transfer corner, Wayne and Calhoun, Lewis and Calhoun and at the Calhoun street railway crossings it is possible for four policemen to meet, but that is the limit. The districts are as follows:

District 1. All that portion of the city lying north of the transfer corner to the rivers and east of Calhoun street, where Main street would intersect with the river if continued; Lakeside is also included in this district.

District 2. All territory west of Calhoun as far as Fulton street, lying between Main street and St. Mary's river.

District 3. The territory east of Calhoun street as far as Clay, lying between Main street and Wayne street.

District 4. The territory west of Calhoun street as far as Fulton and lying between Main and Wayne streets.

District 5. East of Calhoun to Clay, between Wayne and Lewis.

District 6. West of Calhoun to Fairfield avenue, between Wayne and Lewis streets on Calhoun, west on Lewis to Ewing, south to Brackenridge and thence west to Fairfield, the north line being Wayne street.

District 7. East from Calhoun to Clay, between Lewis street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

District 8. West from Calhoun to Fairfield, between Lewis street and the Pennsylvania tracks.

District 9. All the territory lying west of Calhoun street as far as Fairfield avenue and south of the Pennsylvania tracks to the city limits. Patrolmen on this beat and on 7, 8 and 10, are supposed to make all, or nearly all trains at the south depot.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

District 10. From the Pennsylvania depot south to the limits and east to Hanna street.

District 11. All the portion of the city lying south of the Wabash tracks and west of Fairfield avenue.

District 12. All that portion of the city lying south of the Pennsylvania tracks and east of Hanna street. A patrolman would walk about 26 miles a day to cover this beat every day.

District 13. All west of Fulton street, between Jefferson street and St. Mary's river, including Nebraska.

District 14. The territory west of Fulton and Fairfield, lying between Jefferson and Taylor streets.

District 15. The territory east of Clay street to the limits lying between the Maumee river and Jefferson street and including all the portion of the city north of Maumee avenue as far as the river.

District 16. All east of Clay street to the limits, lying between Jefferson street and Maumee avenue and the Pennsylvania tracks.

District 17. All of the Ninth ward, lying north of Third street.

District 18. All of the Ninth ward, lying south of Third street. In the Ninth ward the line of the Lake Shore road marks the eastern limits, with the exception of the north side park.

Occasionally individuals—and newspapers, too—try to say funny things about the proverbial absence of a policeman when needed, but an examination of a city map with the above district boundaries marked will take all the humor out of the situation. If a man happens to start on a policeman's trail in one of the larger districts and walked at the rate of four miles an hour, and, providing the policeman had an hour the start of him, it would take the man over four hours to catch up with the officer.

A NEW CONCERN.

A new concern has been formed in Fort Wayne consisting of several young business men, who have purchased the Fort Wayne Iron Store company, which is the mail order department of the firm of Mossman, Yarnelle & Co. The members of the new concern are John B. Rolape, at present manager of the trimming department of the Fort Wayne Iron Store company; Charles W. Lang, now head bookkeeper at the Wayne Knitting mills, and Elwood Craig, who has been manager of the Fort Wayne Iron Store company for the past year and a half. The company has been incorporated for $10,000 and it is the intention of the new owners to enlarge and push the business.

DR. DODGE IS DEAD

WELL KNOWN VETERINARY SURGEON IS NO MORE.

WAS WIDELY KNOWN CITIZEN

JAMES H. CHANEY EXPIRES AT ABOIT STATION.

OTHER DEATHS AND FUNERAL NOTICES TODAY.

Dr. Arthur Dodge, V. S., one of the best known characters in Fort Wayne and a resident of the city for over forty years, died this afternoon shortly after noon at his residence, presided over by his sister, Mrs. A. C. Perrin, at No. 515 West Berry street. The immediate cause of his death was dropsy, complicated with an affection of the liver and other kindred disorders. His age was 65 years and some months and he leaves no direct relatives save his sister, Mrs. Perrin. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but will be announced in the morning. It is probable that the interment will be on Tuesday, will be at Lindenwood and services will be from the house.

AN UNIQUE PERSON.

Arthur Dodge was an unique person and enjoyed as wide an acquaintance as any man in his station who ever lived in the city. Without the advantage of an early education he fought his way bravely through the world, acquired a wonderful fund of general knowledge, applied himself to anything that presented itself and was generally successful in anything he undertook. He was always a fruitful earner, but like many men of like dispositions he never accumulated any wealth further than was necessary to tide against the exigencies of the present. He was born at Plymouth, Mich., March 13, 1837, and lived there with his parents until he was about 18 years of age. His father was a carriage trimmer and a wage-earner, but could offer his son neither education nor opportunity. At the age of 18 young Dodge left the parental roof and located at Fon du Lac, Wis., where he remained about three weeks. He then drifted into Fort Wayne and this city has been his home ever since. He came here before the war as a young man and was irregularly a hostler, driver, clerk, horseman, stableman and general utility man in any position. In 1873 he was married to Miss Ella Brown, of this city, and the marriage was a singularly happy one, the domesticity of which was broken only a little over a month ago, Mrs. Dodge's death occurring Aug. 5 of this year. During the long period of residence in the city "Doc" Dodge made no enemies. He was brusque in manner, fearless in the expression of his opinions, usually took the opposite side of any question, but did it so gracefully that it was apparently impossible for him to create offense.

SUCCESSFUL PRACTITIONER.

He acquired his title of doctor honestly and by honest endeavor. Many years ago he took up the study of veterinary, surgery and medicine and pursued so faithfully and intelligently that he secured and held a large practice and his professional career was eminently successful. He was at one time, early in the '70's, the manager of the Aveline house. Later he ventured in other lines and was a groceryman, a fish merchant, a restauranteur, a saloonkeeper, a patent medicine man, a safe agent, speculator and during later years was identified with his first love in the livery business, being at the time of his death a member of the firm of Riedmiller & Dodge, the East Wayne street livery owners. Since the death of his wife in August last, the friends of the deceased noticed a marked change in his demeanor and while he apparently was endeavoring to keep up his familiar cheerfulness, it was easily seen that he did it with an effort. About two weeks ago he first commenced to seriously complain and a day or two later went to his house and to bed, telling his friends before he left on his last visit down town that he never expected to get back again. He said that he knew the end was near and said that he felt no fear and had no concern of what the near future had in store for him. Doctor Dodge was a peculiar man in more ways than can be recited in a brief obituary and with the faults which he wore on his sleeve he possessed virtues and traits that only those who knew him well could appreciate.

CHANEY.

James A. Chaney, for upwards of fifty years a resident of Allen county, died yesterday morning at his home in Aboit Station, after an illness from dropsy and heart trouble extending over a period of several years. The deceased was 80 years old and leaves a wife and several children, one of whom is John Chaney, of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Chaney was born in Ohio, but moved to Allen county soon after his marriage and purchased the farm which he has occupied for more than half a century. He was held in the highest esteem in the locality in which he made his home, and has many friends in Fort Wayne, who will be grieved to hear of his death. Mr. Chaney was a devout member of the Third Presbyterian church in this city, and Dr. McGaw will conduct the funeral services, which will probably be held on Monday.

LINN.

Emma Linn, 15 years of age, an inmate of St. Vincent's orphan asylum, died at that institution Friday from organic heart disease.

The remains were shipped to Huntington today for interment.

KELTY.

Patrick J. Kelty, seventy-four years of age, died Friday night at his home, 1331 East Creighton avenue, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Kelty was a native of Ireland, but came to America in early life and had been a resident of Fort Wayne for many years.

Surviving are the widow and three sons—E. N. Kelty and T. W. Kelty, of this city, and J. P. Kelty, of Valparaiso. The remains will be interred at Plymouth, the former home of the deceased.

BRATTAIN.

London S. Brattain, 32 years of age, died at noon today at Hope hospital from peritonitis which followed an attack of appendicitis. Mr. Brattain was a young farmer residing at Lea and had been ill about five days when he was brought to this city for treatment Thursday evening.

He was born in Hardin county, O., and came to Allen county about nine years ago. Surviving are the widow, Mr. Brattain's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Brattain, of Maysville, and eleven brothers and sisters, as follows: Henry H., Ralph and Robert Brattain, of Antwerp, O.; Charles, Carolus and Chase Brattain, of Maysville; Mrs. Dora Peterson, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Olive Wells, of Berne; Mrs. Anna Deiwester, of Payne, and the Misses Edith and Leo Brattain, of Maysville.

The remains will be removed to the home of the parents at Maysville and the funeral services will be held on Monday or Tuesday.

FUNERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Dickinson.—Funeral services of Capt. Philemon Dickinson will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of J. D. Gumpper, 121 West Creighton avenue, Rev. Dr. McGaw and Rev. Dr. Moffat officiating. The pall bearers will be Col. R. S. Robertson, Col. C. B. Oakley, Capt. F. W. Keil, O. B. Fitch, William Creighton, sr., and W. A. Diffenderfer.

Muldoon.—Funeral services of Mrs. Jane Muldoon will be held Monday morning at 8:30 from the residence, 131 West Leith street, and at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Interment at Hesse Cassel.

Hatfield.—Funeral services of Mrs. Caroline Adelia Hatfield will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 611 Archer avenue. The interment will occur at the Hatfield cemetery.

Pisano.—Funeral services of Mrs. Sophia Pisano will be held from the residence, Wallace and Force streets. Sunday afternon at 2 o'clock.

SLAIN BY ROBBERS.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—A. B. Chinn, of the firm of Chinn & Todd, merchants in this city, one of the most prominent business men in Kentucky, was shot to death in his home by two masked burglars at 3:30 a. m. today. His son, Asa, who heard the noise, rushed to his father's rescue and opened fire on the burglars through a closed door. The burglars returned the fire and Asa was perhaps mortally wounded.

A case of diphtheria was reported today at 421 Holman street.

Scarcity of coal and the high prices of fuel mean cold homes and much sickness.

"While I don't mean to recommend the use of '77' instead of firewood, I do know that its use prevents and breaks up Colds, prevalent even now, and promise to be more so as the season advances."

Your office or shop may be cold, your home poorly heated, but if you take "77" you will be freer from sickness, and recover sooner than your neighbor.

The use of Dr. Humphreys' "77" restores the checked circulation, starts the blood coursing through the veins and breaks up a Cold.

COLDS

IS THE PRESIDENT

FORT WAYNE MAN ELECTED BY STATIONARY FIREMEN.

JOHN C. MITCHELL HONORED

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD CHOOSES NEW ROSTER.

SEVEN VICE PRESIDENTS

PRESIDENT MITCHELL LONG IN UNION LABOR.

The closing session of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen was brought to a close this morning with the election of officers for the ensuing year and the selection of Rochester, N. Y., as the place of holding the convention in 1903. Following were the officers elected today:

JOHN C. MITCHELL.
Elected president of International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen today.

International President—John C. Mitchell, Fort Wayne.

First Vice President—Timothy Healy, New York.

Second Vice President—Michael Flannagan, Boston.

Third Vice President—H. W. Bausch, Toledo.

Fourth Vice President—J. W. McGibbon, Bay City, Mich.

Fifth Vice President—D. V. Gerton, Lima, Ind.

Sixth Vice President—J. F. Kolpack, Detroit, Mich.

Seventh Vice President—H. L. Ezell, Chicago.

General Secretary and Treasurer—C. L. Shamp, Toledo, Ohio.

The election of seven vice presidents in place of four this year was due to the abolishing of the executive board, the officers acting in an executive capacity. Resolutions were passed thanking the city, Mayor Berghoff and local union No. 40 for the hospitality shown the delegates during their visit in Fort Wayne, after which the final adjournment was made.

The election of John C. Mitchell, of this city, to the office of international president of the brotherhood is an honor well bestowed and is one that will be greatly appreciated not only by Mr. Mitchell, but by union labor generally in Fort Wayne. It is the first time that a Fort Wayne man has been elected to the national presidency of any branch of union labor. Mr. Mitchell has been affiliated with unions for more than thirty years and has always taken a prominent part in union matters in this city. He organized the local union of stationary firemen and has been its president since it was organized. Last year Mr Mitchell was elected second vice president of the brotherhood and his election to the highest office this year was by unanimous vote.

MITCHELL KEEPS MUM.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 11.—President Mitchell arrived at strike headquarters from New York shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. He was immediately taken in hand by interviewers, but he steadfastly declined to talk of his New York trip for publication. In answer to a question why he should maintain such extreme reticence regarding his visit, he said:

"I think the best interests of the operators, the miners and the public will be subserved by my remaining silent."

Mr. Mitchell's attention was called to the letter of Vice President Wilcox, of the Delaware & Hudson company, to President Roosevelt, in which he maintains that the miners' union is an illegal organization. The strike leader hesitated to say anything for a moment and then replied:

"The miners' union is organized along the same lines as all labor unions in the country. If the miners' organization is illegal so are all the others; and I say our union is not illegal."

HALF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRHAL IN NATURE.

Catarrhal Diseases are Most Prevalent in Winter.

IS THERE NO WAY OF ESCAPE FROM THEM?

Pe-ru-na Never Fails to Cure Catarrh Wherever Located.

There are some things which are as sure as fate, and can be relied on to occur to at least one-half of the human family unless means are taken to prevent.

First, the climate of winter is sure to bring colds.

Second, colds not promptly cured are sure to cause catarrh.

Third, catarrh improperly treated is sure to make life short and miserable.

Catarrh spares no organ or function of the body. It is capable of destroying sight, taste, smell, hearing, digestion, secretion, assimilation and excretion.

It pervades every part of the human body, head, throat, stomach, bowels, bronchial tubes, lungs, liver, kidneys, bladder and other pelvic organs.

Catarrh of The Head.

Mr. D. R. Ramsey writes in a recent letter from Pine Bluff, Ark., the following:

"My son, Leon Ramsey, four years of age, suffered with catarrh of the head for eighteen or twenty months. He took one bottle of your Peruna and could hear as good as ever."—D. R. RAMSEY.

Catarrh of The Nose.

Mr. Herman Ehlke, 932 Orchard street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I am entirely cured of my catarrh of the nose by your Peruna. My case was a severe one."—Herman Ehlke.

Catarrh of The Throat.

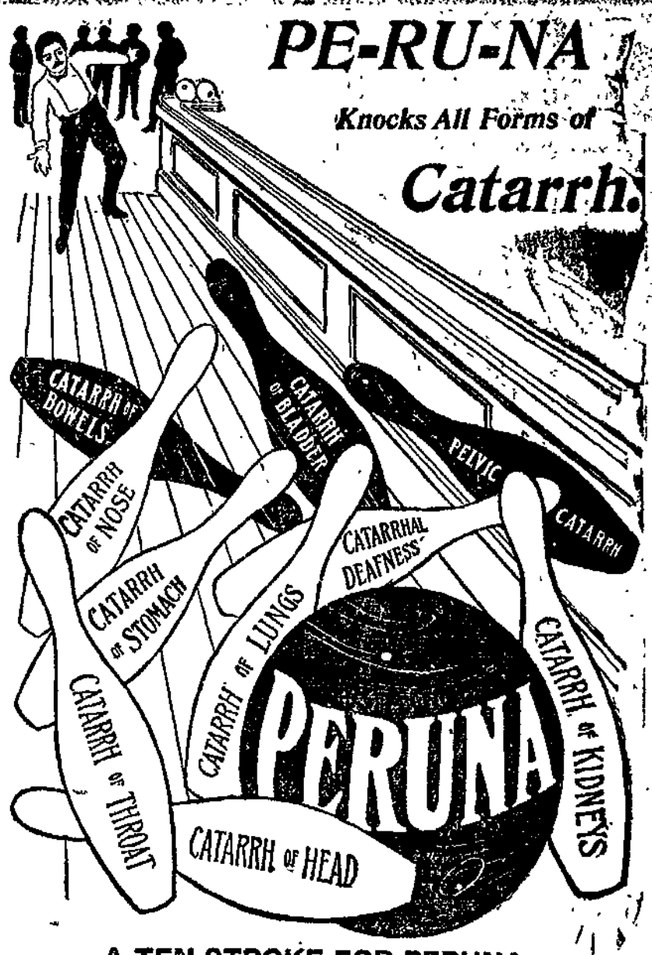
B. H. Runyan, Salesville, O., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the throat for five years. I was induced to try Peruna. I have used five bottles and am perfectly well."—B. H. Runyan.

Catarrh of The Ear.

Mr. Archie Godin, 188 Beech street, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

"Peruna has cured me of catarrh of the middle ear. I feel better than I have for several years."—Archie Godin.



A TEN STROKE FOR PERUNA.

Catarrh of The Lungs.

Mrs. Emilie Kirckhoff, Ada, Minn., writes:

"Through a violent cold contracted last winter, I became afflicted with catarrh of the nose, which in a short time affected my lungs. I took Peruna which cured me thoroughly. I now feel better than I have for forty years."—Mrs. Emilie Kirckhoff.

Catarrh of The Bladder.

Mr. John Smith, 311 S. Third street, Atchison, Kan., writes:

"I was troubled with catarrh of the urethra and bladder for two years. At the time I wrote to you I was under the care of my home doctor, and had been for four months.

"I followed your directions but two months, and can say Peruna cured me of that trouble."—John Smith.

Catarrh of The Bowels.

Mr. Henry Entzion, South Bend, Ind., writes:

"The doctor said I had catarrh of the bowels and I took his medicine, but with no relief. I was getting worse all the time.

"Before I had taken a half bottle of Peruna I felt like a new man."—Henry Entzion.

Catarrh of The Kidneys.

Peter J. Unger, Hawley, Pa., writes:

"I think that I am perfectly cured of catarrh of the kidneys by Peruna, as I have no trouble of any kind."—Peter J. Unger.

Catarrh of The Stomach.

A. W. Graves, of Hammond, Ind., writing to Dr. Hartman, says:

"I am well of catarrh of the stomach after suffering two years. I have taken five bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin and I feel like a new man now."—A. W. Graves.

Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Katie Lochman, Lafayette, Ind., writes:

"I had pelvic catarrh, pain in the abdomen, back, had stomach trouble and headache caused by catarrh. I followed your directions; took Peruna and Manalin according to directions, and how happy I feel that I am relieved of such a distressing ailment."—Miss Katie Lochman.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Wheat opened quiet and easy. Weakness in corn and favorable weather in the west section of the country were the local influences. Light receipts with extremely poor grading helped to support prices. December opened ⅛@¼c lower at 69¾@69⅞c. Later there was fair buying on predictions of rain, which caused a slight rally, sales being made at 70⅛c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 347 cars, which, with local receipts of 111 cars—one of contract grade—made total receipts for the three points of 958 cars, against 931 cars last week and 854 a year ago.

Good commission house buying continued throughout the session and a strong feeling developed, December closing ¾c higher at 70¾c.

A large crop yield as shown by the government report, together with prospects of a heavy movement caused a weaker opening in corn. Offerings were quite liberal early in the session, but there was little demand. December opened ⅛ to ⅝c lower at 47⅛c to 47⅜c and the first half hour of trading was around the lower figures. With prospects of quite general rains within the next forty-eight hours a lively demand developed and there was a rally to 47⅞c. Local receipts were 213 cars, with 31 cars contract grade.

The market held steady during the latter part of the day. December sold up to 47⅞@48c and the close was a shade over yesterday's at 47¼@47⅜c.

Oats opened weak due to the government report which showed the present crop would be the largest on record. At the decline shorts bought May and elevator interests also replenished their stocks, causing a rally. December opened ⅛c to ¼c lower at 31¼c to 31⅜c and sold to 31⅛c. Shorts began to cover at the decline and there was a gradual advance to 31⅞c. Local receipts were 190 cars.

Provisions opened steady on higher prices for hogs with small receipts. Trading was dull. January pork opened 2½c lower at $15.52½; January lard 2½c higher at $8.85, and ribs were a shade lower at $8.20.

THE CLOSE.

Prices at the close were as follows:

Wheat—Dec., 70¾c; May, 71⅞@72c.

Corn—Oct., 52c; Dec., 47¾@47⅞c; May, 42⅞c.

Oats—Oct., 31⅛c; old, 27c; Dec., 31⅛@31¼c; old, 27⅝c; May, 32⅝c.

Pork—Oct., $16.90; Jan., $15.70; May, $14.87½.

Lard—Oct., $10.35; Dec., $9.20; Jan., $8.97½; May, $8.40.

Ribs—Oct., $11.50; Jan., $8.30; May, $7.87½.

Rye—Dec., 48½c.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 11.—Dealings were in light volume at the opening and changes were small and mostly declines. Large blocks of Union Pacific and Atchison were offered, but the losses were restricted to fractions.

Some large selling orders were executed in various stocks, especially Reading, Atchison and Missouri Pacific. Declines in prominent stocks ran from 1 to 2 points. The weakness was very general and there was no indication of support until the shorts commenced to cover. On the rally Louisville sold about a point above yesterday's close, but the recoveries otherwise were trivial. Lackawanna and New Jersey Central advanced 2 points each.

There was a dull, hardening movement until the appearance of the disappointing bank statement produced a disorderly slump. Prices gave way by large fractions between transactions in some of the principal sufferers, notably Missouri Pacific, which lost 3⅞; St. Paul 3¼ and Atchison 2¾. Declines reached 2 or more points in Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Sugar. There were a few feverish rallies on professional short covering, but the closing was active and weak.

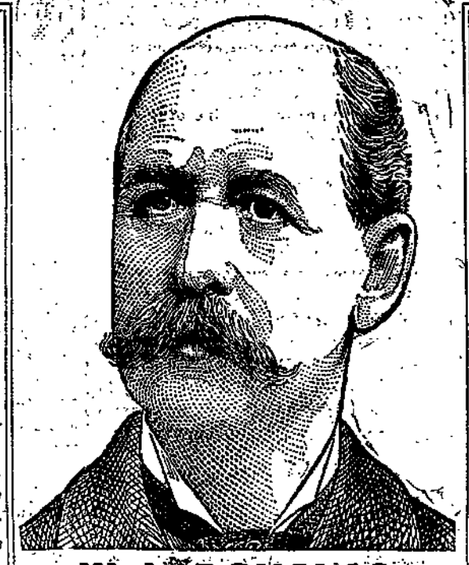
A One-Half Interest in the Entire Business, consisting of a Large Shoe Manufactory, Tannery, and 64 Retail Shoe Stores located in 45 of the Principal American Cities, is now offered for sale to the public in the form of Preferred Stock

Paying 7% Annual Dividends

Preferred Stock In the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. Pays Better Than Savings Banks or Government Bonds.

Every Dollar of Stock Offered the Public Has Behind It More Than a Dollar's Worth of Actual Assets.

W. L. Douglas owns and operates more retail shoe stores than any other manufacturer in the United States.



W. L. Douglas Continues to Own One-Half the Business, And is to Remain The Active Head Of the Concern.

This Business Is Not an Undeveloped Prospect—It is a Demonstrated Dividend Payer.

This is an opportunity to become a partner in one of America's most successful manufacturing concerns.

W. L. DOUGLAS,

Founder and Proprietor of the Business, Explains the Proposition to the Public, and Recommends the Purchase of the Preferred Stock as a Safe, Sound, Conservative Investment.

To those who are at all familiar with the shoe or leather trade it is well known that I have been one of the largest, as well as most successful, manufacturers and retailers of men's Goodyear Welt (hand-sewed process) shoes in the world. The upbuilding of the business has been my life-work. I have been eminently successful, creating a business that is permanent and beyond injury in periods of business depression.

The W. L. Douglas Shoe business is established on an entirely different plan from that of any other shoe concern. The system of manufacturing enables the manager to determine every day whether the shoes are being manufactured at a satisfactory profit. If anything wrong should occur in any department of the factory the system informs him where to find it, and it is stopped at once. The Douglas system also guarantees a full day's work every day, which keeps the manufacturing expense at a minimum.

The Douglas product is marketed in an original way, producing quick returns and very small losses. The method by which the goods are sold has made a place for the Douglas shoe in all the principal cities and towns in the United States. The business is secure against any ordinary competition.

The business has been steadily advertised for nearly twenty years, and the quality of the goods kept up to the highest standard, until now W. L. Douglas shoes are worn by more people in all stations of life than any other make.

The steady call upon the dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes insures a large and increasing business. The 64 retail stores in 45 American cities, owned and operated by me, take a portion of the factory's product. This is all spot cash business. I also sell to the retail shoe dealers throughout the country, having usually but one agent in a town.

Thus, in selling the product of the factory through my own retail stores, as well as to retail shoe dealers in towns and cities where I have no store, I keep the factory constantly employed, turning out 7440 pairs of shoes per day. There has been no change in the selling price or terms in eighteen years, the dealer always making the same profit, thereby buying with confidence. The short credit allowed prevents the dealer from getting overstocked.

My object in disposing of a half-interest in the business is primarily that it be perpetuated and extended. The name, W. L. Douglas, which is accepted everywhere as a standard of merit, has been applied principally to men's Goodyear Welt (hand-sewed process) shoes. It can as well be applied to all kinds and prices of men's, women's and children's shoes. There is practically no limit to the possibilities of extending the business.

The business has always been immensely profitable. Were my only aim to accumulate money, this stock would not be offered for sale. The perpetuation and extension of the business by the infusion of new interests into it is my chief desire.

There has not been a year in the past twelve when the business has not earned in actual cash much more than an amount necessary to pay seven per cent annual dividend on one million dollars, and the past four years the business has more than doubled and is still growing.

I began the business in Brockton in a small way 26 years ago, and from time to time have increased it, until at present a business amounting to nearly $5,000,000 annually is transacted.

As an evidence of the prosperity of the business, the fact is cited that from 727,824 pairs of shoes sold in the year ending July 1, 1898, the business has steadily increased to 1,788,000 pairs for the year ending July 1, 1902, or more than a million pair increase.

The manufacturing plant is right up to date, equipped with every modern device. About one-half of the present factory has been built and equipped with machinery and paid for in the past four years. A new power plant, sufficiently large to meet all demands that may be made upon it for several years was installed two years ago. With the existing manufacturing plant, facilities are provided for a largely increased business. The manufacturing plant, machinery, and all the 64 retail stores throughout the country are free from incumbrance of any sort, and the company has sufficient cash on hand to conduct a business of $5,000,000 annually without borrowing money.

Practically all the stock of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. is owned by me. I am the president of the corporation. I am 57 years of age, have no other large interests, and desire to provide for the perpetuation of the business.

I am in perfect health, physically sound and mentally active, and I expect to continue at the head of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. as long as I live. The business has always paid a good profit, and is now paying better than ever.

I believe that the best way to perpetuate the business is to let the people own it and control it. I have, therefore, capitalized the business for two million dollars, one million dollars of which is preferred stock and one million dollars common stock.

The preferred stock is offered the public at par. The shares are of the value of $100 each, and will be sold at their face value only. All stock is sold by me direct.

The preferred stock, which is offered to the public at par, is non-cumulative and preferred both as to dividends and assets. Every dollar's worth of stock offered the public in this successful business has more than a dollar's worth of actual, tangible assets behind it.

This investment is the chance of a lifetime. It is as safe as savings banks or government bonds, and returns the holder of the stock double the dividends.

Dividends will be declared semi-annually, payable on January 15 and July 15, and will be payable in funds current in New York or Boston.

There is nothing whatever of a speculative nature about the purchase of this stock. It is an old established business, manufacturing a staple article of merchandise. The business has been continuously successful for more than a quarter of a century, and is more prosperous to-day than at any period of its history. It should be remembered that I am to remain as president of the new corporation, and that I retain a half interest in the business. My interest in the business is represented by the common stock, and I cannot receive one cent of dividend on my stock until the full 7 per cent dividend has been paid on all the preferred stock.

As a safe, secure and permanent investment, I have never known of anything better, and I am president of the People's Savings Bank, and director of the Home National Bank, both of Brockton, Mass.

I do not hesitate to predict that within one year the stock will be selling at a premium.

To my friends and patrons of many years I unhesitatingly recommend the purchase of this stock as a safe, sound, conservative investment.

Stock is Now Ready for Issue, and Subscriptions are Solicited

Mr. Peter [illegible] of Pearl St., Augusta, Me., was a Very Sick Man.

Physicians were baffled over his case. But he took "Blood Wine" and was cured. Read what he says:

"A very hard cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine given me would relieve. During many months I suffered untold misery, my lung trouble growing worse. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw 'Blood Wine' advertised and decided to try it. After taking it regularly I was greatly pleased with its results and am now well. My astounding recovery was a surprise to my physicians. Those whom I have since advised to use it, believe with me that it is the greatest medicine in the world."

Remarkable cures seems invariably to be the result of taking "Blood Wine," not only for Coughs, Colds, and Sore Lungs, but in cases of pronounced Consumption it has killed the germs, toned up the system, put flesh on bones that almost protruded from the skin, and made sufferers of a lifetime well, hearty and happy. COMING CHANGES

CHARLEY SPANLEY WILL QUIT PENNSYLVANIA'S EMPLOY.

SOME PROMOTIONS FOLLOW

MESSRS. ROBERTS, MOORE AND HIBBINS AFFECTED.

BIG WEEK END EXCURSION

PENNSYLVANIA AND NICKEL PLATE TAKE CROWDS.

Some changes in the working forces of Chief Clerk Robert Learmonth and Engineer of Maintenance of Way Blake, of the Pennsylvania, will occur tonight. Charles A. Spanley resigns as stenographer to Mr. Learmonth; B. J. Roberts, stenographer for Mr. Blake, will be transferred to Mr. Learmonth's office; H. H. Moore, who has been working in a clerical capacity in Mr. Blake's office, becomes the latter gentleman's stenographer, and H. A. Hibbins, a clerk in the department, will be advanced to the position to be vacated by Mr. Moore. Mr. Spanley will take a position with W. K. Noble, the hoop dealer and manufacturer, next Monday. He has been with the Pennsylvania offices over four years, commencing as stenographer to Master Car Builder J. A. Graham and passing through a series of promotions until he reached Mr. Learmonth's office, which is the best position in that line of work the offices have to give. It was this latter fact that led Mr. Spanley to resign. He is industrious, competent and ambitious and sees a better chance for advancement in the new field of labor. The other changes are in line of promotion and each man affected is worthy of the promotion given him. Each has been with the maintenance of way department some time, Messrs. Roberts and Moore having been employed there two or three years. Mr. Roberts resigned several weeks ago to take a position with the American Bridge company, but did not like to live in Pittsburg and he came back to Mr. Blake. Mr. Hibbins is a son of Thomas Hibbins, the foreman of the roofing department of the Pittsburg.

CHICAGO EXCURSION.

Four hundred and forty people left this city for Chicago at noon today, 340 of them on the Pennsylvania train and 100 on the Nickel Plate's special train. From every station along the line come reports of additions to the crowds on the trains and it is presumed that every car will be filled when the Windy City is reached. For this business the Pennsylvania ran three sections of train 39, which leaves the city at 12:15. The first section was the regular train, the second carried the excursionists from this city and the third was designed for the excursionists to be picked up at the stations along the line. This business coming at the same time that the western veterans are returning from the encampment, making extra trains a necessity, has compelled the Pennsylvania company to borrow cars. As a result one of the sections of 39 was made up entirely of cars borrowed from the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Lackawanna and the Santa Fe. There were two sections of 15 and 21 this morning and it is probable that there will be two sections of 9 and 11 this evening.

ATTENDING THE FAIR.

All the shops of the city were more or less crippled today by the absence of employes, who laid off to attend the fair. Yesterday the Bass blacksmith shop was closed for repairs to its engine, but this morning it resumed operations. Fully one-third of the force failed to show up, however, and each gang worked shorthanded. The wheel moulders and their helpers did not report in sufficient numbers this morning to justify operations and Foreman Robert Cran sent those who did report back home and that part of the foundry is idle today. At the Pittsburg and the Wabash shops many men are off duty, but work there was not so greatly interrupted as at the Bass shops. The shops have been busy all summer, with very few holidays, and the heads of the several departments are inclined to look with leniency upon the truant ones.

MOVED TO NEW OFFICE.

William K. Noble, the hoop manufacturer and dealer, this morning moved his office headquarters from his residence, on Brackenridge street, to the new shop and office recently erected on Hayden street, adjacent to the Pennsylvania railway tracks.

A DEAL IN BOILERS.

A telegram from George T. Ladd, who is east in the interest of the Bass Foundry and Machine company, notified the company this morning of the sale of three 100-horse power boilers to the American Steel and Wire company. The boilers will become a part of the steel company's Joliet plant. This order and several others that have been placed with the Bass company gives the boiler department all the business it can attend to for awhile.

NEEDHAM ASSUMES CHARGE.

Ed F. Needham, whose appointment to the office of acting master mechanic of the Wabash was mentioned a few days ago, assumed the duties of that office this morning. Among the first business transacted by Mr. Needham was a conference with Traveling Engineer A. S. Mead and Fuel Inspector E. A. Sollitt, who came up from Peru for that purpose. Mr. and Mrs. Needham are stopping with Mrs. Bond, 374 Baker street.

Herman Prange, of the Wabash blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

GONE TO LAKE JAMES.

Conductor Elmer Harper, Engineer H. W. Frase and Clerk C. W. Bedson, of the Nickel Plate; Frank Belching, Al Hazzard and Mathias Monper composed a fishing party which left the city this afternoon for Lake James, where they will remain about two weeks. They will occupy Oakwood cottage, on Spring Point, while at the lake, and expect some fine sport.

THE ACCIDENTS.

D. C. McKeeman, a car builder, had a finger crushed yesterday while in the act of putting a stringer under a car. Thomas Hughes, in the employ of the Kerr Murray company, had his back and hips injured by falling from a scaffold at Chicago yesterday. He is at his home in this city. Mr. Hughes is a member of the construction gang engaged in putting in gas plants. D. B. Stanbury had a finger injured while handling freight at the Pennsylvania transfer house yesterday.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

L. Schmidt, the janitor at the Pittsburg pattern shops, is sick and off duty.

Machinist Charley Taylor, of the Bass shops, is taking a lay off to look after some private business.

Chief Engineer Henry Zauner, of the Jenney power station, is out after a confinement on account of tonsilitis.

H. C. Eix, a blacksmith at the Pittsburg shops, has gone to Monroeville, Ind., to spend a few days with relatives.

Wabash Air Brake Instructor H. C. Eddinger arrived in the city yesterday. The air brake car has been here several weeks.

A piston rod lathe has arrived at the Pennsylvania shops and will be installed at once. This lathe has a fourteen-foot bed.

James Chamberlain resumed charge of the roundhouse gates of the Pittsburg this morning, having returned from the encampment.

James Merriwether, chief clerk at Supt. J. W. Hunter's office, and his family, went to Rome City this afternoon to spend Sunday.

Erecting Engineer Frank Passino, of the Kerr Murray works, has returned from Coshocton, Ohio, where he was engaged on a gas plant.

A. S. Durnell, foreman of the east car shop tinners, is recovering from a severe illness and will resume his duties at the shops next Monday.

The Santa Fe has adopted a plan for the construction of more than 300 miles of new line in Oklahoma at an expenditure approximating $2,500,000.

In order to relieve the soft coal congestion, the Philadelphia and Reading road has loaned ten of its largest freight engines to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Thursday there arrived at Lafayette over the Big Four 110 members of the Western Society of Engineers, who spent several hours at the Purdue university.

Pittsburg Firemen H. E. Crawford and W. X. Anderson are off duty, the former on account of the death of his grandfather and the latter to go to Chicago on a visit.

H. L. Dinklage, B. Blough and G. E. Wagner have been advanced from flagmen on the Pennsylvania to conductors, and Brakeman C. E. Troxel has been promoted to flagman.

Transfer Clerk K. D. Fitch and Caller J. W. Place, of the Pittsburg freight house, are off duty, the former on account of sickness and the latter on account of an accident.

A. O. Dayton, superintendent of the West Shore and Seashore railway, was stricken with paralysis at his home in Camden, N. J., Thursday, and is in a critical condition.

Motive Power Superintendent D. F. Crawford, of the Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Crawford have returned from Lac du Flambeau, Wis., where they spent a week in fishing and other pastimes.

The anthracite coal strike seems a good thing for the Norfolk and Western, as in the fourth week of September its earnings increased $107,440 over the corresponding week of 1901.

In order to relieve congestion and expedite the movement of westbound freight, the Pennsylvania will establish an additional receiving yard at Pitcairn at a cost of $150,000, with a capacity of 1,000 cars.

It is stated that the St. Louis and San Francisco has in contemplation removing its headquarters from Springfield, Mo., to St. Louis, and that a large building will be erected for their accommodation.

Frank Rogers, the Pittsburg fireman, was removed from the hospital to his father's home, on Lafayette street, yesterday. He is getting along nicely. Mr. Rogers was hurt by jumping from his engine a couple of weeks ago.

William G. Good and Ed Jacobs have taken positions at the electric works. The works were in operation this afternoon, contrary to custom, on account of closing down Thursday afternoon on account of the races.

Nickel Plate engine 102 went into service today on the Third district, with Engineer P. W. Donohue and Fireman G. W. Conklin in the cab. This engine was turned out of the shops this week, after receiving a general overhauling.

Adam Koehl, foreman of the core room of the Pennsylvania brass foundry at Allegheny, is visiting relatives and friends in the city. He formerly resided in Fort Wayne, going to Allegheny when the company moved the brass foundry there.

F. E. McDonald, a special apprentice at the Pittsburg shops, has returned from the east, where he spent three weeks visiting railway shops in Philadelphia, Altoona, New York and Pittsburg. He also visited relatives and friends in those cities.

It is understood that the engineers and firemen on the Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Western, now that it has become a part of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, will be given standard wages. Heretofore they have been considerably below the wages paid by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

The Twentieth Century train on the Lake Shore road, which makes the run from Chicago to New York in twenty hours, is beginning to be self-supporting. Until just recently it has been run at a great loss to the company. It is stated that the Pennsylvania's "Special," also a twenty-hour train, has been a money-maker from the start. Four dollars excess fare is charged on these trains.

IN HONOR OF CLASS OF 1902

PRETTY RECEPTION GIVEN AT HOPE HOSPITAL.

Event Was a Surprise to the Young Ladies—Music, Decorations and a Feast.

Members of the class of 1902, to be graduated Monday evening from Hope hospital training school for nurses, were guests of honor at a pretty function given Thursday evening at the hospital and the event—arranged as a surprise to the young ladies of the graduating class—was splendidly successful.

The young ladies had been invited to dinner at the home of Mrs. Wright and while they were absent the junior nurses took possession of the large convalescent room and the dining room at the hospital. Advance preparations had been made and deft fingers soon festooned the rooms with a wealth of decorations in white and blue, with cozy nooks improvised here and there. Flowers and palms were used in profusion and the effect was charming.

Guests of the evening were friends of the graduates to the number of sixty-eight, many of them having been patients at the hospital during the past two years, and it was not until all were assembled that the young ladies were summoned from the home where they had dined. The surprise was thorough and complete. Following a musical program, including piano solos by Prof. Higgs and two vocal solos by C. L. Willson, an elaborate banquet was served in the large dining room. The tables were charmingly decorated and the entire room presented a handsome appearance. The souvenirs were small baskets containing violets and smilax tied with white ribbon.

The event was given by the class of 1903 to the members of the class of 1902, the latter including Mrs. Elizabeth E. Wilkinson and the Misses Elizabeth Melville, Chloe A. Criswell, Ada S. Hicks, Harriet O. Miller, Ethel L. Roper and Ida R. Ranck.

THE FAMOUS SHOE FOR WOMEN

There are other folks "who know how," but they DON'T have Queen Quality shoes.

These shoes have all the points of beauty that women seek, but the one great distinguishing feature that characterizes Queen Quality shoes is their knack of perfectly fitting the foot.

Your foot feels at rest the first time—feels "at home"—feels "good."

We'd be glad of the chance to demonstrate this fact. Needn't feel the slightest obligation to buy. Don't mention "the size you wear;" your foot is the only measure we need.

And just think! such shoes for $3.00.

The lace shoes are all fitted with "fast color" eyelets.

SOLE AGENTS.

Four companies of the Eighth regiment, United States troops, passed through the city on a special train over the Nickel Plate yesterday afternoon. The soldiers had been in the Philippines three years and they expressed gladness over the homecoming. The train stopped here twenty minutes.

The railway men who had been off duty on account of the county fair are fast returning to their duties. Among this class is Car Inspector Foreman C. E. Stapleford, Conductor George McCormick and Brakemen F. C. Crawford and L. M. Beltz. Conductor Hindel, who was hurt, and Brakeman J. F. Long, who was in Cleveland on private business, have also returned to work on the Nickel Plate.

H. L. McCoy, of the East Chicago Land company, is the guest of E. Gregg Davis, the general agent. He is here assisting in the arrangements for the free excursion which is to be run to East Chicago and Indiana Harbor tomorrow. The excursion will be run over the Nickel Plate railroad instead of the Pennsylvania, as was first announced. Mr. Albert Erskine, president of the company, will arrive in the city this afternoon and will accompany the special train.

EZRA KENDALL

The Comedian You All Know Comes Next Saturday.

J. J. Rosenthal is in the city in the interests of Ezra Kendall, who comes to the Masonic Temple next Saturday in his latest comedy success, "The Vinegar Buyer," and Kendall is under the management of Liebler & Co., who control such attractions as Voila Allen, Madame Duse, Kyrle Bellew and James O'Neill. Mr. Rosenthall reports business enormous with his new star, who is playing the Grand Opera house, Chicago, this week to its utmost capacity. As one of the papers remarked, "the theater is over-crowded with people and the people are over-crowded with laughter." On the opening night of the comedian's engagement in the Windy City he was called before the curtain and made the following characteristic speech:

"I thank you, my friends, for your kind appreciation of our efforts to amuse you. We are trying our best to give an entertainment that will please you. We make no pretense to literary or dramatic merit; all we want is to give you something to laugh at. I am no actor, and never was one; I am only an accident. I particularly appreciate your kindness, as upon this stage, twenty-one years ago, I was born—as an actor. That's right—when we were twenty-one. Many of you who are now sitting down here(pointing to the parquet) were then up there(pointing to the gallery. I thank you again and now beg you to excuse me, as I have to address an overflow meeting in the adjoining cafe."

LOCAL NEWS.

Mrs. Lem E. Hartman is entertaining Mrs. Ryall, of Cleveland, O.

Rev. John H. Bosch returned today from a business visit in Akron, O.

Dr. Alice Connett has opened dental offices at No. 824 Calhoun street.

Frank Majors underwent an operation for appendicitis at Hope hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Julia Fay Randall will return the early part of next week from an extended visit in New York city.

W. W. Fishack, of Toledo, one of the proprietors of the Fishack Plaster company, is in the city on business.

Mrs. C. Hettler is in Elgin, Ill., attending a meeting of the board of missions of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

Mrs. Rebman and daughter, Miss Eloise, of Kendallville, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Richardson, of Hayden street.

G. E. Bursley, who has been spending several months abroad, sailed this week from Liverpool on the Pennsylvania and will arrive in New York on Wednesday. His sons, Messrs. Joseph and Philip Bursley, will remain in Europe some time longer.

On Tuesday evening neighbors and friends formed a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McLane, of 320 West Fifth street, in honor of Mrs. William Anderson and Miss Daisy Archer, of Connersville, formerly of this city. Music was the main feature of the evening and refreshments were served. Last evening the ladies were again pleasantly surprised at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Langstaff, north of the city.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Pierce was the scene of a pleasant gathering Friday evening, in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary. Pedro was the game of the evening, the prizes for games being won by Mrs. Frank Morgan and Frank Girard; for fourteens by Mrs. George Thompson and William McCaffrey. A two course luncheon was served after the games. Dr. and Mrs. Pierce were presented with a handsome mahogany cabinet by the guests.

MEETINGS CLOSE SUNDAY.

The evangelistic services which have been held in the West Jefferson street Church of Christ during the past few weeks close Sunday evening. The services have been unusually successful, 120 persons having united with the church since the meetings began. There will be a service this evening and a number of persons will be baptized. Sunday afternoon at 3:30 there will be a meeting for men only and the subject will be "Finding a Man." On Monday night Evangelist Wilson will give his illustrated lecture on "Cross and Crown."

SYNOD MEETS AT GOSHEN.

The Indiana synod of the Presbyterian church will hold a meeting at Goshen, beginning Monday and continuing several days, and the pastors of the Presbyterian churches of this city will attend. Dr. Vannuys, pastor of the Goshen church, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his pastorate there next week and Rev. D. W. Moffat, of this city, will preach the anniversary sermon.

HARD TO BEAR.

A young lady in Chicago sent her autograph book to Ezra Kendall, with the request that he write something funny and original. This is what she got, and the peculiar thing about it is her father owns a coal yard:

"The wireless telegraph has come:
"The horseless carriage, too,
"And now, alas, they tell us that
"The coalless winter's due.
"Regards to Mark Hanna.
"President Baer, please write.

WANTED TO REFORM THINGS

TWO STRENUOUS ONES TRY TO CAPTURE THE FAIR.

Failed Because the Police Had Their Own Notions of It—News of the Police.

Two men giving their names as Miller and Rapner were arrested at the fair grounds last evening after they had once been ejected from the premises for disorderly conduct. They were slated for drunkenness and this morning pleaded guilty and were fined $1 and $5 respectively, Rapner getting the larger fine because he seemed to have had the larger jag. They were troublesome during the afternoon and eventually became so boisterous that they were conducted outside the ground and told to go away back somewhere and sit down. They evidently couldn't find any good place to sit and so went back and proceeded to load themselves for bear. They said that they really felt sorry, but that duty demanded that they exterminate the police force and make a general cleaning up of the fair ground. After the smoke of the battle cleared away the two reformers found themselves in the patrol wagon and the fair was going on just the same. In Rapner's pocket were found half a dozen beer mugs which he had evidently stowed away for use in case of emergency.

James Woodworth was up on a charge of plain drunkenness, but his case was continued until Oct. 15, his bond being fixed at $300. Woodworth has been in trouble before and recently his wife was obliged to file affidavits against him in sheer self-protection, and a divorce is pending now if not already granted. There seems to be some doubt of the man's mental responsibility and in order to afford opportunity to investigate that matter the case was continued.

Yesterday several small losses were reported to the police by various persons, but no cases of pocket-picking or "dipping" have yet been suggested this week. Chatelaine watches, scarf pins and an occasional purse have turned up missing, but in a number of cases the goods were found by honest persons and returned to the owners. Miss Clark, of the Journal-Gazette, lost her watch, advertised for it as a sensible newspaper woman should, and had it returned to her next day. The superintendent of police says that he does not believe that there was a professional pickpocket in the city this week.

Officers Borgman, Cheviron, Kelly, McKendry, Strodel, Smith, Thomma, Trebra, White and Blum are the detail from the regular force at the fair grounds this afternoon.

John Techmann, of Bluffton, reported the loss of a pocketbook containing a small sum of money.

Thomas J Baker reports the loss of a valuable setter pup.

BOTH PHONES 119 TO DATE

SAY MAN ONLY, SHALL WORK

STRANGE RELIGIOUS BELIEFS OF A COLONY OF 7,000 PEOPLE, ALL OF WHOM MAY PERISH THIS WINTER.

Creaking wearily, a heavy farm wagon, loaded high with sacks of flour and hauled slowly through the principal streets of Yorkton, the chief town near the Russian Doukhobor settlement, in the northwestern territory of Canada, by eight gaunt, hungry looking men and six hopeless looking women, told a story of religious fanaticism that perhaps has never had its parallel in the history of such manias.

Turning neither to right nor left and heeding not the jests of the spectators, this human freight train crawled at a snail's pace with the huge vehicle over the deeply rutted prairie road. Night and day would this strange procession move over the limitless prairie, scarcely resting until their "village of freedom," more than thirty miles distant, was reached.

Tugging at the stout ropes that harnessed them in pairs together, with bowed heads and in absolute silence, these peculiar people would patiently endure, hour after hour, the most agonizing labor in order to live up to their religious convictions.

The wagon was being taken to the Doukhabor village of Terpennie, and the human beasts of burden were the unfortunate Russians who came to America about four years ago to make new homes in a land where, they were told, they could worship as they pleased and could follow the ancient customs and rites of their forefathers without molestation by the government. The Doukhabors have done so with a vengeance. As a result several thousand of them who have become affected with a most peculiar religious mania will either starve or freeze to death this winter if they do not get aid or come to their senses in time to gather in their crops.

The history of these strange people since they arrived in Canada is a remarkable one. Through the influence of the kind-hearted tsaritza they were permitted to leave Russian territory. Lion hearted men, like Tolstoi and other social reformers, raised funds to enable them to reach a "land of promise." The dominion government gave them a grant of an immense tract of fertile land in the Saskatchewan district, and the way seemed clear for the oppressed people to make good homes, if not a competence.

Full of hope and rejoicing in the prospect of religious and social liberty, 7,000 of the immigrants reached Canada and were finally settled on the reservation set apart for them. They adhered to their religious customs, but worked hard, and, until the present year, appeared to be on the high road to prosperity. Now all is changed. Religious fanaticism of the most aggravated type has taken possession of the Russians, and to all appearances several thousands of them have become burdens on the country.

RESULTS OF FANATICISM.

This "mania," as it is called in the west, first became noticeable several months ago, and the government agents in charge of the settlement attempted to check it. A Russian socialist, whose burning eloquence was more powerful than the calm words of advice of the agents, succeeded, however, in making hundreds of converts to his doctrine in an incredibly short space of time. He traveled through the district preaching and exhorting and found ready listeners everywhere.

The result has been startling, even in this sparsely settled western country, where a religious outbreak must be exceedingly strange to excite more than a passing comment. The scene of the Doukhabor men and women converting themselves into beasts of burden told the pathetic story of religious fanaticism.

The present mania has been reached gradually. The Doukhabors are averse to the shedding of blood. One of the reasons they left Russia was because they were forced into military service. The Canadian government guaranteed them exemption from this and accorded them every social and religious liberty. The Doukhabor religion, when its adherents arrived here, was apparently not finished. It developed unsuspected and impracticable tendencies of an alarming character this year. From the belief that it was a sin to eat flesh, these strange people arrived at the conviction that it was also sinful to eat animal products of any kind, and milk, butter, cheese, eggs, etc., were added to the list of "forbidden fruit."

Another step in this direction was taken under the guidance of the Russian socialist mentioned, and this last "advancement" has resulted in their undoing. If it was wrong to eat the flesh of animals, or their products, the same line of reasoning soon led them to condemn the use of leather boots and leather harness made from the hides of God's creatures. The condemnation of woolen clothing, because wool grows on the bodies of sheep that belong to the Lord, speedily followed. Finally the edict went forth: "It is wrong to make servants of any of the lower animals; to use them for beasts of burden or for any other purpose."

This was generally accepted, and hundreds of cattle, horses and sheep were turned out on the trackless prairie to wander at will. Since that time, for all drawing and hauling purposes and farm operations, men and women take the places of horses and oxen at the plow and on the binders.

In order to prevent the turning loose of every head of cattle possessed by these people, the government has been compelled to seize every animal that remained.

TURNED ANIMALS ADRIFT.

When I visited the settlement of the Doukhabors they had "advanced" still another step in their religious awakening. They said that man is the only animal spoken of in the bible as having to work; therefore no one should possess himself of the animals they had turned adrift on the prairie.

They gathered their immense herds together and drove them night and day to the vast wilderness to the north, which is inhabited only by roving bands of Indians. They had robbed themselves voluntarily of the last resource between themselves and starvation this winter.

The inevitable happened. Reports just to hand state that the Indians were not long in discovering the cattle and immediately drove them far from the confines of civilization to a district where few white men have recently ventured. Government agents have started out to bring back the animals and punish the Indians, but it is feared they will not be successful.

In the meantime the fanatical settlers continue to worship in their strange manner, to follow out their "God given" ideas and to make poor progress with their harvests. In fact, many of them appear to be indifferent to everything but religion, and to be oblivious to the severe winter that is almost upon them.

"Where will it end?" the government officials are anxiously asking each other, and no one seems to be able to answer the question.

The Doukhabors seen by me wore, in some cases, rudely made wooden shoes, and in others shoes made of bark. All had adopted cotton garments of the flimsiest material. With such apparel, which they say they will never give up, the misguided people will be unable to exist in this land of terrible cold longer than one month after winter sets in, more particularly as their diet consists largely of bread, water and vegetables.

The mercury after November drops sometimes to forty below in that section and wretchedness, disease and finally death seem to be the inevitable lot of the Russians if their religious fanaticism does not abate. Some persons in the vicinity think that the advent of cold weather will bring the Doukhabors to their senses. The history of religious manias in other countries and in bygone days does not strengthen this belief.

The government officials are apparently powerless to help the settlers. They offered to buy their stock and to devote this money toward their sustenance during the winter. The Doukhabors immediately took alarm and drove their animals into the wilderness. The only ground on which the Doukhabors can be interfered with is that of insanity, and some steps in this direction may be taken by the government before winter, to save them from a terrible fate.

The Doukhabors have since the mania seized them written to the authorities in different parts of the United States, where the climate is mild, requesting grants of land; so apparently there is some method in their madness. They have, however, received no encouraging replies.

SOME DOUKHABOR CUSTOMS.

Many interesting details of the life, customs and history of the Doukhabors were learned by a visit to the settlement. One of the leading men gives the following account of their departure from Russia and the causes leading up to it.

"We may not lift arms, according to our religion," he said, "and could not enter military service in Russia to fight, with conscience. We were put in the forestry branch of the army and for years we served the term of our conscription in planting and caring for the thousands of acres of trees set out by the Russian government.

"In the reign of the last Nicholas they tried to compel us to carry guns. This we would not do and they drove us from our farms and harried us like wild beasts on the mountains. Our men were imprisoned and our women ill treated. They burned our homes and drove us down toward the Caucasus in winter. There many of our little children died of cold and exposure. In a few years we had made homes in our new place and then the government sent the Cossacks upon us again. They took our crops, our cattle, our money, burned our houses and drove some of our leading men into exile. Many were then sent to the salt mines of Siberia.

"The prisons were full of men whose only crime was that they refused to slay their brethren. Some of my relatives are in Siberia now, at a salt mine near Irkutsk, and although they have been there eighteen years, we cannot get them out. They will die there, exiled and martyred.

"We did all we could to satisfy the Russian government and said that we would do anything except learn to fight. We sent letters and petitions to the czar, but no notice was taken of them. And all the time the cruelty of the Cossacks went on. But the good God gave most of us strength to endure, though it was very dark. And at last the heart of the tsaritza was moved by our sufferings. One of the petitions reached her and she spoke in our behalf.

GOSPEL OF FRESH AIR.

(Boston Evening Transcript.)

If fresh air were only metered and sold at a certain price per thousand cubic feet those who could afford it would be pretty sure to have their living and sleeping rooms thoroughly ventilated. Being about the only thing necessary to our existence that is free, there is altogether too general a tndency on the part of people who pretend to be enlightened to fortify themselves against it. The old-fashioned but false notion that night air is dangerous to health has altogether too much respect shown it in these days when medical science has shown the contrary to be the fact. Every room in a house in which people live or sleep should receive enough of the outer air to keep that which they breathe constantly free from the rapidly accumulating impurities that are incident to the exhalations of any considerable number of people.

We go to church and we get sleepy even when the minister gives us a strong and enlivening sermon. We send our children to school and wonder why they seem dull and enervated on their return. In nine cases out of ten it is the fault of the sexton in the one case and of the teacher or the construction of the building in the other. A revelation on this point has been furnished in the good results that have followed the treatment employed at the sanitarium for consumption at Rutland. Fresh air is about all the tonic or medicine that is supplied the patients. Their reduced blood and weakened bodies are thoroughly oxygenated, not fitfully, but constantly. They live and sleep in the open air in all kinds of weather, and the marked relief which this treatment induces, in many cases reaching positive cures, is the complete vindication of the method.

But if such treatment will work cures, how much greater must be its value in preventing disease. Colds would be less frequent if only air that is being constantly renewed were breathed. Contaminated water breeds typhoid, but not less surely than contaminated air breeds consumption or plants the seeds of pneumonia. Those who suffer most from throat troubles, catarrh and kindred complaints are, as a rule, they who shut out the healing breath of heaven. They breathe the poisoned air of a close room which makes the delicate membranes diseased and sensitive, and thus bring themselves to a condition in which the healthy, normal influences of outdoor life affect them. They are, in a sense, freak people, so adjusted to a poison that a healthy environment is torture to them.

But there is another reason why we should have direct connection with the outer air, especially from our sleeping rooms. It is not enough to give entrance to fresh air; we should also provide an exit for foul air and gases. Within a week this fact has been painfully brought home to us. The French novelist, Zola, died from coal gas asphyxiation. A young man of great promise met his death in the same manner in this city last week. We do not know what the conditions were, but it is more than probable that had provision been made in either case for an amount of fresh air sufficient for healthful sleep it would also have safeguarded the sleeper against the effects of the dadly gas. There is no gift of heaven to man for which we should be more thankful than for the pure air. It was made free that it might be used unstintedly. It is a fundamental condition of physical, mental and moral health. No doubt there are fresh air cranks, but may their tribe incease. They preach a gospel that has been altogether too much ignored.

QUEER DRUGS OF ORIENT

Powdered Rhinoceros Horn a Sovereign Remedy and Tiger Eyes Cure Anything.

At any Chinese drug store you can buy for 25 cents an assortment of dried herbs, insects and other weird things composing a prescription that, it is stated, will cure the ailments of ordinary people, but when it comes to the sickness of a wealthy Chinaman, then there are drugs which are as high in price as their reputed medical virtues.

First in the list of these sovereign remedies is the powder made from a spotted rhinoceros horn. An ordinary rhinoceros horn is said to be less efficacious; the spotted variety is a wonderful cure for intestinal disorders. These horns, which, it is satisfactory to learn, come chiefly from some of the rivers of the Philippines, bring as high as $50 each in the Singapore Chinese drug market. In the old Japanese pharmacopeia they were catalogued as "unicorn horn, at least that is what their "unicorn's" horn is supposed to have been.

Next to spotted rhinoceros come the three tiger remedies—the eyeball, the liver and the blood. As may be imagined, tiger eyeball can only be prescribed for the exceedingly wealthy, the Chinese Astors, Morgans and Vanderbilts; but it is firmly believed there is no disease it will not cure. The tiger liver, when dried and reduced to a powder, is worth its weight in gold all over the Orient. Tiger blood, when evaporated to a sediment at a temperature of 110 degrees, and taken in the form of a powder, is believed by all Asiatics to be the best tonic known, and will make a fine warrior out of the most chicken-hearted.

In desperate cases, when neither spotted rhinoceros horn nor tiger eyeball affords relief, the Chinese physicians prescribe what is known as a majoon. This is a compound of ground pearls and other precious stones, which it is held that nothing but the malign influence of some powerful devil can overcome. A majoon, of course, is high-priced medicine, but it has fallen a good deal in the popular estimation, because the Chinese doctors are suspected of taking advantage of the patient's critical state and craftily substitute a fraudulent powder of glass and mother-of-pearl. In this way they pocket a handsome difference, attributing the death of the patient to a devil even more powerful than the majoon. It would seem that the Chinese medical profession is not above some questionable practices, and is much in need of a system to guarantee the purity of majoons.

Next in price and virtue to the foregoing remedies are the various oils and fats obtained from serpents. The more deadly the serpent, the more potent, apparently, are its medicinal qualities. The fat from the tail of a cobra, applied externally, is highly prized in eastern Asia as a cure for chronic rheumatism.

In connection with Chinese medicine, it may occur to many people in the United States that they have rarely, if ever, seen a one-armed or one-legged Chinaman. The reason for this is that all Orientals have a profound objection to surgical operations. Indeed, they prefer to die rather than lose a member, because they believe that, as they came into the world with two arms, two legs, etc., they must of necessity go out of it with the same number. Otherwise, something horribly unlucky might happen. They might, for instance, be sent to hunt for the missing arm or leg and spend half their futurity in finding it. One of the greatest difficulties the new school of medicine in Japan has had to overcome is to induce the people to submit to surgical operations.

REMARKABLE PIPE ORGAN.

One of the queerest musical instruments that was ever built was put up in a house nearly as queer. Both were made at the instigation of Joris Karl Huysmans, a Frenchman, who has been called the greatest living literary sensualist.

The house was built to represent the bottom of the sea. Inside were all manner of strange seaweeds, mosses and grasses. The tinting of the walls was of pale green, with the most delicate shades of browns and pinks. Outside all of the windows were great tanks of fish of nearly every known variety, for in this way he determined to keep up the illusion in which he took so much delight.

But in this strange domicile that he had erected for himself there was nothing that was so in keeping with the sensualistic character of the man as his musical instrument. Charmed with a song as he was with color, it must yet mean something tangible to him. To this end he authorized the building of an immense pipe organ, every pipe of which was connected with one central tube, which could be held in his mouth as he played.

The organ was so constructed that each pipe was in communication with a butt of liqueurs, so that with each note he touched he was thrilled alone by the sound but by a drop or two of the most choice wine. The beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" or the "Lohengrin" wedding march meant to him a double harmony; for as the beautiful chords filled his sea house with melody he was receiving a dulcet minstrelsy of benedictine, chartreuse, creme de menthe and many other equally epicurean drinks with each wizardlike touch of the white keys.

The man who conceived this weird idea has run the gamut of all human emotions to find something new and has just entered as a lay brother in a Benedictine order of monks.

After living a life full of all that makes it worth living to such a man, he has given it up for a daily routine of religious observances that begin with mass at 6 o'clock, private prayer at 7, matins at 8:30, and so on through all the day, with nones, sompline and vespers, and manual in all the lapses of time. This last freak seems even more eccentric than all that has gone before in his career of extravagances and eccentricities.

SOME FADS OF WOMEN

A woman without a fad would be an anomally in these days. The statement does not imply that women are now more eccentric than they were formerly, although it may be an evidence of the wider license the sex enjoys—a license, it may be remarked, that is rarely abused.

Sarah Bernhardt is easily and admittedly the most eccentric actress of our time. Everything is forgiven genius and thus the extraordinary stories continually being told about the great French actress only serves to make her more and more interesting.

At one time she is making a pet of a lion, a tiger or a snake; at another time we hear that she usually sleeps in the coffin in which she expects to be buried. A year or two ago it was declared that madam's latest craze was to rise at 4 o'clock in the morning, and, attired like a man, to prowl about the streets of Paris for two or three hours together, says the Chicago Chronicle. She was christened Rosine and no one seems to know why she is called Sarah.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has added another to her many hobbies—namely, collecting seaweed, of which she owns many remarkable specimens.

Mrs. Arthur Cadogan, the sister-in-law of the viceroy of Ireland, is one of the very few lovers of animals who have ever made a pet of a python. There have always been individuals, especially members of the fair sex, who have exercised a curious fascination over snakes, perhaps one secret of their power being their absolute fearlessness. Mrs. Cadogan's python is 9 feet long and though showing a great dislike to strangers is devoted to its mistress. Many well known people make a point of having peculiar pets, but it may be said, with very little fear of contradiction, that in this matter Mrs. Arthur Cadogan holds the record—at any rate, so far as English women are concerned.

Miss Julia Neilson is one of the most beautiful of dog enthusiasts. However busy she may be, this charming actress can always find time to attend the Ladies' Kennel association shows and she has often been herself a successful exhibitor. Miss Neilson, who is, of course, known to many of her friends as Mrs. Fred Terry, takes her four-footed pets very seriously. She herself takes them out daily for good, long walks and bathes and combs their silky coats, finding her reward in their enthusiastic devotion.

The duchess of Bedford shares all her husband's enthusiasm for animals, about which she probably knows more than any lady in society. She has a large library entirely devoted to works on natural history, a gallery of pictures of birds and animals of all kinds, and she delights in teaching horses, dogs and cats to perform tricks.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has a great love for jewelry of every kind and wears some beautiful rings and necklaces. One of her rings consists of one large pearl which opens and shuts and contains a portrait of Mrs. Campbell's late husband.

THE WORST FORM.

Multitudes are singing the praises of Kodol, the new discovery which is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by digesting what they eat; by cleansing and sweetening the stomach, and by transforming their food into the kind of pure, rich, red blood that makes you feel good all over. Mrs. Cranfill, of Troy, I. T., writes: For a number of years I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, which grew into the worst form. Finally I was induced to use Kodol and after using four bottles I am entirely cured. I heartily recommend Kodol to all sufferers from indigestion and dyspepsia. Take a dose after meals. It digests what you eat. Meyer Bros. & Co.

SLAVES WERE

TYPICAL SCENES THAT WERE CO

HOTEL, NEW ORLEANS,

(New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

"Talking about the old St. Charles," said an old-timer, "it was one of the best known slave marts in the olden days. There were two stands erected, one for males and one for females, at each end of the bar. There the auction took place every Saturday. Sometimes there were only a few to be sold and sometimes there were a great many. Anyway, they brought fancy prices in those days, between 1857 and 1860. The importation of slaves had practically stopped then, and the prices were good. Besides, the war cloud had not come so close that men really believed there was going to be a gigantic struggle. Planters from all along the river, from Natchez and Vicksburg and all places between, used to congregate in New Orleans and come around for the purpose of buying a likely-looking woman.

"The men always brought the best prices, of course, because they could do the most work. Sometimes the price went as high as $1,200 and sometimes it was as low as $500. It all depended on whether the fellow who was selling had to sell or not. Things were then very much as they are now in that regard, and men were as apt as ever to take advantage of the misfortunes of their brethren. If the slave was a man and warranted in good health, the first bid was somewhere in the neighborhood of $500—that is, if the owner did not have to sell him to pay his debts. That being the case the first bid was liable to be in the region of $300. Then the contest started, and the auctioneer, after the manner of his kind, prated on the value of the man he was selling and what the productive capacity of the average man was when he got to the field and was in charge of a hoe or had the direction of the energies of a mule. The bidding would go along until it reached $1,000, and then there would be some hesitation until those who really liked the man for his general appearance could have time to adjust themselves to the situation. Finally some man would timidly bid $1,200, and there would be a pause unless the slave on the block was an unusually good man.

MONEY THEN WAS PLENTY.

"It was all cash in those days, and everybody had the money. To me, fresh from the bogs of Ireland, it was a revelation. I never saw so much money in my life and I have not seen such times since then, though I have seen men who had more money than any of the sugar planters of those days. In those times all of the people seemed to have money. If you did not have any yourself, all you had to do was to ask the next man for it, and you got it. The wealth was evenly distributed. I was amazed, for I had come from a country which was poor then, and is poor even yet, and I had not been used to velvet and those things which go for luxury. I had run away from a ship down near the barracks, and I thought for a while I had landed in some place where they grew the money.

"Those good old times have gone, the princely sugar planters have gone, the selling of slaves has been abolished, the old hotel is but a memory and yet I sometimes find myself wishing for their return. They were the days when there was something else in life besides the mere getting of money, when there was little of selfishness and much of generosity, when riches counted for just what they would bring in the market and for the enjoyment and the pleasure they gave to others as well as to the possessor. But what is the use of regretting the decline, when we were talking about slave trading and slavery? The selling of slaves continued there every Saturday until the outbreak of the war. Of course, when the people saw the war was coming, the number of slaves to be sold fell off, for the reason there were few buyers, but the business was kept up until the call for troops was made, and then all the buyers were under arms and the business died of itself.

PLANTERS WERE NOT CRUEL.

"I used to stand and watch the traffic in human beings when I was a boy. There was nothing of heartlessness, nothing of cruelty, nothing of meanness in it. These people had been reared to a system, and the system, if bad, was not of their originating. They used to take the newly bought slave, and the first thing they did was to feed him well and tell him where he was going. They were liberal and generous, those planters of the days before the war. They used to take care of their people and they educated the slaves and made them fit for something. The best evidence we have of this is that the generation which was freed by the bayonet was the best generation of negroes which we have seen. We have not their like now, and it will be a long time before we get the like of them. But the war swept the

NEGOTIATIONS AT AN END

SECRETARY ROOT THOUGHT TO BE WITH MORGAN.

New York, Oct. 11.—It was stated today at the office of E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie railroad, that the reports to the effect that there was likely to be on Tuesday of next week further conference with Senators Quay, Platt and Penrose, were incorrect. The statement issued by Mr. Thomas at the conclusion of the conference on Friday morning definitely covered the situation.

It was explained that in the early conferences with the civic federation certain propositions had been submitted by Mr. Thomas. Those propositions are understood to be the basis of all the negotiations on the part of the operators ever since and to which the operators adhere.

THE PROPOSITIONS.

The propositions are:

First. The anthracite companies do not undertake in the slightest manner to discriminate against members of the United Mine Workers of America; but they do insist that members of that organization shall not discriminate against nor decline to work with non-members of such association.

Second. That there shall be no deterioration in the quantity or quality of the work and that there shall be no effort to restrict the individual exertions of men who, working by the ton or car, may for reasons satisfactory to themselves and their employers, produce such a quantity of work as they may desire.

Third. By reason of the different conditions, varying not only with the districts, but with the mines themselves, thus rendering absolutely impossible anything approaching uniform conditions, each mine must arrange, either individually or through its committees, with the superintendents or managers, any question affecting wages or grievances.

ONE KIND OF STATEMENT.

On the other hand the Associated Press has received the following from an authoritative source on the other side of the dispute:

"The two days' conference between the presidents of the coal-carrying railroads and Governor Odell and Senators Platt, Quay and Penrose was not the failure that it was reported to be. The operators practically agreed to a certain advance in wages and to certain propositions that would result in the resumption of coal mining. The authority here mentioned is of the opinion that the conference was not adjourned because an agreement apparently could not be reached, but because the operators were not willing to have it appear that they were yielding under pressure. The conference, according to the present plan, will be resumed on Tuesday, but a final agreement may not be reached that day. At this time it looks as though a settlement will be effected before the series of meetings is ended, although something may be said or done while the present efforts are being made that would wipe out the work already accomplished."

THOMAS' ABSOLUTE DENIAL.

When the above was shown to Mr. Thomas, he said:

"This statement is unqualifiedly wrong. No conclusions were or could be reached through that channel. The incident may be considered as absolutely closed, the operators positively declining to accept the suggestions made. Nothing will be done on Tuesday."

The presence here of Secretary Root, who came over last night from Washington, gave rise to reports that he would at least confer with the representatives of the coal interests on behalf of the president. Mr. Root, however, said that he had merely come to New York to register. But later in the day when Secretary Root failed to appear at any of the places which it is his custom to visit when here, it was reported that he was in conference with J. P. Morgan. As Mr. Morgan did not appear at his down town offices today, it was taken to indicate that he and the secretary of war had gotten together at some secret place of meeting. One report had it that Mr. Root had gone off to Mr. Morgan's yacht, Corsair, which is lying in the river. After breakfasting at the Union League club the secretary of war disappeared and no trace of him could be obtained.

ODELL MAY HAVE PLAN.

Close friends who saw Governor Odell before his departure for Newburg today were inclined to believe that he has formulated a plan of action in the event that the strike is not settled at an early day. This plan, however, is not believed to have any direct bearing on the settlement of the dispute between the operators and miners, but looks to a project by which coal may be supplied to the suffering poor of this state.

ATTACKED THE MILITIA.

Mt. Carmel, Pa., Oct. 11.—Early this morning persons on a hill close to the Sixteenth regiment encampment, began hurling rocks and discharging revolvers at the officers' quarters. After a half dozen bullets fell into camp, Lieut. Col. Richards and forty line and staff officers, who had been apprised that an attack was to be made on the camp, left their quarters and ran in the direction the firing came from. The officers shot several times ahead of them, but at daybreak no signs of the soldiers' assailants were found.

MAY AID STRIKING MINERS

Issues Address at Request of the Detroit Conference Setting Forth Conditions.

Mayor Berghoff and the Fort Wayne members of the committee who participated in the recent "get-coal" conference at Detroit, returned home yesterday, and as a result of the visit Mayor Berghoff this morning issued an address to the people of Fort Wayne setting forth his willingness to receive and forward contributions to aid the miners. Employes in many of the factories of the city, together with private individuals, have from time to time forwarded contributions to the cause of the striking toilers, but until this time there has been no public call issued inviting aid.

THE MAYOR'S ADDRESS.

"Mayor's Office, City Hall, Fort Wayne, Ind., Oct. 11, 1902.—To the people of Fort Wayne:

"At a meeting held at Detroit on the 10th of this month for the purpose of devising some means to bring about a settlement of the coal strike and to relieve the trouble conditions confronting the public in general, and the miners among others, a resolution was passed asking the mayors of different cities to call for voluntary money contributions to assist the miners in the anthracite coal regions. The idea of the meeting being that this would not only prevent extreme poverty among the miners, but would also give a most effective expression of public opinion, therefore I call upon the citizens of Fort Wayne to make such money contributions as they see fit, direct them to me, and I shall forward them to the proper authorities. H. C. Berghoff, Mayor."

REV. T. J. JOHNSON WILL MEET FORT WAYNE MINISTERS.

Former Pastor of Simpson M. E. Church Anxious to Assist Struggling Toilers.

Rev. T. J. Johnson, formerly pastor of Simpson M. E. church in this city, will arrive in Fort Wayne Monday on a mission connected with the struggling toilers in the anthracite regions of the east, and he desires to meet all the Fort Wayne ministers at the Railroad Y. M. C. A. rooms Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. Johnson is an eastern man, and previous to entering the ministry he was a coal miner. He knows by experience something of the hardships and the struggles of these toilers in the depths of the earth, and his sympathies are active in their behalf.

It is Rev. Johnson's purpose in visiting Fort Wayne to arouse, if possible, a more pronounced interest in their behalf, to secure an expression of sympathy and possibly to open the way for more substantial relief.

FAIR AT A FINISH

CLOSING DAY SEES GOOD CROWD PRESENT.

INDICATIONS POINT TO 5,000 ADMISSIONS TODAY.

FAIR MANAGERS GRATIFIED

ALREADY TALK OF PLANS FOR NEXT YEAR.

This is the closing day of the big Fort Wayne fair, and so well has the public sustained interest in the great show that another good-sized crowd is in attendance today. During the morning hours there was a continuous though not very heavy movement toward the grounds, and by noon the cars were again loaded heavily. At 1:30 this afternoon the crowd was still arriving at the grounds and it was believed that the attendance for the day would reach 5,000.

The exposition has been a splendid success from every point of view and the attendance has been extremely gratifying to the fair management, demonstrating as it does that people have not deserted the old-fashioned county fair. While there has been no fabulous amount of money made, there will be a very creditable balance upon the right side of the ledger.

Already officials are informally discussing plans for next year, when it is proposed to far eclipse the present show. It is the present intention to expend a considerable sum of money in additional new buildings and the grounds will be put in the best possible condition.

The racing this afternoon is of course the center of the closing day's attractions, and upon the grounds are many of the school children who were unable to attend earlier in the week without missing sessions of school. Shober's First Regiment band is furnishing the music today and all the attractions are yet in full blast. The greater part of the exhibits will not be removed until Monday.

SOME PRIZE PUMPKINS.

None of the departments made a finer showing than that of the fruit and farm products, and it was pronounced far superior to that shown this year at any of the surrounding fairs. There was a lively contest in the pumpkin department, and some mammoth specimens were exhibited. For field pumpkins the growths were marvelous, and it created some degree of envy among the squashes. Of the latter, one specimen weighed 117 pounds. But talking about pumpkins, the one brought in by Thomas Kaough, a genuine field pumpkin weighing 84 pounds, took first money. William Bierbaum came second, Charles Lahmann third, William Hartman fourth, Charles Lahman fifth, George Harmon sixth, August C. Brudi seventh and J. E. Ballou eighth. George Vachon won two prizes—one for having the smallest specimen and another for having the ugliest.

ANOTHER GOOD DAY.

All days are evidently good days at the Fort Wayne fair, and despite the tremendous crush on Thursday, there were 11,000 people attracted to the grounds Friday, and the day was in all respects an ideal one. The public was impartial with its attentions, and every department proved attractive to the visitors.

The racing card was one of the strongest of the week, and it furnished some interesting sport for the big crowd that completely filled the grand stand. In the first heat of the free-for-all trot, Hesperus, Gold Standard and Maggie Anderson made a hot finish with less than half a length between them, Hesperus taking the heat in 2:13¼. In the second Maggie Anderson looked like a winner after the back stretch was reached, though Hesperus bid strongly but could not land, breaking badly. Gold Standard was second. In the third Maggie Anderson, with a bad start, lost the rail at the first turn, but gurged well to the front half way down to the stretch. Her driver claimed a foul, but the judges declined to allow it. Hesperus beat her to the wire in 2:13½, and later won the final heat in 2:11½, with Gold Standard second.

Hal Clipper and Mosie Moore made a fast finish in the first heat of the 2:11 pace, Clipper winning in 2:10¼, with Mosie Moore close at his side. Billy Mack was third and Taylor H fourth. In the second Hal Clipper forged to the lead quickly and held it from the first; time, 2:14¼. Taylor H and Billy Mack had a pretty contest for second place, the former winning by a narrow margin. With a good chance for first place in the third heat Mosie Moore broke badly and Hal Clipper again won handily.

SCHOOL BOARD IN TROUBLE

SOUTH OMAHA TRUSTEES ARE CHARGED WITH BOODLING.

Said to Have Received Bribes From Teachers and Were in Typewriter Deal.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 11.—Three members of the board of education of South Omaha, A. V. Miller, president, and Members J. L. Kubat and Theodore Schroeder, were arrested today charged with receiving bribes. The specific charges are receiving money from school teachers in consideration of the latter securing increases in salary and bribery in connection with furnishing typewriters for the board.

The charges are supported by twelve affidavits placed in the hands of the county attorney and on which the warrants were issued. The investigation on which the complaints were issued has been in progress for some time and it is said other arrests will follow.

GAS MAGNATES IN THE CITY

MR. DIETERICH AND MR. FROAL HERE THIS AFTERNOON.

Came Directly from New York—Visit Said to Have No Particular Significance.

President C. F. Dieterich and Secretary A. B. Froal, of the Fort Wayne Gas company, arrived in the city late this afternoon. They came directly from New York to Fort Wayne and were driven at once to the local offices of the company.

It is said that the visit of the officials at this time has no especial significance, and that they are merely making an inspection of the outlook for supplying gas during the coming winter.

Mr. Dieterich and Mr. Froal will leave this evening for Lafayette.

WORK PROGRESSES NICELY.

Work upon the new public library building is progressing nicely and Architect Grindle said this morning that it was expected the entire building would be under roof within six weeks. All the stone work upon the circular stack room at the rear is completed and that portion of the building is now receiving the roof. Workmen are also placing the main cornice at the front of the building.

FIVE NEW HICKS PATENTS.

Attorney Walter G. Burns today received five new Canadian patents which have just been granted to Dr. Thomas H. Hicks, of this city, for apparatus in connection with his extracting processes. The five letters today cover a mercury and amalgam separator, a spiral concentrator, a gold-extracting process, a mercury separator and a pulverizing machine. Other applications are to be filed at once by Dr. Hicks.

TWENTY-NINE APPLICANTS.

C. B. Woodworth returned last evening from Indianapolis, where he attended the regular meeting of the state board of pharmacy. There were twenty-nine applicants for license as pharmacists. The next meeting of the board is to be held at Indianapolis in January.

ROBBERS SECURE $50,000 ON THE BURLINGTON.

TRAIN HELD UP IN NEBRASKA

JOB DONE WITH DISPATCH

ROBBERS WERE EVIDENTLY HIGH CLASS EXPERTS.

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11.—Three masked men held up the Pacific coast express train of the Burlington road four miles from Lincoln shortly before 2 o'clock this morning. They used explosives on the express car, shattering it badly, and after wrecking the safe, rifled it of its contents, securing booty of an estimated value of 50,000.

The loss in the train robbery given out by officials of the Burlington is placed at $50,000. They have offered a reward of $1,000 for the capture of the gang.

The train was a few minutes late and was in charge of Conductor C. A. Lyman and Engineer A. L. Clayburg. On the crest of a hill midway between the city and the town of Woodlawn the engineer saw a red light waved across the track and brought the train to a standstill. Two men sprang quickly into the cab, covering Clayburg and his fireman with revolvers. They lost no time in giving their orders and were just as promptly obeyed. The express car was cut from the balance of the train and sent ahead a short distance. The robbers found the door locked, and after commanding Messenger William Lupton to open it and getting no response, fired two or three shots into the car. The door was then opened. A heavy charge of dynamite tore the safe to pieces. Fourteen packages, said to contain a hundred dollars each, were taken, together with other valuables. The two men who were in the car politely bade the trainmen good morning, jumped from the car and disappeared in the darkness. The passengers were not molested, nor were the trainmen asked for their personal property.

BRAKEMAN GIVES ALARM.

While the robbery in the express car was going on a third robber walked alongside the track by the passenger coaches, firing his revolver occasionally to keep inquisitive passengers quiet. Brakeman Moore, who alighted from the rear coach to go ahead, found a revolver pushed in his face, with a warning to go back where he belonged. He ran the four miles to the Lincoln yards and was the first to give the alarm. The robbers were cool, talkative and apparently experts. The whole job occupied little time. The train was run back to Lincoln. The wrecked express car was taken out and at 4 o'clock it resumed its journey, the original crew going out with it. Following it was an engine carrying Chief of Police Hoagland, Detective Malone and his two bloodhounds and three police officers. At the scene of the hold-up the bloodhounds took the scent and the pursuit of the robbers was begun.

Every town and village marshal and every county sheriff in southeastern Nebraska has been notified of the robbery and told to be on the watch. The Adams Express company says its loss is not large.

ARREST OF FRANK SOMERS.

Frank Somers, a young man well known about town, and heretofore frequently in trouble, was arrested late yesterday afternoon on a charge of disorderly conduct. He had just returned to the city after an absence of several weeks and going to his home made trouble and began to destroy the furniture. He was arrested on a warrant from Justice Yancey's court and his case came up this morning, but hearing was postponed until 4 o'clock this afternoon. When Sheriff's Deputies Huguenard and Daseler served the warrant at the Rich hotel bar, where the young man was found, he asked to step away a moment to get his overcoat, and he then made a break and got away. A short chase brought him to and he was locked up for the night.

WILL OBSERVE RALLY DAY.

Wayne street M. E. Sunday school will appropriately observe rally day tomorrow, the program beginning at 9:30 o'clock. Miss Lillian Schrader will be heard in a violin solo, and Frank E. Stouder will render a vocal selection. Rev. A. S. Preston and A. S. Coverdale will deliver brief addresses, and there will be a program of songs and recitations by the children.

MORE OFFICE ROOM.

The Indiana Road Machine company has just let to J. O. Brown a contract for adding another story to its office building. The improvement is made to secure more office room for the company, and work will begin very soon.

LOCAL LINES.

Dr. W. D. Ruhl was called to Hoagland on professional business last night.

Sion S. Bass post, G. A. R., will attend the funeral of the late Captain Dickinson.

Mrs. W. J. Vesey will go east on Monday for a visit with friends at Pittsburg.

A. E. Harris, of the Merit Manufacturing company, left today on a business visit to Pittsburg.

Corwin Price, interne at Hope hospital, who was operated on Thursday night for appendicitis at Hope hospital, is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon LaRue, of Indianapolis, will be the guests tomorrow of Mr. and Mrs. Manning Smith, of East Wayne street.

Rev. C. F. W. Meyer, of the English Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, has completely recovered from a severe attack of bronchitis and will occupy his pulpit as usual tomorrow.

The Nurses' Alumni association of Hope hospital gave a delightful reception at the institution last evening in honor of the class to be graduated Monday evening. About forty-five guests were present, and there was a social program that was highly enjoyed by all.

GONE FROM EARTH

GEORGE R. HENCH SUCCUMBS TO TYPHOID FEVER.

DEATH CAME THIS MORNING

LONG PROMINENT IN LABOR AND FRATERNAL CIRCLES.

MEMBER OF CITY COUNCIL

FUNERAL SERVICES OCCUR ON MONDAY AFTERNOON.

George R. Hench, a widely known Fort Wayne citizen, one of the representatives of the First ward in the city council, prominent in labor and fraternal circles and for more than twenty years foreman of The Sentinel's composing room, died shortly after 8 o'clock this morning at his home, 1117 Elmwood avenue.

Death followed an illness of several weeks from typhoid fever of the most aggravated type, and while his condition for some time had been such as to occasion the gravest apprehension, the dread end today came as a most severe shock to countless friends who have watched with solicitous concern the reports from the bedside of the stricken man. Death came, too, with a relapse that intervened after a period of apparent improvement that had buoyed up hope for his recovery, and this made the grief at his demise if possible more poignant.

It was four weeks ago on Tuesday of the present week since Mr. Hench was compelled to abandon work, though for several days previous to that time he had remained at his duties while plainly ill. His condition, however, was attributed to some trivial malady and was not regarded with apprehension either by Mr. Hench or his friends. He remained about the house, though not confined to his bed, for several days, and for a time seemed to be making gains in strength. A week later he felt so much improved that he accompanied a party of city officials to Wabash to inspect the street paving in progress there, making the trip upon the interurban line.

PRONOUNCED TYPHOID.

For several days thereafter there was little apparent change in his condition, but a physician who was called at once diagnosed his case typhoid fever of the most pronounced type, and set about to counteract if possible the progress of the disease that had then evidently been present for several days. The critical stage in the illness came upon him very shortly thereafter. Hemorrhages ensued, and for a time the patient hovered between life and death, despite the efforts of physicians and skilled nurses. Then came a period when hope rose higher. There was a slight rally and the patient seemed to promise to pass safely through the crisis. For a matter of ten days Mr. Hench seemed to be holding his own, and the remarkable vitality displayed encouraged his friends in the belief that he would recover. Tireless vigilance was never for a moment relaxed, but Thursday night there came a renewal of the hemorrhages, and the weakened sufferer sank materially. Friday it was announced that the depressing condition was still present, and early last evening it was believed the patient could not withstand the night. Enfeebled vitality was no longer able to cope with the ravages of the malady, and Mr. Hench sank gradually until he breathed his last this morning.

WAS WIDELY KNOWN.

Few men in Fort Wayne were more widely known than George Robert Hench. His activity in politics, his sterling advocacy of union labor and his prominence in fraternal organizations gave him an extended acquaintance and won for him signal recognition in each of these fields of endeavor.

Mr. Hench's age was 45 years, 3 months and 16 days. He was born at Elliottsburgh, Pa., June 25, 1857, and was one of a family of ten children left half-orphaned by the death of his father in 1862. His earlier years were spent upon the farm where the family resided, and he contributed his full share to the work in the field, securing meanwhile such education as the brief sessions of the district school afforded.

On October 23, 1873, Mr. Hench entered upon his apprenticeship at the printer's trade in the office of the Democrat at New Bloomfield, Pa., under the management of Hon. John A. Magee, then representating that district in congress. At the end of three years Mr. Hench was made foreman of the office. Here he remained until the spring of 1877, when he removed to Indiana and as

BAER IS REBUKED

RESENTS INSOLENT REMARK

TELLS OPERATORS UNION IS PERFECTLY PROPER.

New York, Oct. 11.—"What do you mean by politicians? I want you and all the other operators to understand that I am the governor of New York, the chosen representative of 7,000,000 people, and that I am here in this matter solely in that capacity and to relieve if possible an intolerable situation. And what is more, I intend to use every power at my command to do it."

Governor Odell made this statement yesterday to President Baer, of the Reading road, in the presence of United States Senators Platt, of New York, and Quay and Penrose, of Pennsylvania. It was the culmination of a rather heated interview in the office of Senator Platt and the result of the first meeting between Governor Odell and President Baer.

OPENED BY PENROSE.

Mr. Baer was not in the best of humor when, accompanied by E. B. Thomas, chairman of the board of directors of the Erie railroad, he entered Senator Platt's office. The conference was begun with a statement made by Senator Penrose that the situation was becoming so serious that some solution must be found at once. He suggested that the operators should incline to some concessions toward a settlement.

"If you mean by that," said President Baer, "that we are to recognize the existence of a labor union, I tell you right now that the operators will consider no such proposition."

Governor Odell was on his feet in an instant. Holding a half-burnt cigar in his hand and white with excitement, he said:

"Are we to understand that no kind of a conciliatory proposition will receive consideration at the hands of the operators?"

"I did not say that," answered Mr. Baer, "but I do say, and I reiterate it, that we will not accept political advice or allow the interference of politicians in this, our affair."

Then it was that Governor Odell made the statement quoted heretofore.

APOLOGY FROM BAER.

President Baer, evidently appreciating that he had gone too far, bowed to Governor Odell and said:

"Governor, I beg your pardon. No personal affront was intended and we will listen to any suggestions you have to make. But again I repeat that we must refuse to recognize the union as represented by Mr. Mitchell."

"I believe," said the governor, "that your position from a public view is absolutely untenable. If coal operators, railroad men and other business men can combine for mutual profit and protection, there is no reason why laboring men should not."

"What is the proposition?" said Mr. Baer, coldly.

"Just this," said Governor Odell. "I am sure that the labor organization of which Mr. Mitchell is head desires him to be fair with the general public. If the operators will consent to give the men 5 cents a ton increase I will personally present it to the miners, and I believe they will accept it. It is a fair proposition."

STAND FOR UNION.

"Does this mean, Governor Odell, that we are to recognize the miners' union?" Mr. Baer asked.

"It certainly does," answered Governor Odell quickly, "and there is no reason why you should not."

Mr. Baer and Mr. Thomas rose to go, Mr. Thomas remarking that the matter would be presented to the other operators and that an early answer would be forthcoming. Mr. Baer said:

"We are to meet a committee of the manufacturers' association on Tuesday and we may have an answer then."

The conference broke up, Mr. Baer and Mr. Thomas withdrawing. Senators, Platt, Penrose and Quay talked over the matter for a short time and then they too separated.

Governor Odell was not in a talking mood when he left the conference. He went directly to the Fifth Avenue hotel and during most of the afternoon received callers. Mayor Low, Anson G. McCook, Edward Lauterbach, Congressmen Lessler and Littauer and Senator Platt were among his callers

ACTION IS PROMISED.

To one of these the governor said: "The coal operators may postpone this matter until Tuesday, but I don't propose to postpone it They are not acting fairly toward the people. I believe I shall find some remedy."

RUNDELL.

Myron J. Shell, formerly of Fort Wayne, now of Hicksville, Ohio, writes as follows:

"My Dear Sirs:—This is to certify that I, the subscriber to this article, was taken sick with Inflammatory Rheumatism and continued helpless for five weeks, unable to dress or undress, lace my shoes, or even put my hands to my face. My nights were without sleep. A heavy footstep on the floor would make me cry with pain. At the same time I was troubled with my heart and expected death at any moment.

After doctoring for the five weeks, I heard of Rundell's Rheumatic Cure, procured a bottle, took the medicine as directed, and slept the first in many weeks. My heart grew stronger, appetite improved, and two bottles of the remedy completely eradicated the rheumatism. I recommend Rundell's Rheumatic Cure to anyone afflicted with rheumatism."

cepted a position in the office of the Huntington Democrat, then under the management of Hon. John W. Hilligoss, since deceased.

CAME TO FORT WAYNE.

In August, 1880, Mr. Hench resigned his position and came to Fort Wayne, where, on the 11th of that month he accepted the position of foreman of The Sentinel's composing room, a position which he retained continuously until his death, with the exception of two years, during which Mr. Hench was one of the lessees of the American Farmer, a monthly agricultural journal then published in Fort Wayne.

While a resident of Huntington, on February 29, 1880, Mr. Hench was united in marriage to Miss Lily U. Provines, of that city, who survives him. Mr. and Mrs. Hench were the parents of five children. The eldest, a daughter, Cecil, died in early childhood. The surviving children, four in number, are Clyde U., Lucille, Marguerite and Neal.

LODGE AFFILIATIONS.

In fraternal circles Mr. Hench has been active for many years, and he has been the recipient of signal honors in each of the organizations in which he held membership. He was a charter member of Summit City lodge, No. 36, Ancient Order of United Workmen, a member of Degree of Honor, No. 2, of Phoenix lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Court No. 96, Tribe of Ben Hur, and of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks.

In many instances these societies have recognized the services of Mr. Hench in a substantial manner. The grand lodge of Indiana, A. O. U. W., conferred upon him the title of Past Grand Master Workman, and several times selected him as one of the Indiana representatives at the supreme lodge of this order. In June last Mr. Hench attended the supreme lodge at Portland, Oregon, in this capacity. He had filled all the chairs in his local lodge of the A. O. U. W., held offices in the state grand lodge and was a past chief of the Tribe of Ben Hur. Mr. Hench carried life insurance in the fraternal orders to the amount of $3,950—$2,000 in the A. O. U. W. and $950 in the Tribe of Ben Hur.

A LEADER OF LABOR.

Union labor found in Mr. Hench a staunch advocate and a steadfast friend, and he was active in this domain for many years. He held membership in the International Typographical union, had served as president of the local union, and twice represented his Fort Wayne brethren in the international meetings—last year at Birmingham, Ala., and in August of 1902 at Cincinnati.

Early in the '90's he served with signal ability as president of the Trades and Labor council, and later held prominent committee places, as well as representing his own union in the central body. His fame in labor circles spread far beyond the limits of his own city, and he had for several years up to the time of his death held the position of district organizer for the American Federation of Labor under appointment from President Samuel Gompers. Many of the local trades unions in Fort Wayne were organized under the supervision of Mr. Hench and he was popular with the members of each of them.

SERVED IN COUNCIL.

Politically, Mr. Hench was a firm adherent to democratic principles, and his grasp of public questions was clear and comprehensive. He was elected from the First ward to the city council in 1898 and re-elected in 1901. His efforts as a public official were invariably directed toward serving the best interest of his constituents, and he was recognized as one of the leaders of the municipal body. He held chairmanship of both the committee on health and the committee on judiciary and was the second member of the committee on rules, regulations and ordinances.

SORROW IN THE SHOPS.

The news of the death of Mr. Hench reached the shops shortly after he had breathed his last and the sorrow which it caused there expresses the esteem entertained for him by the employes. He had taken a very prominent part in the organized labor movement, was known personally to almost every member of the labor unions and was considered a friend of each. His death is regarded by the men in the light of a personal bereavement.

T. D. Neal, of Indianapolis, grand master workman, and Fred Baker, of Evansville, grand recorder of the A. O. U. W., have been notified of the death of Mr. Hench, and a telegram from each brings the information that they will come to Fort Wayne to attend the funeral obsequies.

FUNERAL ON MONDAY.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 1117 Elmwood avenue, and at 2:30 from Westminster Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Hench was a member. Rev. J. Budman Fleming will deliver the funeral discourse, and the interment will occur at Lindenwood. The active pallbearers will be from Mr. Hench's brethren in the A. O. U. W., representing the Summit City, Maumee and Fort Wayne lodges. The list is as follows: H. F. France, Charles Haiber, Norton Conover, Al Roby, S. D. Melsheimer and E. S. Hurlburt.

The honorary pall bearers are selected from the membership of Fort Wayne lodge No. 155, B. P. O. E., and the city council, and are as follows: E. C. Miller, A. C. Hobrock, Joch J. Bauer, F. E. Purcell, W. J. Hosey and C. O. Essig.

ABOUT THE COURT HOUSE.

Judgment was entered for the plaintiff in the sum of $84.31 in the case of the Hamilton bank against William Heck and the Otto Herbst estate.

Nancy Eix was granted a divorce from Frederick Eix.

Sheriff Stout at noon left for Richmond, having in charge Eliza Smith, who was accepted for treatment there yesterday. Mrs. Stout accompanied the sheriff.

The superior court was not in session today. Court will reconvene on Monday morning, when several jury trials will be held.

The county commissioners were in session today transacting miscellaneous business, of which very little was presented.

Nanck Eix was yesterday divorced from Frederick Eix by Judge O'Rourke.

Herman Michael has qualified as guardian of Christine Julliard, a woman adjudged of unsound mind several days ago by Judge O'Rourke.

ABOUT DITCH MATTERS.

The county commissioners yesterday acted upon some ditch matters already before them and took up a number of new petitions. In the matter of the Warner ditch, in Cedar Creek township, the hearing of protests was continued until October 18. The Hursh ditch in Cedar Creek township was established upon the report of the viewers as was the Felger ditch in Lake township.

Viewers were appointed on petitions for new ditches as follows: Fry ditch in Springfield township—J. W. McNabb, B. F. Frederick, Joseph Darney. Griff ditch in St. Joseph township—Jacob Shaffer, John Rapp and Hugh M. Rockhill. Fry ditch in Jefferson township—Amasa Shaffer, John Hoffman and Nathan Brown. Hamm ditch in Scipio township—David Dalman, William Hagan and Alfred Corbet.

BUCKET SHOPS LOSE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 11.—Special.—Edward Daniels, sitting as master in chancery in the federal court here, today reported his decision on the case of the Chicago board of trade against the Indiana bucket shops. He found that the board was entitled to control its quotations as proprietor and should have the relief asked for in an injunction against the bucket shops. If concurred in by Judge Baker this will close the bucket shops of Indiana.

Out Lots

I now offer the 120 acres on Walton avenue immediately south of the Lutheran college land, price $24,000 for the entire tract, $200 per acre, which will retail out at $400 per acre. Good opportunity to double your money. Terms easy, small payment down, long time on remainder. When we cleared off the very heavy timber on this rich land, many years ago, 900 thrifty young shade trees were left for outlot purposes, all of which are still there and growing. The population of Fort Wayne is steadily increasing and a still more rapid growth is now about to develop.

RETURN OF OLD RESIDENT.

Adams County (Iowa) Free Press: Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Salts departed on Thursday for Washington, D. C., where they will attend the national encampment of the G. A. R., after which they will visit their old home at Roanoke, Ind., also relatives and friends at Fort Wayne and Huntington. At Roanoke the doctor will visit the scenes of his boyhood days, when he was a mule driver on the old Wabash canal from Toledo, Ohio, to Evansville, Ind., when not engaged in battling with the chills and ague so prevalent in that country in those days. When the war between the states was declared he joined the Twenty-second Indiana and did valiant service for the union."

ILL IN WASHINGTON.

David Smith, of Eel River township, who attended the Grand Army reunion in Washington, D. C., this week, was taken ill while in the capital city, and was unable to return home. Mr. Smith is one of Allen county's most highly respected citizens. It is not thought that his illness will be serious.

EPILEPSY

FITS OR FALLING SICKNESS.

The Cause, Dangers and Cure.

The Uncertainty of Time and Place for the Occurrence of Paroxysms or Fits Causes Epilepsy to Be Especially Dreaded—The Afflicted One is Never Safe Alone and Even When Closely Watched May so Suddenly Fall Where He Will Be Burned, Drowned, Seriously or Fatally Injured That the Alertest Friend May Not Be Able to Prevent, Shield or Rescue Him.

Twice in the writer's experience have epileptic subjects consulted, promising to begin treatment in a few days and been killed while in a fit before procuring the medicine that would have prevented such convulsion.

Newspapers frequently report violent or sudden deaths that occurred because a fit exposed to what was otherwise unlikely to be a danger.

One girl fell in the fire of an open grate, a woman scalded in a bath tub, a man fell into a mortar box of slaking lime, a woman drowned in a few inches of water in a ditch, to the edge of which she stepped to pluck a flower; a man in falling fractured his skull on the stone walk; a woman in a fit run down by a street car, and many accidents resulting from sudden seizures.

That epileptic fits have been prevented and cured is verified by the following reports:

"My brother, 24 years old, has been subject to epileptic fits since 8 years of age, often having eight or ten a day. His head and body are covered with scars from cuts, burns and bruises received from his falls. He has had no further trouble since taking Golden Remedy, twenty-one weeks now. It is such a relief to have him go up town and not be brought back all bruised and bleeding from his falls. Maud White, Walkersville, Ont."

"My sister had been having two or three spasms a day, but since taking Golden Remedy she has not had any. Oakie Asher, Pecksburg, Ind."

"I haven't had a symptom of fits since using Golden Remedy. S. K. Barksdale, Felden, Va."

That epilepsy is not often cured by the family doctor is a fact evidenced in most communities and readily admitted by physicians themselves. That both mild and severe forms of the dread disease have been cured by Golden Remedy is established by hundreds of instances similar to the above. That fits in others may be cured by Golden Remedy is a natural and reasonable inference to be drawn from the reported cases.

Epilepsy is a chronic functional disease. The paroxysm or "fit" being only a symptom of manifestation—a discharge of nervous energy from an over-excited nerve center, the real disease remaining after the explosion and tending to its recurrence.

Golden Remedy by lessening nervous excitability, reducing irritation, preventing congestion, restoring and maintaining nerve balance, does away with the causes that lead up to the explosion, paroxysm, spasm, convulsion or fit.

If you, or any friend or member of your family, are subject to epilepsy, confidentially write us all about it and we will advise you free.

Golden Remedy is for sale at drug stores, or we will send it anywhere on receipt of price—$1.

There is always an element of danger in epilepsy, many fits may be experienced without serious accident, but again the very next one may be fatal, so there is risk in delay. Do not put off taking Golden Remedy to some future or more convenient season and take chances, but start treatment at once and risk no more fits.

BURSLEY FIRM ENTERTAINS.

The wholesale grocery firm of G. F. Bursley & Co. entertained about 400 of their out of town customers at luncheon at noon yesterday. One of the spacious show rooms on the second floor of the building was fitted up in a very attractive manner, a long table capable of seating forty guests being laid out in the center of the room upon which were several large vases of carnations. The women employes of the firm acted as waitresses and served an excellent menu comprising many very palatable dishes of which the guests showed due appreciation. With the exception of the ice cream every dish was prepared from stock carried by the firm and by the employes and the luncheon was a most pronounced success. The visiting grocers were from towns within a radius of 100 miles of Fort Wayne.

TO BUY WAYNE'S PICTURE.

The local chapter of the D. A. R. is conducting a rummage sale on Barr street for the purpose of raising money to purchase the portrait of Gen. Anthony Wayne, which is at present on exhibition in the relic room of the court house. The painting is by Mrs. Jarrard, of this city, and it is said to be an excellent likeness. It is hoped to raise enough funds at the sale, and at the coming card party at the Wayne club to purchase show cases in which to keep relics presented or loaned to the chapter.

MARRIED IN HAMILTON.

Miss Gertrude Katte, of Hamilton, and Guy Ford, formerly of this city, were married in Hamilton on Thursday by Rev. Father Gorey, of St. Mary's Cathedral. The bride's dress was of blue cloth, with hat and gloves to match. She is a daughter of Mrs. Nannie Katte and quite popular in Hamilton social circles. Mr. Ford holds a fine position with a large supply house in Hamilton.

FOOD VS. RECREATION.

Good Food of the Greatest Importance.

There is really no need to go away for rest if one will take scientifically made food that rebuilds the nerve centers and makes work a comfort and pleasure.

One of our prominent novelists was sent to Colorado. "Ride every day, sleep in a tent, eat when you are hungry," my physician told me, but food did not satisfy me and rest would not end the fatigue that had me in its grip. I was a mere machine, eating, sleeping, walking, riding, but unequal to a day's work and with no zest for the day's pleasure.

"At the lowest ebb of strength and courage my eye fell on a piece of newspaper with which my guide was making a camp fire, and I picked it up and read: 'Grape-Nuts, a Food for Brain and Nerve Centers.' I read on; it seemed to be a description of my own case cured by a diet of Grape-Nuts. I sent for a supply of the food by the next pack train that left my camp. It came 45 miles from the nearest settlement on a burro's back. That night I ate Grape-Nuts without cream, milk or sugar. It tasted good. I felt that for the first time in six months I had been fed.

"I went to my bed of pine boughs, slept like a tired child, and woke rested. Then I knew that I had found what I needed better than a new sky, better than exercise, better than rest, because lacking the food that exhausted nature was crying for, these things could not help me.

"I am well now. If in the future I win any rewards by my pen, I shall count them gained by the food that made work possible to me and that gave back to me my old joy in living." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Masonic Temple—"Sweet Clover."

Fort Wayne and the Fort Wayne Fair association surely owe the weather engineer a vote of thanks for the decency with which he has deported himself through the present week. The local brand of weather was evidently being made faithfully to order.

One of the troubles of "Divine Right" Baer is that he is too frank. He refuses to make any distinction between a president of the United States or a governor of New York and the lowliest coal miner. The New York executive, however, took occasion to impress upon the coal magnate that in some respects there is a distinction.

J. E. McClaskey, a well known republican and lawyer of Lagrange, in an open letter to the Lagrange Call, an independent newspaper, reviews at length Clarence C. Gilhams' record as auditor of Lagrange county, with special reference to his failure to turn over the fees received for mortgage exemption affidavits. He condemns Mr. Gilhams' course and calls upon him to withdraw as the republican candidate for congress in the Twelfth district and make way for a candidate whom all republicans can support.

For the year ending June 30, last, the number of divorces granted by Indiana courts was 13 per cent. of the marriages. In other words, one out of every seven marriages was so distinct a failure that it was annulled. The record is almost appalling. It shows in the first place that the marriage state is losing sanctity and in the second place that divorce is promoted by the ease with which a decree may be obtained. Hasty marriages, slack methods in divorce courts and the usual causes that spring from intemperance combine to make Indiana's showing of marriage and divorce discreditable, indeed.

If out of the hard coal strike shall finally come a method by which the public may be protected from future distresses of the sort now endured, the benefits of this strike will not be greatly outweighed by its evils. Most thinking persons are doubtless thinking alike on the proposition that the public is always the party of greatest interest in a stupendous industrial war and that as such party is entitled to some legal means of protection. It is now thoroughly realized that the public should not continue helpless in such crises, to wait upon the whims or obstinacy of corporations on the one hand or of the unions on the other. It is believed that where reasonable time does not suffice for the belligerents to settle their differences there should be some power of appeal to speedy legal measures. In the present instance the mine workers are willing to submit to arbitration. To this the mine owners will not consent. That legal recourse is wholly wanting, if it really be true that it is, goes far to emphasize some of the shortcomings of our government—shortcomings that ought to be speedily and drastically remedied. The people should not be at the mercy of the obstinate spirit that governs the action of the coal monopolists.

GEORGE ROBERT HENCH.

The death of Councilman George R. Hench will cause the hearts of a host of friends to sorrow deeply, but to all persons connected with The Sentinel establishment the passing away of Mr. Hench is the source of bitter grief. He was one of the pioneer employes of The Sentinel under its present proprietorship and for more than a score of years had been constantly associated with the paper in some capacity, save a short time when he was one of the lessees and publishers of the American Farmer. He had been foreman of The Sentinel news room since 1881, with the brief exception noted. He had always been a faithful and capable employe, a most considerate foreman and an altogether pleasant, companionable and worthy associate. Friendly ties of unusual intimacy and strength subsisted between him and his fellow employes on this newspaper and to them his death comes with all the poignancy and shock of a personal bereavement.

Mr. Hench was a man of much more than common ability and energy. He had a taste for politics and had long been an influential figure in the councils of the democratic party. As an advocate of the principles of organized labor he was whole-hearted and tireless. As a member of the city council he had acquitted himself with signal ability, with benefit to the public and without taint of self-interest or aspersion of his honesty attaching to his name.

He will be greatly missed by an unusually large circle of friends throughout the city and county and in this office where for so many years he was an intimate and daily associate he leaves a place that to his employer and fellow workmen will always be unfilled.

HERE TO GET SOME POINTERS

Investigating the Feasibility of the Air-Lift System for Waterworks.

Half a dozen prominent citizens of Anderson, including city officials and President J. J. Netterville, of the Anderson gas company, were in Fort Wayne yesterday afternoon to inspect the city waterworks system.

The waterworks system at Anderson is said to be distressing and the city is setting about to improve it. At present river water is used, but it is the intention to discard it for a supply to be secured from deep wells, and the main idea of the trip to Fort Wayne was to investigate the air-compressor system of lifting the water from the wells.

Occupying two hacks and chaperoned by G. Max Hufmann and Frank H. Cutshall, of the Fort Wayne Gas company's offices, the party was driven to the waterworks station, where the compressors were shown in operation, and afterwards the gentlemen were driven about the city.

The party left last evening for home. It was composed of J. J. Netterville, M. W. Atherton, D. F. Mustard, J. K. Johnson, H. H. Rodgers and C. F. Heritage.

PATROLMEN GET NEW BEATS

An Examination of the Eighteen Districts Show Each One Is Very Large.

The periodical change of policemen from one beat to another was announced by Superintendent Gorsline. To familiarize all the patrolmen with every part of the city these changes have been deemed advantageous, but it has been months since such a radical transposition was made. The officers assigned to the eighteen patrol districts in the city, with the corresponding changes, are as follows:

White from district 9 to district 1; Lavanway from 10 to 3; Elliott from 5 to 3; Borgman from 8 to 4; Goeglein from 17 to 5; Kelley remains on 6; Rohrer from 13 to 7; Cheviron from 4 to 8; Thomma from 2 to 9; Heller from 7 to 10; Krauckenberg from 18 to 11; Murphy from 14 to 12; Smith from 16 to 13; McKendry from 11 to 14; Strodel from 1 to 15; Collins from 15 to 16; Richardson from 3 to 17; Trobra from 12 to 18.

To the average layman and reader the above schedule is about as intelligible as Greek or Choctaw unless the key to the puzzle is furnished with the picture. It is scarcely a matter of wonderment that the chiefs of the department of public safety have persistently insisted that the patrolling force of the city is too small to cover the territory assigned to each officer. The city is divided into eighteen police districts, to each of which a single patrolman is assigned, except on down town streets, where two districts merge and where one officer is responsible for one side of the street and another for the opposite side. At district intersections like the transfer corner, Wayne and Calhoun, Lewis and Calhoun and at the Calhoun street railway crossings it is possible for four policemen to meet, but that is the limit. The districts are as follows:

District 1. All that portion of the city lying north of the transfer corner to the rivers and east of Calhoun street, where Main street would intersect with the river if continued; Lakeside is also included in this district.

District 2. All territory west of Calhoun as far as Fulton street, lying between Main street and St. Mary's river.

District 3. The territory east of Calhoun street as far as Clay, lying between Main street and Wayne street.

District 4. The territory west of Calhoun street as far as Fulton and lying between Main and Wayne streets.

District 5. East of Calhoun to Clay, between Wayne and Lewis.

District 6. West of Calhoun to Fairfield avenue, between Wayne and Lewis streets on Calhoun, west on Lewis to Ewing, south to Brackenridge and thence west to Fairfield, the north line being Wayne street.

District 7. East from Calhoun to Clay, between Lewis street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks.

District 8. West from Calhoun to Fairfield, between Lewis street and the Pennsylvania tracks.

District 9. All the territory lying west of Calhoun street as far as Fairfield avenue and south of the Pennsylvania tracks to the city limits. Patrolmen on this beat and on 7, 8 and 10, are supposed to make all, or nearly all trains at the south depot.

District 10. From the Pennsylvania depot south to the limits and east to Hanna street.

District 11. All the portion of the city lying south of the Wabash tracks and west of Fairfield avenue.

District 12. All that portion of the city lying south of the Pennsylvania tracks and east of Hanna street. A patrolman would walk about 20 miles a day to cover this beat every day.

District 13. All west of Fulton street, between Jefferson street and St. Mary's river, including Nebraska.

District 14. The territory west of Fulton and Fairfield, lying between Jefferson and Taylor streets.

District 15. The territory east of Clay street to the limits lying between the Maumee river and Jefferson street and including all the portion of the city north of Maumee avenue as far as the river.

District 16. All east of Clay street to the limits, lying between Jefferson street and Maumee avenue and the Pennsylvania tracks.

District 17. All of the Ninth ward, lying north of Third street.

District 18. All of the Ninth ward, lying south of Third street. In the Ninth ward the line of the Lake Shore road marks the eastern limits, with the exception of the north side park.

Occasionally individuals—and newspapers, too—try to say funny things about the proverbial absence of a policeman when needed, but an examination of a city map with the above district boundaries marked will take all the humor out of the situation. If a man happens to start on a policeman's trail in one of the larger districts and walked at the rate of four miles an hour, and, providing the policeman had an hour the start of him, it would take the man over four hours to catch up with the officer.

SYRUP OF FIGS

Acts Gently;
Acts Pleasantly;
Acts Beneficially;
Acts truly as a Laxative.

Syrup of Figs appeals to the cultured and the well-informed and to the healthy, because its component parts are simple and wholesome and because it acts without disturbing the natural functions, as it is wholly free from every objectionable quality or substance. In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal virtues of Syrup of Figs are obtained from an excellent combination of plants known to be medicinally laxative and to act most beneficially.

DR. DODGE IS DEAD

WELL KNOWN VETERINARY SURGEON IS NO MORE.

JAMES H. CHANEY EXPIRES AT ABOIT STATION.

OTHER DEATHS AND FUNERAL NOTICES TODAY.

Dr. Arthur Dodge, V. S., one of the best known characters in Fort Wayne and a resident of the city for over forty years, died this afternoon shortly after noon at his residence, presided over by his sister, Mrs. A. C. Perrin, at No. 515 West Berry street. The immediate cause of his death was dropsy, complicated with an affection of the liver and other kindred disorders. His age was 68 years and some months and he leaves no direct relatives save his sister, Mrs. Perrin. Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but will be announced in the morning. It is probable that the interment will be on Tuesday, will be at Lindenwood and services will be from the house.

AN UNIQUE PERSON.

Arthur Dodge was an unique person and enjoyed as wide an acquaintance as any man in his station who ever lived in the city. Without the advantage of an early education he fought his way bravely through the world, acquired a wonderful fund of general knowledge, applied himself to anything that presented itself and was generally successful in anything he undertook. He was always a fruitful earner, but like many men of like dispositions he never accumulated any wealth further than was necessary to tide against the exigencies of the present. He was born at Plymouth, Mich., March 13, 1837, and lived there with his parents until he was about 18 years of age. His father was a carriage trimmer and a wage-earner, but could offer his son neither education nor opportunity. At the age of 18 young Dodge left the parental roof and located at Fon du Lac, Wis., where he remained about three weeks. He then drifted into Fort Wayne and this city has been his home ever since. He came here before the war as a young man and was irregularly a hostler, driver, clerk, horseman, stableman and general utility man in any position. In 1873 he was married to Miss Ella Brown, of this city, and the marriage was a singularly happy one, the domesticity of which was broken only a little over a month ago, Mrs. Dodge's death occurring Aug. 5 of this year. During the long period of residence in the city "Doc" Dodge made no enemies. He was brusque in manner, fearless in the expression of his opinions, usually took the opposite side of any question, but did it so gracefully that it was apparently impossible for him to create offense.

SUCCESSFUL PRACTITIONER.

He acquired his title of doctor honestly and by honest endeavor. Many years ago he took up the study of veterinary, surgery and medicine and pursued so faithfully and intelligently that he secured and held a large practice and his professional career was eminently successful. He was at one time, early in the '70's, the manager of the Aveline house. Later he ventured in other lines and was a groceryman, a fish merchant, a restauranteur, a saloonkeeper, a patent medicine man, a safe agent, speculator and during later years was identified with his first love in the livery business, being at the time of his death a member of the firm of Riedmiller & Dodge, the East Wayne street livery owners. Since the death of his wife in August last, the friends of the deceased noticed a marked change in his demeanor and while he apparently was endeavoring to keep up his familiar cheerfulness, it was easily seen that he did it with an effort. About two weeks ago he first commenced to seriously complain and a day or two later went to his house and to bed, telling his friends before he left on his last visit down town that he never expected to get back again. He said that he knew the end was near and said that he felt no fear and had no concern of what the near future had in store for him. Doctor Dodge was a peculiar man in more ways than can be recited in a brief obituary and with the faults which he wore on his sleeve he possessed virtues and traits that only those who knew him well could appreciate.

CHANEY.

James A. Chaney, for upwards of fifty years a resident of Allen county, died yesterday morning at his home in Aboit Station, after an illness from dropsy and heart trouble extending over a period of several years. The deceased was 80 years old and leaves a wife and several children, one of whom is John Chaney, of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Chaney was born in Ohio, but moved to Allen county soon after his marriage and purchased the farm which he has occupied for more than half a century. He was held in the highest esteem in the locality in which he made his home, and has many friends in Fort Wayne, who will be grieved to hear of his death. Mr. Chaney was a devout member of the Third Presbyterian church in this city, and Dr. McGaw will conduct the funeral services, which will probably be held on Monday.

LINN.

Emma Linn, 15 years of age, an inmate of St. Vincent's orphan asylum, died at that institution Friday from organic heart disease.

The remains were shipped to Huntington today for interment.

KELTY.

Patrick J. Kelty, seventy-four years of age, died Friday night at his home, 1331 East Creighton avenue, from a complication of diseases. Mr. Kelty was a native of Ireland, but came to America in early life and had been a resident of Fort Wayne for many years.

Surviving are the widow and three sons- E. N. Kelty and T. W. Kelty, of this city, and J. P. Kelty, of Valparaiso. The remains will be interred at Plymouth, the former home of the deceased.

BRATTAIN.

London S. Brattain, 32 years of age, died at noon today at Hope hospital from peritonitis which followed an attack of appendicitis. Mr. Brattain was a young farmer residing at Lea and had been ill about five days when he was brought to this city for treatment Thursday evening.

He was born in Hardin county, O., and came to Allen county about nine years ago. Surviving are the widow, Mr. Brattain's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbridge Brattain, of Maysville, and eleven brothers and sisters, as follows: Henry H., Ralph and Robert Brattain, of Antwerp, O.; Charles, Corolus and Chase Brattain, of Maysville; Mrs. Dora Peterson, of Pennsylvania; Mrs. Olive Wells, of Berne; Mrs. Anna Derwester, of Payne, and the Misses Edith and Leo Brattain, of Maysville.

The remains will be removed to the home of the parents at Maysville and the funeral services will be held on Monday or Tuesday.

FUNERAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Dickinson.—Funeral services of Capt. Philemon Dickinson will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence of J. D. Gumpper, 121 West Creighton avenue, Rev. Dr. McGaw and Rev. Dr. Moffat officiating. The pall bearers will be Col. R. S. Robertson, Col. C. B. Oakley, Capt. F. W. Keil, O. B. Fitch, William Creighton, sr., and W. A. Diffenderfer.

Muldoon.—Funeral services of Mrs. Jane Muldoon will be held Monday morning at 8:30 from the residence, 131 West Leith street, and at 9 o'clock from St. Patrick's church. Interment at Hesse Cassel.

Hatfield.—Funeral services of Mrs. Caroline Adelia Hatfield will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence, 611 Archer avenue. The interment will occur at the Hatfield cemetery.

Pisano.—Funeral services of Mrs. Sophia Pisano will be held from the residence, Wallace and Force streets, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SLAIN BY ROBBERS.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 11.—A. B. Chinn, of the firm of Chinn & Todd, merchants in this city, one of the most prominent business men in Kentucky, was shot to death in his home by two masked burglars at 3:30 a. m. today. His son, Asa, who heard the noise, rushed to his father's rescue and opened fire on the burglars through a closed door. The burglars returned the fire and Asa was perhaps mortally wounded.

A case of diphtheria was reported today at 421 Holman street.

Scarcity of coal and the high prices of fuel mean cold homes and much sickness.

"While I don't mean to recommend the use of '77' instead of firewood, I do know that its use prevents and breaks up Colds, prevalent even now, and promise to be more so as the season advances."

Your office or shop may be cold, your home poorly heated, but if you take "77" you will be freer from sickness, and recover sooner than your neighbor.

The use of Dr. Humphreys' "77" restores the checked circulation, starts the blood coursing through the veins and breaks up a Cold.

FORT WAYNE MAN ELECTED BY STATIONARY FIREMEN.

JOHN C. MITCHELL HONORED

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD CHOOSES NEW ROSTER.

PRESIDENT MITCHELL LONG IN UNION LABOR.

The closing session of the International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen was brought to a close this morning with the election of officers for the ensuing year and the selection of Rochester, N. Y., as the place of holding the convention in 1903. Following were the officers elected today:

JOHN C. MITCHELL.
Elected president of International Brotherhood of Stationary Firemen today.

International President—John C. Mitchell, Fort Wayne.

First Vice President—Timothy Healy, New York.

Second Vice President—Michael Flannagan, Boston.

Third Vice President—H. W. Baush, Toledo.

Fourth Vice President—J. W. McGibbon, Bay City, Mich.

Fifth Vice President—D. V. Gerton, Lima, Ind.

Sixth Vice President—J. F. Kolpack, Detroit, Mich.

Seventh Vice President—H. L. Ezell, Chicago.

General Secretary and Treasurer—C. L. Shamp, Toledo, Ohio.

The election of seven vice presidents in place of four this year was due to the abolishing of the executive board, the officers acting in an executive capacity. Resolutions were passed thanking the city, Mayor Berghoff and local union No. 40 for the hospitality shown the delegates during their visit in Fort Wayne, after which the final adjournment was made.

The election of John C. Mitchell, of this city, to the office of international president of the brotherhood is an honor well bestowed and is one that will be greatly appreciated not only by Mr. Mitchell, but by union labor generally in Fort Wayne. It is the first time that a Fort Wayne man has been elected to the national presidency of any branch of union labor. Mr. Mitchell has been affiliated with unions for more than thirty years and has always taken a prominent part in union matters in this city. He organized the local union of stationary firemen and has been its president since it was organized. Last year Mr Mitchell was elected second vice president of the brotherhood and his election to the highest office this year was by unanimous vote.

MITCHELL KEEPS MUM.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 11. President Mitchell arrived at strike headquarters from New York shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. He was immediately taken in hand by interviewers, but he steadfastly declined to talk of his New York trip for publication. In answer to a question why he should maintain such extreme reticence regarding his visit, he said:

"I think the best interests of the operators, the miners and the public will be subserved by my remaining silent."

Mr. Mitchell's attention was called to the letter of Vice President Wilcox, of the Delaware & Hudson company, to President Roosevelt, in which he maintains that the miners' union is an illegal organization. The strike leader hesitated to say anything for a moment and then replied:

"The miners' union is organized along the same lines as all labor unions in the country. If the miners' organization is illegal so are all the others; and I say our union is not illegal."

HALF OUR ILLS ARE CATARRHAL IN NATURE.

Catarrhal Diseases are Most Prevalent in Winter.

IS THERE NO WAY OF ESCAPE FROM THEM?

Pe-ru-na Never Fails to Cure Catarrh Wherever Located.

There are some things which are as sure as fate, and can be relied on to occur to at least one-half of the human family unless means are taken to prevent.

First, the climate of winter is sure to bring colds.

Second, colds not promptly cured are sure to cause catarrh.

Third, catarrh improperly treated is sure to make life short and miserable.

Catarrh spares no organ or function of the body. It is capable of destroying sight, taste, smell, hearing, digestion, secretion, assimilation and excretion.

It pervades every part of the human body, head, throat, stomach, bowels, bronchial tubes, lungs, liver, kidneys, bladder and other pelvic organs.

Catarrh of The Head.

Mr. D. R. Ramsey writes in a recent letter from Pine Bluff, Ark., the following:

"My son, Leon Ramsey, four years of age, suffered with catarrh of the head for eighteen or twenty months. He took one bottle of your Peruna and could hear as good as ever."—D. R. RAMSEY.

Catarrh of The Nose.

Mr. Herman Ehlke, 932 Orchard street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

"I am entirely cured of my catarrh of the nose by your Peruna. My case was a severe one."—Herman Ehlke.

Catarrh of The Throat.

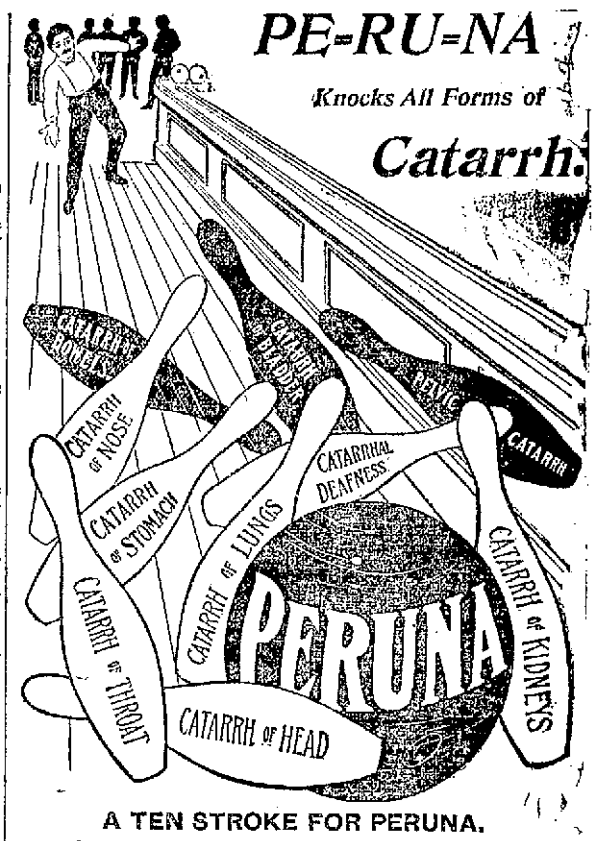
B. H. Runyan, Salesville, O., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the throat for five years. I was induced to try Peruna. I have used five bottles and am perfectly well."—B. H. Runyan.

Catarrh of The Ear.

Mr. Archie Godin, 188 Beech street, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

"Peruna has cured me of catarrh of the middle ear. I feel better than I have for several years."—Archie Godin.



A TEN STROKE FOR PERUNA.

Catarrh of The Lungs.

Mrs. Emilie Kirckhoff, Ada, Minn., writes:

"Through a violent cold contracted last winter, I became afflicted with catarrh of the nose, which in a short time affected my lungs. I took Peruna which cured me thoroughly. I now feel better than I have for forty years."—Mrs. Emilie Kirckhoff.

Catarrh of The Bladder.

Mr. John Smith, 311 S. Third street, Atchison, Kan., writes:

"I was troubled with catarrh of the urethra and bladder for two years. At the time I wrote to you I was under the care of my home doctor, and had been for four months.

"I followed your directions but two months, and can say Peruna cured me of that trouble."—John Smith.

Catarrh of The Bowels.

Mr. Henry Entzion, South Bend, Ind., writes:

"The doctor said I had catarrh of the bowels and I took his medicine, but with no relief. I was getting worse all the time.

"Before I had taken a half bottle of Peruna I felt like a new man."—Henry Entzion.

Catarrh of The Kidneys.

Peter J. Unger, Hawley, Pa., writes:

"I think that I am perfectly cured of catarrh of the kidneys by Peruna, as I have no trouble of any kind."—Peter J. Unger.

Catarrh of The Stomach.

A. W. Graves, of Hammond, Ind., writing to Dr. Hartman, says:

"I am well of catarrh of the stomach after suffering two years. I have taken five bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin and I feel like a new man now."—A. W. Graves.

Pelvic Catarrh.

Miss Katie Lochman, Lafayette, Ind., writes:

"I had pelvic catarrh, pain in the abdomen, back, had stomach trouble and headache caused by catarrh. I followed your directions; took Peruna and Manalin according to directions, and now happy I feel that I am relieved of such a distressing ailment."—Miss Katie Lochman.

Cured of Asthma

After 35 years of Suffering.

It will be gratifying to Asthmatic readers to learn that an absolute cure has at last been discovered by Dr. Schiffmann. That the remedy is an effectual one cannot be doubted after perusal of such testimony as that of C. W. Van Antwerp, Fulton, N. Y., who says: "Your remedy (Schiffmann's Asthma Cure) is the best I ever used. I bought a package of our druggist and tried it and one box entirely cured me of Asthma; and I have not had it since. I can now go to bed and sleep all night with perfect comfort, which I have not done before for 35 years and I thank you for the health that I now enjoy. I hope that you will publish this letter, that others may learn of its wonderful virtues." Sold by all druggists at 50c and $1.00. Send 2c stamp to Dr. R. Schiffmann, Box 891, St. Paul, Minn., for a free sample package.

THE MARKETS.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Wheat opened quiet and easy. Weakness in corn and favorable weather in the west section of the country were the best influences. Light receipts with extremely poor grading helped to support prices. December opened ⅛@¼c lower at 69⅜@69⅝c. Later there was fair buying on predictions of rain, which caused a slight rally, sales being made at 70⅛c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 847 cars, which, with local receipts of 111 cars—one of contract grade—made total receipts for the three points of 958 cars, against 931 cars last week and 854 a year ago.

Good commission house buying continued throughout the session and a strong feeling developed, December closing ⅝c higher at 70¾c.

A large crop yield as shown by the government report together with prospects of a heavy movement caused a weaker opening in corn. Offerings were quite liberal early in the session, but there was little demand. December opened ⅛ to ⅝c lower at 47⅛c to 47¾c and the first half hour of trading was around the lower figures. With prospects of quite general rains within the next forty-eight hours a lively demand developed and there was a rally to 47¾c. Local receipts were 213 cars, with 31 cars contract grade.

The market held steady during the latter part of the day. December sold up to 47⅞@48c and the close was a shade over yesterday's at 47¾@47⅞c.

Oats opened weak due to the government report which showed the present crop would be the largest on record. At the decline shorts bought May and elevator interests also replenished their stocks, causing a rally. December opened ⅛c to ¼c lower at 31⅛c to 31⅜c and sold to 31½c. Shorts began to cover at the decline and there was a gradual advance to 31⅞c. Local receipts were 190 cars.

Provisions opened steady on higher prices for hogs with small receipts. Trading was dull. January pork opened 2½c lower at $15.52½; January lard 2½c higher at $8.85, and ribs were a shade lower at $8.20.

THE CLOSE.

Prices at the close were as follows:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—Cattle—Receipts, 500; market steady. Good to prime steers, $7.40@8.50; poor to medium, $3.75@7.25; stockers and feeders, $2.50@4.90; cows, $1.40@4.75; heifers, $2.25@5.50; canners, $1.40@2.50; bulls, $2.25@4.75; calves, $3.75@7.50; Texas fed steers, $3.00@4.00; western steers, $3.75@6.00.

Hogs—Receipts today, 5,500; Monday, 20,000; left over, 6,081; market steady to 10c higher. Mixed and butchers, $6.75@7.30; good to choice heavy, $6.90@7.35; rough heavy, $6.40@6.85; light, $6.40@6.95; bulk of sales, $6.75@6.97½.

Sheep—Receipts, 2,000; sheep and lambs steady. Good to choice wethers, $3.50@4.00; fair to choice mixed, $2.25@3.40; native lambs, $3.50@5.75.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 11.—Dealings were in light volume at the opening and changes were small and mostly declines. Large blocks of Union Pacific and Atchison were offered, but the losses were restricted to fractions.

Some large selling orders were executed in various stocks, especially Reading, Atchison and Missouri Pacific. Declines in prominent stocks ran from 1 to 2 points. The weakness was very general and there was no indication of support until the shorts commenced to cover. On the rally Louisville sold about a point above yesterday's close, but the recoveries otherwise were trivial. Lackawanna and New Jersey Central advanced 2 points each.

There was a dull, hardening movement until the appearance of the disappointing bank statement produced a disorderly slump. Prices gave way by large fractions between transactions in some of the principal sufferers, notably Missouri Pacific, which lost 3⅞, St. Paul 3¼ and Atchison 2⅞. Declines reached 2 or over in Reading, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific and Sugar. There were a few feverish rallies on professional short covering, but the closing was active and weak.

Frank Gunter has disappeared from his home in Warsaw, and his whereabouts are enveloped in mystery. His wife says that October 3 he induced her to sign a note for $200 to enable him to purchase an interest in a livery stable. This he cashed but did not invest. She thinks he has gone west.

Chester Birch, the evangelist, said at the conclusion of a revival series at Elkhart that some church members if they caught smallpox never get it from him, for they had never been near enough to him. He had never seen them. He has labored in every state in the Union but two, and all over Canada, but he declared that Elkhart is the deadest town religiously that he has seen.

J. C. Morris, aged 70, and Mrs. Morton, aged 60, boarding at a Logansport hotel, became so vociferous in their courting as to disturb other guests at the hotel. Every time the aged Romeo attempted to kiss his inamorata she let out a yell that could be heard for a block. Officers who were summoned decided that both were drunk and locked them up. At the jail Morris was persistent, and to the officers he said: "Get me the license and I'll marry her in the morning." "Oh, you saucy thing," was Mrs. Morton's simpering rejoinder.

The state statistician finds that for the year ending June 30, 1902, there were 26,914 couples licensed to marry in Indiana, and during the same period 3,552 divorces were granted. In Allen county there were 710 licenses and 106 divorces; in Adams, 217 licenses and 23 divorces, in Huntington, 290 licenses and 50 divorces; in Wells, 302 licenses and 14 divorces; in Whitley, 194 licenses and 18 divorces; in DeKalb, 292 licenses and 51 divorces; in Noble, 212 licenses and 26 divorces; in Steuben, 166 licenses and 31 divorces, and in Lagrange, 119 licenses and 12 divorces.

A One-Half Interest in the Entire Business, consisting of a Large Shoe Manufactory, Tannery, and 64 Retail Shoe Stores located in 45 of the Principal American Cities, is now offered for sale to the public in the form of Preferred Stock

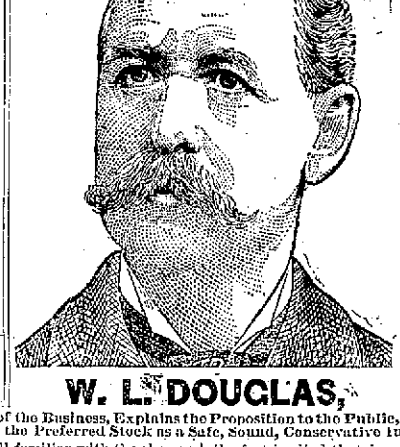
Preferred Stock In the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. Pays Better Than Savings Banks or Government Bonds.

Every Dollar of Stock Offered the Public Has Behind It More Than a Dollar's Worth of Actual Assets.

W. L. Douglas owns and operates more retail shoe stores than any other manufacturer in the United States.



W. L. DOUGLAS,

W. L. Douglas Continues to Own One-Half the Business, And is to Remain The Active Head Of the Concern.

This Business Is Not an Undeveloped Prospect—It is a Demonstrated Dividend Payer.

This is an opportunity to become a partner in one of America's most successful manufacturing concerns.

Founder and Proprietor of the Business, Explains the Proposition to the Public, and Recommends the Purchase of the Preferred Stock as a Safe, Sound, Conservative Investment.

To those who are at all familiar with the shoe or leather trade it is well known that I have been one of the largest, as well as most successful, manufacturers and retailers of men's Goodyear Welt (hand-sewed process) shoes in the world. The upbuilding of the business has been my life work. I have been eminently successful, creating a business that is permanent and beyond injury in periods of business depression.

The W. L. Douglas Shoe business is established on an entirely different plan from that of any other shoe concern. The system of manufacturing enables the manager to determine every day whether the shoes are being manufactured at a satisfactory profit. If anything wrong should occur in any department of the factory the system informs him where to find it, and it is stopped at once. The Douglas system also guarantees a full day's work every day, which keeps the manufacturing expense at a minimum.

The Douglas product is marketed in an original way, producing quick returns and very small losses. The method by which the goods are sold has made a place for the Douglas shoe in all the principal cities and towns in the United States. The business is secure against any ordinary competition.

The business has been steadily advertised for nearly twenty years, and the quality of the goods kept up to the highest standard, until now W. L. Douglas shoes are worn by more people in all stations of life than any other make.

The steady call upon the dealer for W. L. Douglas shoes insures a large and increasing business. The 64 retail stores in 45 American cities, owned and operated by me, take a portion of the factory's product. This is all spot cash business. I also sell to the retail shoe dealers throughout the country, having usually but one agent in a town.

Thus, in selling the product of the factory through my own retail stores, as well as to retail shoe dealers in towns and cities where I have no store, I keep the factory constantly employed, turning out 7440 pairs of shoes per day. There has been no change in the selling price or terms in eighteen years, the dealer always making the same profit, thereby buying with confidence. The short credit allowed prevents the dealer from getting overstocked.

My object in disposing of a half-interest in the business is primarily that it be perpetuated and extended. The name, W. L. Douglas, which is accepted everywhere as a standard of merit, has been applied principally to men's Goodyear Welt (hand-sewed process) shoes. It can as well be applied to all kinds and prices of men's, women's and children's shoes. There is practically no limit to the possibilities of extending the business.

The business has always been immensely profitable. Were my only aim to accumulate money, this stock would not be offered for sale. The perpetuation and extension of the business by the infusion of new interests into it is my chief desire.

There has not been a year in the past twelve when the business has not earned in actual cash much more than an amount necessary to pay seven per cent annual dividend on one million dollars, and the past four years the business has more than doubled and is still growing.

I began the business in Brockton in a small way 26 years ago, and from time to time have increased it, until at present a business amounting to nearly $5,000,000 annually is transacted.

As an evidence of the prosperity of the business, the fact is cited that from 727,824 pairs of shoes sold in the year ending July 1, 1898, the business has steadily increased to 1,788,000 pairs for the year ending July 1, 1902, or more than a million pair increase.

The manufacturing plant is right up to date, equipped with every modern device. About one half of the present factory has been built and equipped with machinery and paid for in the past four years. A new power plant, sufficiently large to meet all demands that may be made upon it for several years was installed two years ago. With the existing manufacturing plant, facilities are provided for a largely increased business. The manufacturing plant, machinery, and all the 64 retail stores throughout the country are free from incumbrance of any sort, and the company has sufficient cash on hand to conduct a business of $5,000,000 annually without borrowing money.

Practically all the stock of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. is owned by me. I am the president of the corporation. I am 57 years of age, have no other large interests, and desire to provide for the perpetuation of the business.

I am in perfect health, physically sound and mentally active, and I expect to continue at the head of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Co. as long as I live. The business has always paid a good profit, and is now paying better than ever.

I believe that the best way to perpetuate the business is to let the people own it and control it. I have, therefore, capitalized the business for two million dollars, one million dollars of which is preferred stock and one million dollars common stock.

The preferred stock is offered the public at par. The shares are of the value of $100 each, and will be sold at their face value only. All stock is sold by me direct.

The preferred stock, which is offered to the public at par, is non-cumulative and preferred both as to dividends and assets. Every dollar's worth of stock offered the public in this successful business has more than a dollar's worth of actual, tangible assets behind it.

This investment is the chance of a lifetime. It is as safe as savings banks or government bonds, and returns the holder of the stock double the dividends.

Dividends will be declared semi-annually, payable on January 15 and July 15, and will be payable in funds current in New York or Boston.

There is nothing whatever of a speculative nature about the purchase of this stock. It is an old established business, manufacturing a staple article of merchandise. The business has been continuously successful for more than a quarter of a century, and is more prosperous to-day than at any period of its history. It should be remembered that I am to remain as president of the new corporation, and that I retain a half interest in the business. My interest in the business is represented by the common stock, and I cannot receive one cent of dividend on my stock until the full 7 per cent. dividend has been paid on all the preferred stock.

As a safe, secure and permanent investment, I have never known of anything better, and I am president of the People's Savings Bank, and director of the Home National Bank, both of Brockton, Mass.

I do not hesitate to predict that within one year the stock will be selling at a premium.

To my friends and patrons of many years I unhesitatingly recommend the purchase of this stock as a safe, sound, conservative investment.

Stock is Now Ready for Issue, and Subscriptions are Solicited

Mr. Peter Berry of Pearl St., Augusta, Me., was a Very Sick Man.

Physicians were baffled over his case. But he took "Blood Wine" and was cured. Read what he says:

"A very hard cold settled on my lungs, causing a most obstinate cough that no medicine given me would relieve. During many months I suffered untold misery, my lung trouble growing worst. My physician was baffled and finally told me I would have to go to a warmer climate. I saw 'Blood Wine' advertised and decided to try it. After taking it regularly I was greatly pleased with its results and am now well. My astounding recovery was a surprise to my physicians. Those whom I have since advised to use it, believe with me that it is the greatest medicine in the world."

Remarkable cures seems invariably to be the result of taking "Blood Wine," not only for Coughs, Colds, and Sore Lungs, but in cases of pronounced Consumption it has killed the germs, toned up the system, put flesh on bones that almost protruded from the skin, and made sufferers of a lifetime well, hearty and happy. COMING CHANGES

CHARLEY SPANLEY WILL QUIT PENNSYLVANIA'S EMPLOY.

SOME PROMOTIONS FOLLOW

MESSRS. ROBERTS, MOORE AND HIBBINS AFFECTED.

PENNSYLVANIA AND NICKEL PLATE TAKE CROWDS.

Some changes in the working forces of Chief Clerk Robert Learmonth and Engineer of Maintenance of Way Blake, of the Pennsylvania, will occur tonight. Charles A. Spanley resigns as stenographer to Mr. Learmonth; D. J. Roberts, stenographer for Mr. Blake, will be transferred to Mr. Learmonth's office; H. H. Moore, who has been working in a clerical capacity in Mr. Blake's office, becomes the latter gentleman's stenographer, and H. A. Hibbins, a clerk in the department, will be advanced to the position to be vacated by Mr. Moore. Mr. Spanley will take a position with W. K. Noble, the hoop dealer and manufacturer, next Monday. He has been with the Pennsylvania offices over four years, commencing as stenographer to Master Car Builder J. A. Graham and passing through a series of promotions until he reached Mr. Learmonth's office, which is the best position in that line of work the offices have to give. It was this latter fact that led Mr. Spanley to resign. He is industrious, competent and ambitious and sees a better chance for advancement in the new field of labor. The other changes are in line of promotion and each man affected is worthy of the promotion given him. Each has been with the maintenance of way department some time, Messrs. Roberts and Moore having been employed there two or three years. Mr. Roberts resigned several weeks ago to take a position with the American Bridge company, but did not like to live in Pittsburg and he came back to Mr. Blake. Mr. Hibbins is a son of Thomas Hibbins, the foreman of the roofing department of the Pittsburg.

CHICAGO EXCURSION.

Four hundred and forty people left this city for Chicago at noon today, 340 of them on the Pennsylvania train and 100 on the Nickel Plate's special train. From every station along the line come reports of additions to the crowds on the trains and it is presumed that every car will be filled when the Windy City is reached. For this business the Pennsylvania ran three sections of train 39, which leaves the city at 12:15. The first section was the regular train, the second carried the excursionists from this city and the third was designed for the excursionists to be picked up at the stations along the line. This business coming at the same time that the western veterans are returning from the encampment, making extra trains a necessity, has compelled the Pennsylvania company to borrow cars. As a result one of the sections of 39 was made up entirely of cars borrowed from the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, the Lackawanna and the Santa Fe. There were two sections of 15 and 21 this morning and it is probable that there will be two sections of 9 and 11 this evening.

ATTENDING THE FAIR.

All the shops of the city were more or less crippled today by the absence of employes, who laid off to attend the fair. Yesterday the Bass blacksmith shop was closed for repairs to its engine, but this morning it resumed operations. Fully one-third of the force failed to show up, however, and each gang worked short-handed. The wheel moulders and their helpers did not report in sufficient numbers this morning to justify operations and Foreman Robert Cran sent those who did report back home and that part of the foundry is idle today. At the Pittsburg and the Wabash shops many men are off duty, but work there was not so greatly interrupted as at the Bass shops. The shops have been busy all summer, with very few holidays, and the heads of the several departments are inclined to look with leniency upon the truant ones.

MOVED TO NEW OFFICE.

William K. Noble, the hoop manufacturer and dealer, this morning moved his office headquarters from his residence, on Brackenridge street, to the new shop and office recently erected on Hayden street, adjacent to the Pennsylvania railway tracks.

A DEAL IN BOILERS.

A telegram from George T. Ladd, who is east in the interest of the Bass Foundry and Machine company, notified the company this morning of the sale of three 100-horse power boilers to the American Steel and Wire company. The boilers will become a part of the steel company's Joliet plant. This order and several others that have been placed with the Bass company gives the boiler department all the business it can attend to for awhile.

NEEDHAM ASSUMES CHARGE.

Ed F. Needham, whose appointment to the office of acting master mechanic of the Wabash was mentioned a few days ago, assumed the duties of that office this morning. Among the first business transacted by Mr. Needham was a conference with Traveling Engineer A. S. Mead and Fuel Inspector E. A. Sollitt, who came up from Peru for that purpose. Mr. and Mrs. Needham are stopping with Mrs. Bond, 374 Baker street.

Herman Prange, of the Wabash blacksmith shop, is sick and off duty.

GONE TO LAKE JAMES.

Conductor Elmer Harper, Engineer H. W. Frase and Clerk C. W. Bedson, of the Nickel Plate; Frank Belching, Al Hazzard and Mathias Monper composed a fishing party which left the city this afternoon for Lake James, where they will remain about two weeks. They will occupy Oakwood cottage, on Spring Point, while at the lake, and expect some fine sport.

THE ACCIDENTS.

D. C. McKeeman, a car builder, had a finger crushed yesterday while in the act of putting a stringer under a car. Thomas Hughes, in the employ of the Kerr Murray company, had his back and hips injured by falling from a scaffold at Chicago yesterday. He is at his home in this city. Mr. Hughes is a member of the construction gang engaged in putting in gas plants. D. R. Stanbury had a finger injured while handling freight at the Pennsylvania transfer house yesterday.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

L. Schmidt, the janitor at the Pittsburg pattern shops, is sick and off duty.

Machinist Charley Taylor, of the Bass shops, is taking a lay off to look after some private business.

Chief Engineer Henry Zauner, of the Jenney power station, is out after a confinement on account of tonsilitis.

H. C. Eix, a blacksmith at the Pittsburg shops, has gone to Monroeville, Ind., to spend a few days with relatives.

Wabash Air Brake Instructor H. C. Eddinger arrived in the city yesterday. The air brake car has been here several weeks.

A piston rod lathe has arrived at the Pennsylvania shops and will be installed at once. This lathe has a fourteen-foot bed.

James Chamberlain resumed charge of the roundhouse gates of the Pittsburg this morning, having returned from the encampment.

James Merriwether, chief clerk at Supt. J. W. Hunter's office, and his family, went to Rome City this afternoon to spend Sunday.

Erecting Engineer Frank Passino, of the Kerr Murray works, has returned from Coshocton, Ohio, where he was engaged on a gas plant.

A. S. Durnell, foreman of the east car shop tinners, is recovering from a severe illness and will resume his duties at the shops next Monday.

The Santa Fe has adopted a plan for the construction of more than 300 miles of new line in Oklahoma at an expenditure approximating $2,500,000.

In order to relieve the soft coal congestion, the Philadelphia and Reading road has loaned ten of its largest freight engines to the Baltimore and Ohio.

Thursday there arrived at Lafayette over the Big Four 110 members of the Western Society of Engineers, who spent several hours at the Purdue university.

Pittsburg Firemen H. E. Crawford and W. X. Anderson are off duty, the former on account of the death of his grandfather and the latter to go to Chicago on a visit.

H. L. Dinklage, B. Blough and G. E. Wagner have been advanced from flagmen on the Pennsylvania to conductors, and Brakeman C. E. Troxel has been promoted to flagman.

Transfer Clerk K. D. Fitch and Caller J. W. Place, of the Pittsburg freight house, are off duty, the former on account of sickness and the latter on account of an accident.

A. O. Dayton, superintendent of the West Shore and Seashore railway, was stricken with paralysis at his home in Camden, N. J., Thursday, and is in a critical condition.

Motive Power Superintendent D. F. Crawford, of the Pennsylvania, and Mrs. Crawford have returned from Lac du Flambeau, Wis., where they spent a week in fishing and other pastimes.

The anthracite coal strike seems a good thing for the Norfolk and Western, as in the fourth week of September its earnings increased $107,440 over the corresponding week of 1901.

In order to relieve congestion and expedite the movement of westbound freight, the Pennsylvania will establish an additional receiving yard at Pitcairn at a cost of $150,000, with a capacity of 1,000 cars.

It is stated that the St. Louis and San Francisco has in contemplation removing its headquarters from Springfield, Mo., to St. Louis, and that a large building will be erected for their accommodation.

Frank Rogers, the Pittsburg fireman, was removed from the hospital to his father's home, on Lafayette street, yesterday. He is getting along nicely. Mr. Rogers was hurt by jumping from his engine a couple of weeks ago.

William G. Good and Ed Jacobs have taken positions at the electric works. The works were in operation this afternoon, contrary to custom, on account of closing down Thursday afternoon on account of the races.

Nickel Plate engine 102 went into service today on the Third district, with Engineer P. W. Donohue and Fireman G. W. Conklin in the cab. This engine was turned out of the shops this week, after receiving a general overhauling.

Adam Koehl, foreman of the core room of the Pennsylvania brass foundry at Allegheny, is visiting relatives and friends in the city. He formerly resided in Fort Wayne, going to Allegheny when the company moved the brass foundry there.

F. E. McDonald, a special apprentice at the Pittsburg shops, has returned from the east, where he spent three weeks visiting railway shops in Philadelphia, Altoona, New York and Pittsburg. He also visited relatives and friends in those cities.

It is understood that the engineers and firemen on the Cincinnati, Indianapolis and Western, now that it has become a part of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, will be given standard wages. Heretofore they have been considerably below the wages paid by the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton.

The Twentieth Century train on the Lake Shore road, which makes the run from Chicago to New York in twenty hours, is beginning to be self-supporting. Until just recently it has been run at a great loss to the company. It is stated that the Pennsylvania's "Special," also a twenty-hour train, has been a money-maker from the start. Four dollars excess fare is charged on these trains.

IN HONOR OF CLASS OF 1902

PRETTY RECEPTION GIVEN AT HOPE HOSPITAL.

Event Was a Surprise to the Young Ladies—Music, Decorations and a Feast.

Members of the class of 1902, to be graduated Monday evening from Hope hospital training school for nurses, were guests of honor at a pretty function given Thursday evening at the hospital and the event was arranged as a surprise to the young ladies of the graduating class—was splendidly successful.

The young ladies had been invited to dinner at the home of Mrs. Wright and while they were absent the junior nurses took possession of the large convalescent room and the dining room at the hospital. Advance preparations had been made and deft fingers soon festooned the rooms with a wealth of decorations in white and blue, with cozy nooks improvised here and there. Flowers and palms were used in profusion and the effect was charming.

Guests of the evening were friends of the graduates to the number of sixty-eight, many of them having been patients at the hospital during the past two years, and it was not until all were assembled that the young ladies were summoned from the home where they had dined. The surprise was thorough and complete. Following a musical program, including piano solos by Prof. Higgs and two vocal solos by C. L. Willson, an elaborate banquet was served in the large dining room. The tables were charmingly decorated and the entire room presented a handsome appearance. The souvenirs were small baskets containing violets and smilax tied with white ribbon.

The event was given by the class of 1903 to the members of the class of 1902, the latter including Mrs. Elizabeth E. Wilkinson and the Misses Elizabeth Melville, Chloe A. Criswell, Ada S. Hicks, Harriet O. Miller, Ethel L. Roper and Ida R. Ranck.

THE FAMOUS SHOE FOR WOMEN

The lace shoes are all fitted with "fast color" eyelets.

There are other folks "who know how," but they DON'T have Queen Quality shoes.
These shoes have all the points of beauty that women seek, but the one great distinguishing feature that characterizes Queen Quality shoes is their knack of perfectly fitting the foot.
Your foot feels at rest the first time—feels "at home"—feels "good."
We'd be glad of the chance to demonstrate this fact. Needn't feel the slightest obligation to buy. Don't mention "the size you wear;" your foot is the only measure we need.

And just think! such shoes for

The PEOPLE'S STORE,
SOLE AGENTS.

Four companies of the Eighth regiment, United States troops, passed through the city on a special train over the Nickel Plate yesterday afternoon. The soldiers had been in the Philippines three years and they expressed gladness over the home-coming. The train stopped here twenty minutes.

The railway men who had been off duty on account of the county fair are fast returning to their duties. Among this class is Car Inspector Foreman C. E. Stapleford, Conductor George McCormick and Brakemen F. C. Crawford and L. M. Beltz. Conductor Hindel, who was hurt, and Brakeman J. F. Long, who was in Cleveland on private business, have also returned to work on the Nickel Plate.

H. L. McCoy, of the East Chicago land company, is the guest of E. Gregg Davis, the general agent. He is here assisting in the arrangements for the free excursion which is to be run to East Chicago and Indiana Harbor tomorrow. The excursion will be run over the Nickel Plate railroad instead of the Pennsylvania, as was first announced. Mr. Albert Erskine, president of the company, will arrive in the city this afternoon and will accompany the special train.

EZRA KENDALL

The Comedian You All Know Comes Next Saturday.

J. J. Rosenthal is in the city in the interests of Ezra Kendall, who comes to the Masonic Temple next Saturday in his latest comedy success, "The Vinegar Buyer," and Kendall is under the management of Liebler & Co., who control such attractions as Viola Allen, Madame Duse, Kyrle Bellew and James O'Neill. Mr. Rosenthall reports business enormous with his new star, who is playing the Grand Opera house, Chicago, this week to its utmost capacity. As one of the papers remarked, "the theater is over-crowded with people and the people are over-crowded with laughter." On the opening night of the comedian's engagement in the Windy City he was called before the curtain and made the following characteristic speech:

"I thank you, my friends, for your kind appreciation of our efforts to amuse you. We are trying our best to give an entertainment that will please you. We make no pretense to literary or dramatic merit; all we want is to give you something to laugh at. I am no actor, and never was one; I am only an accident. I particularly appreciate your kindness, as upon this stage, twenty-one years ago, I was born—as an actor. That's right—when we were twenty-one. Many of you who are now sitting down here(pointing to the parquet) were then up there(pointing to the gallery. I thank you again and now beg you to excuse me, as I have to address an overflow meeting in the adjoining cafe."

LOCAL NEWS.

Mrs. Lem B. Hartman is entertaining Mrs. Ryall, of Cleveland, O.

Rev. John H. Bosch returned today from a business visit in Akron, O.

Dr. Alice Connett has opened dental offices at No. 824 Calhoun street.

Frank Majors underwent an operation for appendicitis at Hope hospital yesterday.

Mrs. Julia Fay Randall will return the early part of next week from an extended visit in New York city.

W. W. Fishack, of Toledo, one of the proprietors of the Fishack Plaster company, is in the city on business.

Mrs. C. Hettler is in Elgin, Ill., attending a meeting of the board of missions of the Evangelical Lutheran church.

Mrs. Rebman and daughter, Miss Eloise, of Kendallville, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Richardson, of Hayden street.

G. E. Bursley, who has been spending several months abroad, sailed this week from Liverpool on the Pennsylvania and will arrive in New York on Wednesday. His sons, Messrs. Joseph and Philip Bursley, will remain in Europe some time longer.

On Tuesday evening neighbors and friends formed a surprise party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John McLane, of 520 West Fifth street, in honor of Mrs. William Anderson and Miss Daisy Archer, of Connersville, formerly of this city. Music was the main feature of the evening and refreshments were served. Last evening the ladies were again pleasantly surprised at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Langstaff, north of the city.

The home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Pierce was the scene of a pleasant gathering Friday evening, in honor of their fifth wedding anniversary. Pedro was the game of the evening, the prizes for games being won by Mrs. Frank Morgan and Frank Girard; for fourteens by Mrs. George Thompson and William McCaffrey. A two course luncheon was served after the games. Dr. and Mrs. Pierce were presented with a handsome mahogany cabinet by the guests.

MEETINGS CLOSE SUNDAY.

The evangelistic services which have been held in the West Jefferson street Church of Christ during the past few weeks close Sunday evening. The services have been unusually successful, 120 persons having united with the church since the meetings began. There will be a service this evening and a number of persons will be baptized. Sunday afternoon at 3:30 there will be a meeting for men only and the subject will be "Finding a Man." On Monday night Evangelist Wilson will give his illustrated lecture on "Cross and Crown."

SYNOD MEETS AT GOSHEN.

The Indiana synod of the Presbyterian church will hold a meeting at Goshen, beginning Monday and continuing several days, and the pastors of the Presbyterian churches of this city will attend. Dr. Vannuys, pastor of the Goshen church, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his pastorate there next week and Rev. D. W. Moffat, of this city, will preach the anniversary sermon.

HARD TO BEAR.

A young lady in Chicago sent her autograph book to Ezra Kendall, with the request that he write something funny and original. This is what she got, and the peculiar thing about it is her father owns a coal yard:

"The wireless telegraph has come;
"The horseless carriage, too,
"And now, alas, they tell us that
"The coalless winter's due.
"Regards to Mark Hanna.
"President Baer, please write.
"Ezra Kendall."

WANTED TO REFORM THINGS

TWO STRENUOUS ONES TRY TO CAPTURE THE FAIR.

Failed Because the Police Had Their Own Notions of It—News of the Police.

Two men giving their names as Miller and Rapner were arrested at the fair grounds last evening after they had once been ejected from the premises for disorderly conduct. They were slated for drunkenness and this morning pleaded guilty and were fined $1 and $5 respectively, Rapner getting the larger fine because he seemed to have had the larger jag. They were troublesome during the afternoon and eventually became so boisterous that they were conducted outside the ground and told to go away back somewhere and sit down. They evidently couldn't find any good place to sit and so went back and proceeded to load themselves for bear. They said that they really felt sorry, but that duty demanded that they exterminate the police force and make a general cleaning up of the fair ground. After the smoke of the battle cleared away the two reformers found themselves in the patrol wagon and the fair was going on just the same. In Rapner's pocket were found half a dozen beer mugs which he had evidently stowed away for use in case of emergency.

James Woodworth was up on a charge of plain drunkenness, but his case was continued until Oct. 15, his bond being fixed at $300. Woodworth has been in trouble before and recently his wife was obliged to file affidavits against him in sheer self-protection, and a divorce is pending now if not already granted. There seems to be some doubt of the man's mental responsibility and in order to afford opportunity to investigate that matter the case was continued.

Yesterday several small losses were reported to the police by various persons, but no cases of pocket-picking or "dipping" have yet been suggested this week. Chatelaine watches, scarf pins and an occasional purse have turned up missing, but in a number of cases the goods were found by honest persons and returned to the owners. Miss Clark, of the Journal-Gazette, lost her watch, advertised for it as a sensible newspaper woman should and had it returned to her next day. The superintendent of police says that he does not believe that there was a professional pickpocket in the city this week.

Officers Borgman, Chevlron, Kelly, McKendry, Strodel, Smith, Thomma, Trebra, White and Blum are the detail from the regular force at the fair grounds this afternoon.

John Teshmann, of Bluffton, reported the loss of a pocketbook containing a small sum of money.

SHAMROCK'S LAST GAME.

The Shamrocks will play their last game on the home grounds tomorrow, when they will meet "Cap" Collar's All-Professionals at League park. Collars has secured the services of Crossman, a backstop of high-class ability and either Wagner or York will pitch. Collars will play center field and Menzies, ex-captain of the Indiana university base ball team; Cliff Smith, captain of the Columbia City team; Wagner, who beat the Columbian Giants last week; Bill Raidy and several other well known players will be in the game. The line-up will be as follows:

Robbins	Pitcher	Wagner
Stout	Pitcher	York
Tieman	Catcher	Crossman
Smith	Shortstop	Yott
McDarby	First Base	Raidy
Nill	Second Base	Smith
Cherry	Third Base	Aible

TELEPHONE BONDS FOR SALE.

The Electrical Investment Co. of Indiana now offers for sale $50,000 of the bonds of the Logansport Home Telephone Company and a like amount of the bonds of the South Bend Home Telephone Company.

The Logansport bonds bear 5 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually. The company has over twelve hundred telephones and one hundred miles of toll line in operation. These bonds are offered at $92.50 per $100.00. Bonds, $100.00, $500.00 and $1,000.00 each. The South Bend bonds bear 6 per cent. interest, payable semi-annually. The company has about installed at South Bend 1,500 telephones, is erecting 300 telephones at Mishawaka, and has constructed about 100 miles of toll line. Bonds are offered at par. These bonds afford a choice investment, producing a fair interest. These plants have cost about $400,000.00.

SAY MAN ONLY, SHALL WORK

STRANGE RELIGIOUS BELIEFS OF A COLONY OF 7,000 PEOPLE, ALL OF WHOM MAY PERISH THIS WINTER.

Creaking wearily, a heavy farm wagon, loaded high with sacks of flour and hauled slowly through the principal streets of Yorkton, the chief town near the Russian Doukhabor settlement, in the northwestern territory of Canada, by eight gaunt, hungry looking men and six hopeless looking women, told a story of religious fanaticism that perhaps has never had its parallel in the history of such manias.

Turning neither to right nor left and heeding not the jests of the spectators, this human freight train crawled at a snail's pace with the huge vehicle over the deeply rutted prairie road. Night and day would this strange procession move over the limitless prairie, scarcely resting until their "village of freedom," more than thirty miles distant, was reached.

Tugging at the stout ropes that harnessed them in pairs together, with bowed heads and in absolute silence, these peculiar people would patiently endure, hour after hour, the most agonizing labor in order to live up to their religious convictions.

The wagon was being taken to the Doukhabor village of Terpennie, and the human beasts of burden were the unfortunate Russians who came to America about four years ago to make new homes in a land where, they were told, they could worship as they pleased and could follow the ancient customs and rites of their forefathers without molestation by the government. The Doukhabors have done so with a vengeance. As a result several thousand of them who have become afflicted with a most peculiar religious mania will either starve or freeze to death this winter if they do not get rid or come to their senses in time to gather in their crops.

The history of these strange people since they arrived in Canada is a remarkable one. Through the influence of the kind-hearted tsaritza they were permitted to leave Russian territory. Lion hearted men, like Tolstoi and other social reformers, raised funds to enable them to reach a "land of promise." The dominion government gave them a grant of an immense tract of fertile land in the Saskatchewan district, and the way seemed clear for the oppressed people to make good homes, if not a competence.

Full of hope and rejoicing in the prospect of religious and social liberty, 7,000 of the immigrants reached Canada and were finally settled on the reservation set apart for them. They adhered to their religious customs, but worked hard, and, until the present year, appeared to be on the high road to prosperity. Now all is changed. Religious fanaticism of the most aggravated type has taken possession of the Russians, and to all appearances several thousands of them have become burdens on the country.

RESULTS OF FANATICISM.

This "mania," as it is called in the west, first became noticeable several months ago, and the government agents in charge of the settlement attempted to check it. A Russian socialist, whose burning eloquence was more powerful than the calm words of advice of the agents, succeeded, however, in making hundreds of converts to his doctrine in an incredibly short space of time. He traveled through the district preaching and exhorting and found ready listeners everywhere.

The result has been startling, even in this sparsely settled western country, where a religious outbreak must be exceedingly strange to excite more than a passing comment. The scene of the Doukhabor men and women converting themselves into beasts of burden told the pathetic story of religious fanaticism.

The present mania has been reached gradually. The Doukhabors are averse to the shedding of blood. One of the reasons they left Russia was because they were forced into military service. The Canadian government guaranteed them exemption from this and accorded them every social and religious liberty. The Doukhabor religion, when its adherents arrived here, was apparently not finished. It developed unsuspected and impracticable tendencies of an alarming character this year. From the belief that it was a sin to eat flesh, these strange people arrived at the conviction that it was also sinful to eat animal products of any kind, and milk, butter, cheese, eggs, etc., were added to the list of "forbidden fruit."

Another step in this direction was taken under the guidance of the Russian socialist mentioned, and this last "advancement" has resulted in their undoing. If it was wrong to eat the flesh of animals, or their products, the same line of reasoning soon led them to condemn the use of leather boots and leather harness made from the hides of God's creatures. The condemnation of woolen clothing, because wool grows on the bodies of sheep that belong to the Lord, speedily followed. Finally the edict went forth: "It is wrong to make servants of any of the lower animals; to use them for beasts of burden or for any other purpose."

This was generally accepted, and hundreds of cattle, horses and sheep were turned out on the trackless prairie to wander at will. Since that time, for all drawing and hauling purposes and farm operations, men and women take the places of horses and oxen at the plow and on the binders.

In order to prevent the turning loose of every head of cattle possessed by these people, the government has been compelled to seize every animal that remained.

TURNED ANIMALS ADRIFT.

When I visited the settlement of the Doukhabors they had "advanced" still another step in their religious awakening. They said that man is the only animal spoken of in the bible as having to work; therefore no one should possess himself of the animals they had turned adrift on the prairie.

They gathered their immense herds together and drove them night and day to the vast wilderness to the north, which is inhabited only by roving bands of Indians. They had robbed themselves voluntarily of the last resource between themselves and starvation this winter.

The inevitable happened. Reports just to hand state that the Indians were not long in discovering the cattle and immediately drove them far from the confines of civilization to a district where few white men have recently ventured. Government agents have started out to bring back the animals and punish the Indians, but it is feared they will not be successful.

In the meantime the fanatical settlers continue to worship in their strange manner, to follow out their "God given" ideas and to make poor progress with their harvests. In fact, many of them appear to be indifferent to everything but religion, and to be oblivious to the severe winter that is almost upon them.

"Where will it end?" the government officials are anxiously asking each other, and no one seems to be able to answer the question.

The Doukhabors seen by me were, in some cases, rudely made wooden shoes, and in others shoes made of bark. All had adopted cotton garments of the flimsiest material. With such apparel, which they say they will never give up, the misguided people will be unable to exist in this land of terrible cold longer than one month after winter sets in, more particularly as their diet consists largely of bread, water and vegetables.

The mercury after November drops sometimes to forty below in that section and wretchedness, disease and finally death seem to be the inevitable lot of the Russians if their religious fanaticism does not abate. Some persons in the vicinity think that the advent of cold weather will bring the Doukhabors to their senses. The history of religious manias in other countries and in bygone days does not strengthen this belief.

The government officials are apparently powerless to help the settlers. They offered to buy their stock and to devote this money toward their sustenance during the winter. The Doukhabors immediately took alarm and drove their animals into the wilderness. The only ground on which the Doukhabors can be interfered with is that of insanity, and some steps in this direction may be taken by the government before winter, to save them from a terrible fate.

The Doukhabors have since the mania seized them written to the authorities in different parts of the United States, where the climate is mild, requesting grants of land; so apparently there is some method in their madness. They have, however, received no encouraging replies.

SOME DOUKHABOR CUSTOMS.

Many interesting details of the life, customs and history of the Doukhabors were learned by a visit to the settlement. One of the leading men gives the following account of their departure from Russia and the causes leading up to it.

"We may not lift arms, according to our religion," he said, "and could not enter military service in Russia to fight, with conscience. We were put in the forestry branch of the army and for years we served the term of our conscription in planting and caring for the thousands of acres of trees set out by the Russian government.

"In the reign of the last Nicholas they tried to compel us to carry guns. This we would not do and they drove us from our farms and harried us like wild beasts on the mountains. Our men were imprisoned and our women ill treated. They burned our homes and drove us down toward the Caucasus in winter. There many of our little children died of cold and exposure. In a few years we had made homes in our new place and then the government sent the Cossacks upon us again. They took our crops, our cattle, our money, burned our houses and drove some of our leading men into exile. Many were then sent to the salt mines of Siberia.

"The prisons were full of men whose only crime was that they refused to slay their brethren. Some of my relatives are in Siberia now, at a salt mine near Irkutsk, and although they have been there eighteen years, we cannot get them out. They will die there, exiled and martyred.

"We did all we could to satisfy the Russian government and said that we would do anything except learn to fight. We sent letters and petitions to the czar, but no notice was taken of them. And all the time the cruelty of the Cossacks went on. But the good God gave most of us strength to endure, though it was very dark. And at last the heart of the tsaritza was moved by our sufferings. One of the petitions reached her and she spoke in our behalf.

GOSPEL OF FRESH AIR.

(Boston Evening Transcript.)

If fresh air were only metered and sold at a certain price per thousand cubic feet those who could afford it would be pretty sure to have their living and sleeping rooms thoroughly ventilated. Being about the only thing necessary to our existence that is free, there is altogether too general a tendency on the part of people who pretend to be enlightened to fortify themselves against it. The old-fashioned but false notion that night air is dangerous to health has altogether too much respect shown it in these days when medical science has shown the contrary to be the fact. Every room in a house in which people live or sleep should receive enough of the outer air to keep that which they breathe constantly free from the rapidly accumulating impurities that are incident to the exhalations of any considerable number of people.

We go to church and we get sleepy even when the minister gives us a strong and enlivening sermon. We send our children to school and wonder why they seem dull and enervated on their return. In nine cases out of ten it is the fault of the sexton in the one case and of the teacher or the construction of the building in the other. A revelation on this point has been furnished in the good results that have followed the treatment employed at the sanitarium for consumption at Rutland. Fresh air is about all the tonic or medicine that is supplied the patients. Their reduced blood and weakened bodies are thoroughly oxygenated, not fitfully, but constantly. They live and sleep in the open air in all kinds of weather, and the marked relief which this treatment induces, in many cases reaching positive cures, is the complete vindication of the method.

But if such treatment will work cures, how much greater must be its value in preventing disease. Colds would be less frequent if only air that is being constantly renewed were breathed. Contaminated water breeds typhoid, but not less surely than contaminated air breeds consumption or plants the seeds of pneumonia. Those who suffer most from throat troubles, catarrh and kindred complaints are, as a rule, they who shut out the healing breath of heaven. They breathe the poisoned air of a close room which makes the delicate membranes diseased and sensitive, and thus bring themselves to a condition in which the healthy, normal influences of outdoor life affect them. They are, in a sense, freak people, so adjusted to a poison that a healthy environment is torture to them.

But there is another reason why we should have direct connection with the outer air, especially from our sleeping rooms. It is not enough to give entrance to fresh air; we should also provide an exit for foul air and gases. Within a week this fact has been painfully brought home to us. The French novelist, Zola, died from coal gas asphyxiation. A young man of great promise met his death in the same manner in this city last week. We do not know what the conditions were, but it is more than probable that had provision been made in either case for an amount of fresh air sufficient for healthful sleep it would also have safeguarded the sleeper against the effects of the deadly gas. There is no gift of heaven to man for which we should be more thankful than for the pure air. It was made free that it might be used unstintedly. It is a fundamental condition of physical, mental and moral health. No doubt there are fresh air cranks, but may their tribe increase. They preach a gospel that has been altogether too much ignored.

QUEER DRUGS OF ORIENT

Powdered Rhinoceros Horn a Sovereign Remedy and Tiger Eyes Cure Anything.

At any Chinese drug store you can buy for 25 cents an assortment of dried herbs, insects and other weird things composing a prescription that, it is stated, will cure the ailments of ordinary people, but when it comes to the sickness of a wealthy Chinaman, then there are drugs which are as high in price as their reputed medical virtues.

First in the list of these sovereign remedies is the powder made from a spotted rhinoceros horn. An ordinary rhinoceros horn is said to be less efficacious; the spotted variety is a wonderful cure for intestinal disorders. These horns, which, it is satisfactory to learn, come chiefly from some of the rivers of the Philippines, bring as high as $50 each in the Singapore Chinese drug market. In the old Japanese pharmacopeia they were catalogued as "unicorn horn, at least that is what their "unicorn's" horn is supposed to have been.

Next to spotted rhinoceros come the three tiger remedies—the eyeball, the liver and the blood. As may be imagined, tiger eyeball can only be prescribed for the exceedingly wealthy, the Chinese Astors, Morgans and Vanderbilts; but it is firmly believed there is no disease it will not cure. The tiger liver, when dried and reduced to a powder, is worth its weight in gold all over the Orient. Tiger blood, when evaporated to a sediment at a temperature of 110 degrees, and taken in the form of a powder, is believed by all Asiatics to be the best tonic known, and will make a fine warrior out of the most chicken-hearted.

In desperate cases, when neither spotted rhinoceros horn nor tiger eyeball affords relief, the Chinese physicians prescribe what is known as a majoon. This is a compound of ground pearls and other precious stones, which it is held that nothing but the malign influence of some powerful devil can overcome. A majoon, of course, is high-priced medicine, but it has fallen a good deal in the popular estimation, because the Chinese doctors are suspected of taking advantage of the patient's critical state and craftily substitute a fraudulent powder of glass and mother-of-pearl. In this way they pocket a handsome difference, attributing the death of the patient to a devil even more powerful than the majoon. It would seem that the Chinese medical profession is not above some questionable practices, and is much in need of a system to guarantee the purity of majoons.

Next in price and virtue to the foregoing remedies are the various oils and fats obtained from serpents. The more deadly the serpent, the more potent, apparently, are its medicinal qualities. The fat from the tail of a cobra, applied externally, is highly prized in eastern Asia as a cure for chronic rheumatism.

In connection with Chinese medicine, it may occur to many people in the United States that they have rarely, if ever, seen a one-armed or one-legged Chinaman. The reason for this is that all Orientals have a profound objection to surgical operations. Indeed, they prefer to die rather than lose a member, because they believe that, as they came into the world with two arms, two legs, etc., they must of necessity go out of it with the same number. Otherwise, something horribly unlucky might happen. They might, for instance, be sent to hunt for the missing arm or leg and spend half their futurity in finding it. One of the greatest difficulties the new school of medicine in Japan has had to overcome is to induce the people to submit to surgical operations.

REMARKABLE PIPE ORGAN.

One of the queerest musical instruments that was ever built was put up in a house nearly as queer. Both were made at the instigation of Joris Karl Huysmans, a Frenchman, who has been called the greatest living literary sensualist.

The house was built to represent the bottom of the sea. Inside were all manner of strange seaweeds, mosses and grasses. The tinting of the walls was of pale green, with the most delicate shades of browns and pinks. Outside all of the windows were great tanks of fish of nearly every known variety, for in this way he determined to keep up the illusion in which he took so much delight.

But in the strange domicile that he had erected for himself there was nothing that was so in keeping with the sensualistic character of the man as his musical instrument. Charmed with a song as he was with color, it must yet mean something tangible to him. To this end he authorized the building of an immense pipe organ, every pipe of which was connected with one central tube, which could be held in his mouth as he played.

The organ was so constructed that each pipe was in communication with a butt of liqueurs, so that with each note he touched he was thrilled not alone by the sound but by a drop or two of the most choice wine. The beautiful strains of Mendelssohn's "Spring Song" or the "Lohengrin" wedding march meant to him a double harmony; for as the beautiful chords filled his sea house with melody he was receiving a dulcet minstrelsy of benedictine, chartreuse, creme de menthe and many other equally epicurean drinks with each wizardlike touch of the white keys.

The man who conceived this weird idea has run the gamut of all human emotions to find something new and has just entered as a lay brother in a Benedictine order of monks.

After living a life full of all that makes it worth living to such a man, he has given it up for a daily routine of religious observances that begin with mass at 6 o'clock, private prayer at 7, matins at 8:30, and so on through all the day, with nones, sompline and vespers, and manual in all the lapses of time. This last freak seems even more eccentric than all that has gone before in his career of extravagances and eccentricities.

SOME FADS OF WOMEN

A woman without a fad would be an anomally in these days. The statement does not imply that women are now more eccentric than they were formerly, although it may be an evidence of the wider license the sex enjoys—a license, it may be remarked, that is rarely abused.

Sarah Bernhardt is easily and admittedly the most eccentric actress of our time. Everything is forgiven genius and thus the extraordinary stories continually being told about the great French actress only serves to make her more and more interesting.

At one time she is making a pet of a lion, a tiger or a snake; at another time we hear that she usually sleeps in the coffin in which she expects to be buried. A year or two ago it was declared that madam's latest craze was to rise at 4 o'clock in the morning, and, attired like a man, to prowl about the streets of Paris for two or three hours together, says the Chicago Chronicle. She was christened Rosine and no one seems to know why she is called Sarah.

Mme. Sarah Bernhardt has added another to her many hobbies—namely, collecting seaweed, of which she owns many remarkable specimens.

Mrs. Arthur Ondogan, the sister-in-law of the viceroy of Ireland, is one of the very few lovers of animals who have ever made a pet of a python. There have always been individuals, especially members of the fair sex, who have exercised a curious fascination over snakes, perhaps one secret of their power being their absolute fearlessness. Mrs. Ondogan's python is 9 feet long and though showing a great dislike to strangers is devoted to its mistress. Many well known people make a point of having peculiar pets, but it may be said, with very little fear of contradiction, that in this matter Mrs. Arthur Ondogan holds the record—at any rate, so far as English women are concerned.

Miss Julia Neilson is one of the most beautiful of dog enthusiasts. However busy she may be, this charming actress can always find time to attend the Ladies' Kennel association shows and she has often been herself a successful exhibitor. Miss Neilson, who is, of course, known to many of her friends as Mrs. Fred Terry, takes her four-footed pets very seriously. She herself takes them out daily for good, long walks and bathes and combs their silky coats, finding her reward in their enthusiastic devotion.

The duchess of Bedford shares all her husband's enthusiasm for animals, about which she probably knows more than any lady in society. She has a large library entirely devoted to works on natural history, a gallery of pictures of birds and animals of all kinds, and she delights in teaching horses, dogs and cats to perform tricks.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has a great love for jewelry of every kind and wears some beautiful rings and necklaces. One of her rings consists of one large pearl which opens and shuts and contains a portrait of Mrs. Campbell's late husband.

THE WORST FORM.

Multitudes are singing the praises of Kodol, the new discovery which is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by digesting what they eat; by cleansing and sweetening the stomach, and by transforming their food into the kind of pure, rich, red blood that makes you feel good all over. Mrs. Cranfill, of Troy, I. T., writes: For a number of years I was troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, which grew into the worst form. Finally I was induced to use Kodol and after using four bottles I am entirely cured. I heartily recommend Kodol to all sufferers from indigestion and dyspepsia. Take a dose after meals. It digests what you eat. Meyer Bros. & Co.

SLAVES WERE SOLD AT BAR

TYPICAL SCENES THAT WERE COMMON IN OLD ST. CHARLES HOTEL, NEW ORLEANS, BEFORE THE WAR.

(New Orleans Times-Democrat.)

"Talking about the old St. Charles," said an old-timer, "it was one of the best known slave marts in the olden days. There were two stands erected, one for males and one for females, at each end of the bar. There the auction took place every Saturday. Sometimes there were only a few to be sold and sometimes there were a great many. Anyway, they brought fancy prices in those days, between 1857 and 1860. The importation of slaves had practically stopped then, and the prices were good. Besides, the war cloud had not come so close that men really believed there was going to be a gigantic struggle. Planters from all along the river, from Natchez and Vicksburg and all places between, used to congregate in New Orleans and come around for the purpose of buying a likely-looking woman.

"The men always brought the best prices, of course, because they could do the most work. Sometimes the price went as high as $1,200 and sometimes it was as low as $500. It all depended on whether the fellow who was selling had to sell or not. Things were then very much as they are now in that regard, and men were as apt as ever to take advantage of the misfortunes of their brethren. If the slave was a man and warranted in good health, the first bid was somewhere in the neighborhood of $500—that is, if the owner did not have to sell him to pay his debts. That being the case the first bid was liable to be in the region of $300. Then the contest started, and the auctioneer, after the manner of his kind, prated on the value of the man he was selling and what the productive capacity of the average man was when he got to the field and was in charge of a hoe or had the direction of the energies of a mule. The bidding would go along until it reached $1,000, and then there would be some hesitation until those who really liked the man for his general appearance could have time to adjust themselves to the situation. Finally some man would timidly bid $1,200, and there would be a pause unless the slave on the block was an unusually good man.

MONEY THEN WAS PLENTY.

"It was all cash in those days, and everybody had the money. To me, fresh from the bogs of Ireland, it was a revelation. I never saw so much money in my life and I have not seen such times since then, though I have seen men who had more money than any of the sugar planters of those days. In those times all of the people seemed to have money. If you did not have any yourself, all you had to do was to ask the next man for it, and you got it. The wealth was evenly distributed. I was amazed, for I had come from a country which was poor then, and is poor even yet, and I had not been used to velvet and those things which go for luxury. I had run away from a ship down near the barracks, and I thought for a while I had landed in some place where they grew the money.

"Those good old times have gone, the princely sugar planters have gone, the selling of slaves has been abolished, the old hotel is but a memory and yet I sometimes find myself wishing for their return. They were the days when there was something else in life besides the mere getting of money, when there was little of selfishness and much of generosity, when riches counted for just what they would bring in the market and for the enjoyment and the pleasure they gave to others as well as to the possessor. But what is the use of regretting the decline, when we were talking about slave trading and slavery? The selling of slaves continued there every Saturday until the outbreak of the war. Of course, when the people saw the war was coming, the number of slaves to be sold fell off, for the reason there were few buyers, but the business was kept up until the call for troops was made, and then all the buyers were under arms and the business died of itself.

PLANTERS WERE NOT CRUEL.

"I used to stand and watch the traffic in human beings when I was a boy. There was nothing of heartlessness, nothing of cruelty, nothing of meanness in it. These people had been reared to a system, and the system, if bad, was not of their originating. They used to take the newly bought slave, and the first thing they did was to feed him well and tell him where he was going. They were liberal and generous, those planters of the days before the war. They used to take care of their people and they educated the slaves and made them fit for something. The best evidence we have of this is that the generation which was freed by the bayonet was the best generation of negroes which we have seen. We have not their like now, and it will be a long time before we get the like of them. But the war stopped the sale of slaves and the auctioneer had nothing else to do, so he quitted.

"After the war there were still auctions in the old bar, but they were merely of those things which we can sell now, and that is of no interest. Still, there was always a memory of the old days about the hotel. I came to New Orleans without a dollar, but the memory of the time when I had first seen them sell men and women was strong within me, and it was only destroyed when the old building was destroyed by fire. I never looked at the bar but what I thought of the auctions. I never went in there but I thought of the time when the men bought their plantation workers within its walls. And right here it ought to be said that the selling of slaves was not half as bad as it is said to be. The slave was used to it. He had been sold before, and he was brought up to believe that he would be sold again. He knew the value of loyalty to his master and he gave every man whose chattel he was unquestioning obedience. This was shown during the war, when the slave had the opportunity to burn every house in the south, and yet scarcely a single act of atrocity is recorded during that time.

THE NICARAGUA EXPEDITION.

"It would be interesting to know how many people were sold at those old auction stands. I do not know and I have never heard the number estimated, but sometimes I wonder how many people there were whose whole future was disposed of there. It is one of those things which will never be settled, but it is interesting to speculate on.

"But the selling of slaves was not the only thing about the old St. Charles. Expeditions were organized there to go to Nicaragua and to Cuba and all the other republics to the south of us. New Orleans was the great outfitting point for them all in those days. They congregated here by the hundreds, members of the best families, young men who were with all the world before them, but who were anxious to help to fight for the liberty of the brown people in the south. Crittenden, who died with Lopez in Cuba, and all those who died with Walker strolled through the rotunda, the old, magnificent rotunda, and told their stories of ambition and the stories of their lives. Some of them were not very brilliant, and been disappointed in politics, some had been disappointed in other ways, and some had been the victims of overplay. But they were a cheery lot of fellows, ready and willing to take what fate had in store for them, and they went out to the jungle and to death with the smile of youth on their faces.

"If the old place could have found the voice for all the romances told within its walls there would be no need for the latest American novelist. He would already have arrived. They had dreamed grand dreams, these youngsters; they had fought all the battles in advance and they were sure of victory.

EVOLUTION OF ICE CREAM.

That most delectable and toothsome of confections known as ice cream dates its origin to a period less than three centuries distant. It was not, when first placed before the consumer, the delicious compound it now is. It has been brought to its present state of perfection by a gradual process of evolution from the original plan. In the beginning of the seventeenth century iced fruits and cups made of ice first appeared at banquets. Like many other good things for the table, ice cream claims Paris for its birthplace, and yet it was not a Frenchman but an Italian named Precupe Couteaux who first thought out the idea of icing lemonades and liquors. From this was gradually evolved over 100 years later ice cream, or iced butter, as it was then called, from its resemblance to that article of food.

While all civilized nations serve ices in great variety, we are apt to think of ice cream as an essentially American dish, probably because frozen desserts of all kinds are more generally used in this country than in any other. Ice cream first made its appearance in America in Philadelphia at the end of the eighteenth century. It was then considered a great luxury, and consequently was rarely seen except on state occasions. It was not within the reach of ordinary mortals until 1800, when an Italian confectioner established an ice cream house, as it was then called, at Germantown, a suburb of Philadelphia.

Railroads in this country employ over a million people at an annual cost for wages and salaries of over $600,000,000.

In considering boats the dory, a flat-bottomed, lap-streak boat, though but twelve or thirteen feet long, is the safest that floats.

SAY MAN ONLY, SHALL WORK.

We had heard of America, that there men may worship God as they pleased, and we asked to go there. The good tsaritza got for us leave to go. She sent her messengers to us with the good news and we knew that God had pity on our sufferings.

"The government offered us $165,000 for our farm buildings, but nothing for the land. We never got the money, as at the last moment the government tried to stop us from going. We got away, though, and are now enjoying every social and religious freedom."

When asked if their present religious ideas would not ruin them, the Russian solemnly raised his hand and said: "The good God is guiding us. We have nothing to fear."

NEW VIEWS OF MARRIAGE.

A few of the Doukhabors have changed their attitude toward the marriage laws. Marriage is, I was informed, with most of them not a civil contract, but a religious sacrament, their belief in this regard being in practice what the Catholic belief is in theory. Their tenets in the matter of marriage have never been interfered with by the Russian government. The registration of marriage is there unknown, and naturally when they settled in Canada they continued to marry and be given in marriage without notifying the department of vital statistics.

The Doukhabors hold that no man and woman should continue to live together as man and wife unless they love and reverence each other. For two who are incompatible in disposition to live together in the marriage relation they regard as a deep sin. Far better, they say, is it for the unhappy couple to separate, and if so disposed, each seek a more congenial partner. This theory, put in practice, has earned for them the title of "free lovers."

The Tolstoi of the settlement is Mr. Scherbenin, who is one of the followers of the famous author. He is a man of high rank in his own country and is finely educated. He renounced a brilliant career to come to America to teach these simple people the communal theory of Tolstoi.

The settlement is about 250 miles west of Winnipeg, the center of commerce and industry in the Canadian west, and can be reached in a day and a half. The territory set apart for the Russians is a rich one, and already land speculators have their eyes upon it. A few years ago it was occupied only by roving bands of Indians.

Several Russian villages have sprung into existence. Each consists of but one long street, running in a straight line and about 150 feet in breadth. The buildings are long, low structures, roofed with sod or thatched, all arranged with gable ends to the street. Several families live in each dwelling and all share alike, for everything is conducted on the communal idea. One general bath house, for instance, supplies the needs of the village.

The men usually are of commanding stature, broad of shoulder and deep of chest. The women are not nearly as well built. They are comparatively shorter than the men, stockily and sturdily built, but lacking in any natural grace or charm.

The problem of what can be done for the Russian Doukhabors is an interesting one and is attracting the attention of Canadian statesmen. It is generally conceded that if the present religious mania continues to spread among the 7,000 Russians in the settlement and they adhere to their present peculiar ideas, a terrible tale of suffering and death will come from the district before many months have passed.

LOOK OUT FOR HAY FEVER.

Biliousness and liver disorders at this season may be prevented by cleansing the system with DeWitt's Little Early Risers. These famous little pills do not gripe. They move the bowels gently, but copiously, and by reason of the tonic properties give tone and strength to the glands. Meyer Bros. & Co.

CHAPTER III.

CAPTAIN NEALE RESENTS AN IMPUTATION.

SOME one put a key into the lock of the front door, and the faint sound of it was distinctly audible in that room. The growling voice of a policeman in the hall said:

"Hold on! You can't go"—

And seemingly in the same instant a young man appeared upon the threshold of the room. He took two steps forward and then halted, the others facing him.

He was one of those men whose tremendous vital energy declares itself unmistakably. As he stood there, perfectly still, the power within him seemed to affect the air. It was as when one feels the tension of an engine that is at rest, but ready. When such a man advances, neither the ordinary obstacles nor even his own will can stop him.

"Brenda!" he said in a singularly restrained voice, very ill suited to his words. "Why in the name of heaven are you here?"

"If I know," she answered, "it was because I wanted to help her, because I couldn't have her die like this. I"—

"Where is she?"

"They have taken her to a hospital—St. Winifred's."

The young man snatched up his hat, which had fallen to the floor.

"Wait a minute!" exclaimed Neale. "You're Alden—Clarence M. Alden?"

"Yes."

"Well, I want to talk to you. Wait! If you go down there, you can't get in nor find out anything; that's orders. You'll get more information here."

"Is she living?" demanded Alden.

"Yes," replied the captain. "If she dies, I shall know of it within five minutes, and that's quicker than you could learn of it anywhere else. Let me manage this. I'll take good care of you. I'll see that you get every word of news. Meanwhile let's get down to business. You sent that note to her?"

"I did."

"With $500 in it?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"At ten minutes after 2 I sent it by John Robinson, a clerk in my office."

"Where is he now?"

"I don't know," answered Alden. "I didn't wait for him to come back. Now, answer my question. Who did this thing?"

Neale spread his hands abroad with a grotesque gesture intended to disclaim the possession of the information.

"We're all at sea," he said. "Somebody got into this room and stabbed the girl with this knife."

He suddenly lifted a newspaper that had lain on the table and disclosed the weapon beneath it. The long blade was open and visibly stained with blood. Brenda's hand had been within six inches of it, and at the sight she started back with such alarm that Dr. Blair stretched out his arm to support her. She did not fall, however, but stood rigid, staring at Alden.

The color rushed to his face. He put up his hand and pushed back the tangle of light brown hair that was lying moist upon his forehead.

"Recognize it?" said Neale, with his mirthless grin.

"It is mine," replied Alden in the same repressed and steady tone that he had used throughout this scene. "I gave it to her."

"When?"

"A few days ago," said Alden. "I don't exactly remember."

"Queer present," rejoined the captain, "for a girl."

"She was cutting some pictures out of the magazines," replied Alden. "I happened to have the knife in my pocket. She used it, and I didn't take it back."

The captain slowly nodded his head, as one who has reached the end of a topic and is preparing for the next.

"And now," said he, "how long have you known this young lady?"

He waved his hand toward Brenda.

"I have known Miss Maclane a long time," said Alden. "Why do you ask?"

"Miss Maclane, eh?" said the captain, elevating the strange tufts of purple colored hair that were his eyebrows. "I understood that her name was Williams."

"I have done an absurdly foolish thing," said Brenda, addressing Alden, "I was afraid my name would be published, and so I tried to deceive these people."

"Big mistake," rejoined Captain Neale, shaking his head solemnly. "This whole story will have to come out, and if the facts are known to the police at the start it will come out straight; otherwise there's no telling what the reporters will do with it."

"There is no reason whatever," said Alden, "why Miss Maclane should be brought into this affair."

"There isn't, eh?" said the captain. "Why is she here? Sympathy for a woman that she says she never saw? No; I guess we'll have to have something better."

"If you don't get it," said Alden, "what then?"

"I'll have to hold her as a witness."

"You mean that you will put me under arrest?" demanded Brenda, her face and even her lips absolutely colorless.

"I'll have to," said the captain.

"And suppose that I answer all your questions now?" she asked.

Neale struck his hand down upon the table.

"You can go home just as soon as you've done it," he declared, and at that moment a man in plain clothes, but with the unmistakable stamp of the police upon him, entered the room and saluted his superior.

"Excuse me for a minute," said Neale, and, accompanied by the man who had just appeared upon the scene, he stepped out into the hall.

Brenda turned to Dr. Blair, who was leaning against the mantelpiece.

"Dr. Blair," she whispered, "you will not say that it was I whom you saw leaving this house?"

"No," replied the physician slowly; "I will not."

"What does this mean?" demanded Alden.

Dr. Blair regarded Alden steadily for some seconds before he said with that careful measuring of words that doctors learn:

"I have informed the police that as I was passing this house, very near to the time when this deed was done, I saw a person—a woman—come out and walk away hurriedly toward Broadway."

"A woman!" repeated Alden, as if speaking without volition.

"She cannot be accounted for," continued the doctor. "No one knows who she is or why she was here or how she got into the house. As to the last point, however, I will say this: I had a room in this house for a few weeks while repairs were in progress at No. 160, where I live, and I then noticed that the spring lock on the front door did not always hold. If the lock has not been repaired, there may be an explanation of some mysterious points in this case."

If there had been an eye upon Detective Ehlendorf at this moment, it would have noted that he was much interested, but no one was looking at him. He himself was observing Brenda closely.

Alden had begun to pace the floor, his hand upon his forehead.

"I can't stay here any longer," he said suddenly. "I must see Elsie. I must know— Jack! How came you here?"

The question was addressed to a young man who entered with Captain Neale. He was in his normal state a rather handsome fellow, with the ox eyes that the Greeks admired (for wo-makes childbirth easy by preparing the system for parturition and thus shortening labor. The painful ordeal is robbed of its terrors, and the danger lessened to both mother and child; the time of confinement is shortened, the mother rested, and child fully developed, strong and healthy.

Morning sickness, or nausea arising from pregnancy, is prevented by its use.

As pregnancy advances, the breasts enlarge, become swollen and hard. Long before the child is born, they are preparing for the secretion of milk. It is important that they receive early attention. Mother's Friend softens the skin and facilitates the secretion of Life Fluid. Undeveloped breasts, hard-caked shortly after delivery, are the result of non-treatment, and likely to culminate in Mammary Abscess, from which so many suffer excruciating pain and are left with these organs permanently impaired.

Softness, pliability and expansion are given to the muscles and sinews, thus bringing comfort and causing an easy issue of the child. Try it. Of druggists $1.00. Our book "Motherhood" Free.

HE ROSE FROM POVERTY

Something About John Studebaker, of Bluffton, Millionaire and Indiana Pioneer.

One of the men of Indiana who rose from poverty to wealth by his own efforts is John Studebaker, of Bluffton, writes W. H. Blodgett in the Indianapolis News. He was born in Darke county, Ohio, yet despite his eighty-four years, and the fact that he is almost blind, he manages a great part of his business affairs. He received a meager education, and when not working on the little farm, clerked in a store at Greenville, Ohio, at less than $15 a month.

In 1838 Mr. Studebaker left Greenville and came to Wells county. He traveled overland, took with him a small stock of goods and opened store in a log cabin on a plat of ground that is now the public square in Bluffton. It took him fifteen days to bring his goods from Cincinnati, and a week more before he was ready for business. The country hereabouts was not thickly settled and his customers, many of whom were Indians, were from miles around.

In 1844, when the country began to be settled, he put up a two story building, and securing the appointment as agent for the American Fur company, built up an extensive trade in Adams, Jay and Wells counties. In 1852 he put up a brick building, and four years later started the Exchange bank. Seven years later it was merged into the First National bank, and Mr. Studebaker was elected president.

Mr. Studebaker has all his life been in the grain and produce business, and at this time he has associated with him in that business J. W. Sale and David E. and John A. Studebaker, under the firm name of Studebaker, Sale & Co.

The exact figure of Mr. Studebaker's wealth is not known, but he would be more than a millionaire if he converted all his business interests and real estate into cash. He owns, as far as is known, the following:

Stock in Studebaker bank, $100,000.

Warehouses, etc., at Bluffton, Markle, Warren, Van Buren, Liberty, Centerville and Landesville, $200,000.

Cash on hand, $100,000.

Farms in Wells county, $75,000.

Business property in Bluffton, $85,000.

Residence property in Bluffton, $60,000.

Additions to the city of Bluffton, $60,000.

Stock on farms, $25,000.

Machinery on farms, $15,000.

Although past eighty-four years of age, Mr. Studebaker rises every morning at 5 o'clock, and during the day visits all his farms and business houses. William D. Angel is employed to go around with him and help him transact his business, Angel telling him what the men are doing on the farms and delivering Mr. Studebaker's orders. He goes to bed at 7 in the evening, and nothing will cause him to change his hour for retiring.

It is related that not long ago a Chicago real estate man came to Bluffton to make a deal with Mr. Studebaker that involved about $50,000. When 7 o'clock arrived, Mr. Studebaker went to bed, leaving the Chicago agent sitting in the room with no one to talk to but himself.

In politics Mr. Studebaker began as a whig, and remained with that party until after the breaking out of the civil war. He took an active part in supplying the federal army with volunteers, and before the war closed he became a republican. In 1876 he joined the Greenback party, and was twice on the state ticket and afterward ran for congress. In 1884 Mr. Studebaker joined the prohibition party, with which he is affiliated at this time.

Mr. Studebaker is exact to the cent and pays to the cent. If one of his employes loses time he must account for it, but if one works overtime he is sure of being paid for it. Most of the details of Mr. Studebaker's business are managed by Hugh Dougherty, and he relies a great deal on Mr. Dougherty's business foresight in financial transactions.

Mr. Studebaker was one of the promoters of the old Fort Wayne, Bluffton and Muncie (now the Fort Wayne branch of the Lake Erie and Western) and he was also instrumental in building the old plank road between this city and Fort Wayne, before the Lake Erie and Western was built.

Few people in Bluffton are aware of the fact that Mr. Studebaker, or "Uncle John," as he is familiarly known, smokes. No one ever caught him at it in public, but every evening he smokes a 10-cent cigar before he goes to bed.

Mr. Studebaker has always been a temperance man, and among the legends of Wells county is a story of how a man named Decker imposed on him. Mr. Studebaker sent his hired man to Fort Wayne with a load of produce, and instructed him to bring home a jug of oil for his friend Decker. On the way home the hired man found the jug contained whisky instead of oil, and got drunk. He explained to Mr. Studebaker on his return home that he had been taken with cramps and drank Decker's oil to save his life. Since that time the common name for whisky in Bluffton has been "Decker's oil."

Sufferers From Constipation

Cured Permanently by Mull's Grape Tonic.

A Crushed Fruit Tonic-Laxative.

GENTLEMEN:—I have used two bottles of Mull's Grape Tonic with great benefit. It certainly cures constipation, from which I have been a sufferer for many years. There are a great many old soldiers here troubled the same as I was. I shall recommend it to them.

JAMES HARBAUGH, National Military Home, Dayton, Ohio.

The weakened and diseased condition of this brave old soldier presented a most pitiable sight. The privations and exposure of many months in the field fighting for his country left this man diseased and weak. He was afflicted with the same trouble that had caused the death of thousands of his comrades—perhaps as many died from stomach disorders during the Civil War as from the bullets of the enemy. After many years suffering he has been cured by Mull's Grape Tonic. Mull's Grape Tonic is a great remedy in bracing up and making strong healthy people of those who have suffered from constipation. This remedy is a fruit preparation. It contains the partly fermented juices of many blood-making and strength-giving fruits compounded after the famously successful formula of the Germans, who call it the Traubenkur or Grape Cure.

Constipation is the beginning of many death-resulting affections. Constipation is the decaying and festering of undigested food in the alimentary canal. The food lies in the bowels and there decays, throwing its disease-creating germs into the sensitive membranes of the alimentary canal from whence they find their way into the blood and shortly the entire system is diseased. The patient loses weight and health. He suffers from rheumatism, lung trouble, may get piles, have kidney trouble or any one or all of the many maladies to which the human system is heir. Mull's Grape Tonic cures all this. As a laxative it immediately relieves the direct cause. Mull's Grape Tonic will at once add new strength and vigor to the wasted and diseased system. It will put strong, healthy flesh on emaciated bodies. It will make rich, red blood of the thin, lifeless fluid which has coursed through the veins. Mull's Grape Tonic is sold under a positive guarantee. It will cure you, because it has cured every person who has ever used it. It is better to take than any combination of cod liver oil. It is a better body-builder and flesh-creator, a better blood-maker and strength-giver than any combination of drugs, fruit or vegetable products, mineral or animal tonics. That is just what you will say after using one bottle of Mull's Grape Tonic. Your doctor will advise you to take Mull's Grape Tonic. He might ask you to pay him for giving you the prescription. Here is a chance to save the fee. All druggists sell Mull's Grape Tonic for 50 cents a bottle. Send 10 cent. and the name of your druggist to the Lightning Medicine Co., Rock Island, Ill., for a large sample bottle. Mull's Grape Tonic is sold in Fort Wayne by Ranke & Nussbaum.

NATURAL ANXIETY.

Mothers regard approaching winter with uneasiness; children take cold so easily. No disease costs more little lives than croup. Its attack is so sudden that the sufferer is often beyond human aid before the doctor arrives. Such cases yield readily to One Minute Cough Cure. Liquifies the mucus, allays inflammation, removes danger. Absolutely safe. Acts immediately. Cures coughs, colds, grip, bronchitis, all throat and lung trouble. F. S. McMahon, Hampton, Ga.: "A bad cold rendered me voiceless just before an oratorical contest. I intended to withdraw but took One Minute Cough Cure. It restored my voice in time to win the medal." A ROYAL HOUSEWIFE

WHY QUEEN ALEXANDRA IS A VERY BUSY WOMAN.

Much of the Burden, However, Is Assumed by Her Able Private Secretary, Miss Knollys—Managing One Thousand Household Servants.

Queen Alexandra, Edward of England's beautiful consort, notwithstanding her high position, is beset with a multitude of cares as a housewife. Of course she is not tied down by domestic duties, but she has far more to do with the daily life of the palace than is commonly supposed.

The servant question must be a weighty one, when $1,500,375 is paid out yearly for running the palace, while $600,000 pays the wages of the household domestics. Queen Alexandra has complete control of the royal household, with 1050 servants to superintend, all of whom are old retainers, who have been born and brought up to do this kind of work.

The queen must also read and criticise the court circular, which gives in detail the goings and comings of visitors at the palace, promenades, visits and the music to be played after dinner and all court gossip, so dear to the heart of the British maid or matron. This task is performed during the midday luncheon, when everything pertaining to the meal is quiet and informal.

The corps of servants of the royal household is under the charge of a superintendent, who is responsible for the smooth working of the whole domestic force. Perhaps the most important of all these necessary functionaries is the chef, who reigns supreme over the regions of the kitchen and for the slight consideration of $3,500 deigns to cook the royal dishes. There seems to be no danger of his being overworked, as his assistants are many.

Two lamplighters, two assistant cooks, four roasting cooks, sixteen apprentices, six kitchen maids and two yeomen of the kitchen are detailed to help him in his duties. Over all these there is the ever watchful clerk of the kitchen, who, aside from guarding expenses and keeping them down as far as possible, does all the carving of game, meats and fish which are to tempt the royal palates.

MISS CHARLOTTE KNOLLYS.

There is many a sweet tooth at the palace, and for the delectation of these there are two confectioners at salaries of $1,500 and $1,200 each.

The royal laundry consists of a pretty stone building near Richmond park. Special boxes are made to hold the soiled clothes of royalty, each box being made of cedar and having a brass plate bearing the name of the owner of the clothes. A most costly soap is used, and a delicate odor is given to the clean garments by drying them on sweetbrier bushes. When the servants at the palace get married or become too old to work, they are given a home and some small duties which give them enough to live on, for no servant has ever been known to be discharged.

Queen Alexandra is very much dependent in all personal matters on her private secretary, Miss Charlotte Knollys, who occupies a position which is envied by every other Englishwoman. She is now and has been for many years Queen Alexandra's most intimate friend. King Edward also entertains very cordial feelings of friendship for Miss Knollys. Her father, Sir Francis Knollys, is private secretary to the king and held the same position to the late Queen Victoria.

Miss Knollys is a quiet and unassuming little woman. What her position means only those can comprehend who have some knowledge of the extensive and variegated correspondence of royalty as well as the delicate diplomatic duties which fall to the lot of a queen's private secretary.

The proper disposal of all the questions that arise in a queen's personal business requires a comprehensive knowledge of the social and official standing of every person with whom the queen or her household may come into contact.

Some time ago it was reported that Miss Knollys would soon be made a peeress in her own right. She would thus become eligible for the highest position in the queen's household.

The name Knollys is pronounced as if written Knowles. Besides being an intimate of the queen Miss Knollys is the "chum" of the princesses, who regard her with affection.

No danger of consumption if you use Foley's Honey and Tar to cure that stubborn cough. Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

LOFTY MOUNT TACOMA.

How Earthquakes Have Changed the Great Volcanic Peak.

As a result of earthquake shocks during the past summer Mount Ranier, or Mount Tacoma, the greatest glacial and volcanic peak in the United States, has undergone considerable change.

The great mountain has long been a source of interest to tourists and scientists, and many parties have ascended the pile, which rises to a height of 14,525 feet above the level of the sea. It is about seventy miles southeast of the city of Tacoma, on Puget sound, Washington. So clearly can it be seen from that beautiful city that the snow capped dome seems to rise right out of its suburbs. The mountain, which is visible for every foot of its height, can be seen for hundreds of miles in every direction and is a majestic spectacle.

A party from Tacoma which recently visited the mountain were convinced that it had received a great shaking up.

The whole mountain top shows evidence of recent unusual disturbances. The lower portions of the glaciers, which have their origin far up the side of the mountain and extend to the lower slopes, are littered with a debris of stones and ice that had been shaken and dislodged from the upper glacial areas and gone thundering down the mountain in the shape of avalanches.

The old and only practicable route to the top by the way of Gibraltar rock has been destroyed. Immense masses of ice hurled down from the crater peak have lodged in such quantities at the top of Gibraltar, members of the party say, there is no possibility of following the precarious route up the steep glacier leading along the left side of the rock. The triple peaks show indications of great disintegrating forces at work. Crater peak, which is the central one of the three, appears as if it had been flattened on the top by the widening of the crater. The southern rim of the crater, which has been barely visible from Paradise valley heretofore, can now be seen standing up in fine relief from viewpoints anywhere in the valley.

Roundabout Reasons.

"What makes you so anxious to go to Europe to live?"

"My patriotism," answered the quizzical person. "I am not a man of superabundant means, but I like everything that is American, and I want to go abroad where I can purchase American products at the least possible expense."—Omaha News.

A Slip Noose.

"Give him plenty of rope," quoted the stranger, "and he'll hang himself."

"Mebbe he will," returned Alkali Jake, "but out here we don't take no chances. If we give him the rope, you bet we'll make a sure thing job of the hanging."—Chicago Post.

FORTY YEARS' TORTURE.

To be relieved from a torturing disease after 40 years' torture might well cause the gratitude of anyone. That is what DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve did for C. Haney, Geneva, O. He says: "DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured me of piles after I had suffered 40 years." Cures cuts, burns, wounds, skin diseases. Beware of counterfeits. Meyer Bros. & Co.

DANGER IN FALL COLDS.

Fall colds are liable to hang on all winter, leaving the seeds of pneumonia, bronchitis or consumption. Foley's Honey and Tar cures quickly and prevents serious results. It is old and reliable, tried and tested, safe and sure, contains no opiates and will not constipate. Sold by Dreier & Bro. and Pellens & Polster.

MRS. GRACE BRUCE-DAWSON,

No. 138 Broadway,

GRAND RAPIDS, MICHIGAN.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Feb. 18, 1902.

Wine of Cardui is an untold blessing to the wife who is in daily fear and trembling dreading the time when a new life is born. That time of intense pain is banished if only Wine of Cardui is used during pregnancy. I had a miscarriage six years ago and it seemed to break down my general health and I was in misery and pain for two years, although doctoring constantly. I then took Wine of Cardui for eleven weeks and it changed me so I hardly know myself again. I felt so well and happy. I now became pregnant again and the anticipation of the coming event kept me in rapture and yet dread that the first experience would again be my lot, but thank God and Wine of Cardui, in due time a lovely boy came to my home, a cute, healthy, happy child, fat and good natured enough to satisfy any fond mother's pride. I had no serious trouble after his birth, but felt well and so glad it seemed the choicest blessings had fallen to my lot. I feel that a happy married couple with a child have something to live for and I look forward to the joy which only parents know. My thanks are due you. I only wish I could speak to every individual wife and I would say, take Wine of Cardui and you will be well.

Grace Bruce-Dawson

IF Mrs. Bruce-Dawson of Grand Rapids, Mich., had taken Wine of Cardui six years ago she would not have suffered miscarriage. When she finally did take Wine of Cardui she became a strong, healthy woman fit to undertake any duty of womanhood.

Hundreds of thousands of mothers besides Mrs. Bruce-Dawson have known what suffering at childbirth is and have also known what it is to get relief from Wine of Cardui and have an easy confinement.

With this great remedy within their grasp today women need not fear to become mothers. Wine of Cardui builds up all functional weakness and makes childbirth practically painless. It does this by regulating the deranged menstrual function, relieving bearing down pains and healing inflammation and ulceration. Wine of Cardui worked this wonderful change in Mrs. Bruce-Dawson's condition when doctors were powerless to help her. Wine of Cardui will work this wonderful change in you if you will try it today. This successful remedy is not only the safeguard of the mother but the girl just entering young womanhood and the middle aged woman approaching the change of life acknowledge its value. It is woman's best remedy for every ill peculiar to her sex.

THE WORKSHOP OF GOD

The Place Where Omnipotent Skill is Building Humanity Anew—Where Failure is Made Good.

(Copyright, 1902.)

Chicago, Oct. 5, 1902.

Text: "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them."—Ephesians, 2:10.

The Workshop.—A workshop is a place where raw material is taken and the finished product turned out. Our text makes the declaration that the Christian is the workmanship of God. He has taken the natural man and by His marvelous, wonder-working power He has created him anew in Christ Jesus. This thought of God's receiving the raw material of a perishable human life and turning out a finished product for eternity is suggestive of a workshop wherein this marvelous process takes place. Did you ever go through a manufacturing plant? What a busy place it was. The hum of the whirling wheels, the click and grind and pound of the machinery and the bustling, busy workmen, all told a story of something being wrought. You were first shown the piles and piles of crude, raw, unshapen materials bearing no resemblance whatever to the delicate and beautiful piece of machinery being packed for shipment in the shipping room. Step by step you saw the process by which the raw material was cut and molded and shaped into the complete, perfectly-working machine which was to be sent out on a mission of usefulness. At each machine you observed that some part of the raw material was clipped, or shaved, or filed or bored away and left in the scrap box below, while the part upon which the workman was expending his skill and energy became more shapely with every turn of the machine. Every part of the plant, every machine bore an essential and necessary relationship to the finished machine which was capable of doing the work for which it was created.

We turn to the conception of the spiritual workshop in which God operates, and find that a close parallel exists between it and the workshop in which man operates. In the unseen realm of God's activity He has established His workshop. We cannot know all the marvelous and beautiful mystery of that wonderful and busy place, but it is our privilege to behold on every hand the raw materials of misspent and misdirected human lives which are taken into God's workshop and then to see the finished product of transformed lives sent forth to perform good work. When we see the drunkard lifted out of the gutter and by the transforming power of God made a useful and honored member of society; when we see the vicious and criminal stripped of their evil propensities and filled with new spirit and purpose; when we see the willful, self-centered expand under the Divine touch and reach out with His love to serve a lost, dying humanity; when we see earthly ambitions and hopes of the human heart exchanged for the certainty of eternal riches and honor and glory; when we see dark and clouded brows transformed into countenances beaming with a heavenly light; when we see burdened hearts and lives, crushed under the weight of earthly cares and responsibility, mounting up into the heavenlies on the wings of faith; when we see all this, and more, then we know that a great work has been wrought by the unseen hand of God—that the omnipotent forces of His workshop have been in blessed operation. What are these forces?

God's workshop is a co-partnership affair, consisting of God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost. Perfect harmony and cooperation exists between this triune management. God the Father, if we may reverently so declare, is the Founder and Head Manager of this spiritual workshop. God the Son is the Pattern after which all lives coming into the workshop are molded and formed. But He is more than this. He is the vitalizing force, the transforming power which, permeating the raw material of the dead soul, creates it anew in Him. God the Holy Ghost is the Active Agent through whose operation the work of the Father and the Son is made possible. As the Special Representative of the Son, Jesus Christ, He goes out into the world soliciting material for God's workshop. He convicts the world of sin, of righteousness and judgment. Having convinced the soul of the need of being created anew in God's workshop He returns with the soul to help carry on that blessed operation.

The Raw Material.—Our text sets before us attractively the finished product of God's grace—a soul bearing the impress of the Divine hand. Think of it! The painting of a Raphael can be identified by the master strokes of the brush and the superb coloring. The graceful lines of the sculptured figure reveal to a certainty the sensitive touch and marvelous skill of a Michael Angelo. The soul-inspiring lines as they tell off in musical rhythm life's story of love and devotion, of tragedy and sorrow, of deep-rooted valiant and exalted heroism and self-sacrifice, bear the positive marks of the creative genius of a Shakespeare. And the new creature in Christ Jesus which God turns out from His workshop shines forth in resplendent glory as the product of His handiwork. "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works." But what of the raw materials out of which have been evolved this wonderful Divine creation?

The painting of Raphael if traced back to its elements was but a collection of unmixed paints such as any child might use to daub the crude picture, and the brushes used were such as the most mediocre artist used. The statue of an Angelo stepped out of a common block of marble such as anyone might cut out of the mountain. Just the ordinary paints and brushes, just the crude unshapen mass of marble. Very different indeed in appearance from the finished product which artistic conception and the skill of genius were able to call into being. So with the finished product of God's workshop. It is very different from the crude materials which are first received. And what of this raw material?

Scripture is clear and positive in its description and identification of the raw material with which God has to deal. From the Old Testament flash such declarations of God as: "All our righteousnesses are as filthy rags." "There is none that doeth good. They are all gone aside, they are all together become filthy: there is none that doeth good, no, not one." And the New Testament lays bare the awful condition of the human heart and life, its desperate need, when it declares: "Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truebreakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God." This long and full enumeration by Paul is but the different manifestations of the condition of the human heart and life, which is one of deadness, until it is called into life in God's workshop; for we are all "dead in trespasses and sins."

Let Ezekiel, the prophet, supply us with a metaphor which he applied to the house of Israel, likening them to a valley full of dead and dry and bleaching bones. The blackness and silence of death there. Heaps on heaps of hideous, grinning skeletons, but no life, no activity, no usefulness there. Such is the condition of the world. A great valley full of the deadness and blackness of sin. The world does not see it, for it loves darkness rather than the light because its deeds are evil. But the Holy Spirit, the Active Agent of God's workshop, is out in the world trying to convince it of its dead condition. If you will let Him present His overwhelming arguments to your soul He will convict you of your condition and your need.

The very best salesman in the world with an article of the most pronounced merits would not be able to sell it unless he could secure an audience with the prospective buyer. The need of the latter might be most pressing, and the argument of the salesman unanswerable, yet it all would be of no avail if he should refuse to listen. The Holy Spirit is pressing upon the human heart on every hand for an opportunity to present His claims and secure raw material for God's workshop. Let Him clarify your vision and you will be able to see the dry bones all about. And can these bones live? Is it possible that out of such hideous and revolting material can be made a saint to shine eternal in the heavens? Is it possible for that black and jagged rock before the smelter door to yield the pure, untarnished gold? Is it possible for the blocks of steel and brass in the factory to yield the perfect little timepiece, ticking off the vanishing minutes? Is it possible that that blackish tar, that foul-smelling refuse of the gas plant, can yield under the proper processes the pure white paraffine? Is it possible that Mother Nature can take the cold, black earth with its offensive fertilizer and pour into your lap the golden grain and the ripened fruit? Ah, how wonderful! But how infinitely more wonderful is it that God can take into His workshop the raw material of man's failure and recreate him in Christ Jesus.

The Power of Choice.—But suppose the gold quartz should refuse to yield to the refining process, the steel and brass should not submit to lathe and drill, the black offensive tar should persist in flowing to waste instead of into the retort where its different elements could be chemically separated, or Mother Nature should disdainfully turn from the rich, black loam to the glistening white hard sand of the sea shore? No bright and shining gold, no busy ticking watch, no white paraffine, no grain and fruit. Useless would be the plants established to carry on these processes. So is it with man. Unless he lets the Holy Spirit have him to take into God's workshop, there to carry on the wonderful transforming work, the infinite love and power of God cannot be manifested in him. Man can say to the quartz, the steel and the brass, and the coal tar, you must. But God does not go to the human heart with any such imperative summons. He has given to man the power of choice. He must decide himself whether to enter God's workshop and submit to the molding of the Divine hand and will.

The Process.—The world has been asking with Nicodemus, ever since that midnight conversation in the presence of Jesus, how a soul could be born again, how God could create it anew. And the Lord comes with the same answer as of old: "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; so is every one that is born of the Spirit." And would we dare to attempt to lay bare the hidden mysteries of God? We may not enter into the workshop of God and spy out with curious eye the wonder-working operations there. We may not study the life-giving process, as an astronomer searches out new facts in regard to the tiny star, or the scientist through his microscope learns more and more of the infinitesimal microbe, but, oh! we may submit to the hand of God and experience the thrilling joy of the new life.

"I know not how this saving faith
To me He did impart,
Nor how believing in His word
Wrought peace within my heart.

"I know not how the Spirit moves,
Convincing men of sin,
Revealing Jesus through the Word,
Creating faith in Him.

"But I know whom I have believed,
And am persuaded that He is able
To keep that which I have committed
Unto Him against that day."

The Pattern.—As in every workshop where raw material is taken and manufactured into articles useful and ornamental, there is the pattern, the working model which is followed, so it is in the workshop of God. The perfect man, Christ Jesus, is the model after which all the constructive work of the shop is carried on. The first Adam disobeyed God and became subject to death as a consequence of sin. All molded after his pattern in the world since then have borne the same disfiguring marks of sin and death. You cannot expect the machine which is constructed after the imperfect model will be free from defects. It was necessary, therefore, if man was to be reconstructed, recreated, a new and perfect model must be secured. For centuries God was busy preparing for this tremendously important event in the world. In the fullness of time He chose His dearest treasure, His only begotten Son, to go to the earth and by His life among men, and as a man, supply the perfect pattern after which the new and Heavenly race was to be constructed. He perfectly kept the law of God and did His Father's will. He was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. Wherein Adam the First failed, He won glorious victory over Satan, and forever put the arch deceiver of mankind to flight. As the perfect pattern He stood upon the mountain of transfiguration and the glory of God transformed Him and He was revealed to the eyes of sinful man as the perfect man. He was ready to go back to God, as far as He Himself was concerned.

But from beholding the face of His Father in Heaven He turned His gaze back to earth and saw the sons of Adam the First dead in trespasses and sins. He had demonstrated His own purity and holiness. Now came the working out of a plan by which death as punishment for sin could be overcome and man could be recreated after the perfect pattern. And this was the subject of conversation between Christ Jesus, the perfect man, and Moses and Elijah. He talked with them concerning His decease, or exodus, which He should accomplish at Jerusalem. He was to become more than the pattern. He was to become the vitalizing force by which the dead soul was to be called into life again.

He was perfectly ready to step back into His place in Heaven, but He so loved the world that He came down into its midst again and became "sin for us, Who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in Him." He became our substitute for sin, for "the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all." Thus in Christ man escapes the consequences of sin, while at the same time God's judgment against sin is perfectly satisfied. He triumphed over death in His resurrection, and thus became not only the perfect pattern to be used in God's workshop, but the vitalizing force as well.

The new-born babe does not suddenly spring into manhood, but develops step by step from babyhood to maturity. So in God's workshop, the new-born soul is not suddenly crowded to the "measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," the perfect model, but grows step by step into His likeness. And herein is where the workshop of God is kept constantly busy. The Holy Spirit, the Active Agent, "maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered," for with His eyes on the perfect model He sees what is needful to shape us into that likeness. And God begins to cut off here and smooth down there, to mold and polish the soul into the perfect likeness of the pattern. And the process goes on gloriously if we will be submissive, for "whom the Lord loveth He chasteneth," until some day we come into His presence and are made in all fullness like Him.

Good Works.—Man in his workshop builds machines to perform certain work. They are expected to do that work or be cast aside as worthless. No less is this true in God's workshop. "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus, unto good works." God cannot be satisfied with the soul which is content to rest in the thought that it is safe in Christ Jesus. He wants to see that new-born creature in Christ Jesus performing the functions for which he was created. "Created unto good works." Impossible to do good works apart from Christ, but in Christ such activity becomes possible. It is evidence that the soul has been born again, and it is absolutely essential to its life and growth. God found Peter an ignorant fisherman by the lake of Galilee and made him into an apostle and preacher, not for himself alone, but that he might preach on the day of Pentecost and win three thousand souls for Christ. And that he might go on doing the good works of God, from raising the lame man at the temple gate all through his busy ministry to the glory of his martyrdom. God reached down and dragged out of the awful depths of unbelief and hellish hate Paul, the "chiefest of sinners," not for Paul's sake alone, but that he might become the great apostle to the Gentiles and reveal the wonderful mysteries of the glorious Gospel of Jesus Christ. God takes you and me, my brother, into His workshop and creates us anew in Christ Jesus that we may begin to work for Him. Saved to serve.

"Serving God through all our days,
Telling not for purse or praise;
But to magnify His name,
While the Gospel we proclaim.

"Seeking only souls to win,
From the deadly power of sin;
We would guide their steps aright,
Out of darkness into light."

Lesson in the International Series for October 12, 1902—Crossing the Jordan.

THE LESSON TEXT.
(Joshua 3:9-17).

9. And Joshua said unto the children of Israel: Come hither, and hear the words of the Lord your God.

10. And Joshua said: Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you, and that he will without fail drive out from before you the Canaanites, and the Hittites and the Hivites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Amorites, and the Jebusites.

11. Behold, the ark of the covenant of the Lord of all the earth passeth over before you into Jordan.

12. Now therefore take you 12 men out of the tribes of Israel, out of every tribe a man.

13. And it shall come to pass, as soon as the soles of the feet of the priests that bear the ark of the Lord, the Lord of all the earth, shall rest in the waters of Jordan, that the waters of Jordan shall be cut off from the waters that come down from above; and they shall stand upon an heap.

14. And it came to pass, when the people removed from their tents to pass over Jordan, and the priests bearing the ark of the covenant before the people;

15. And as they that bare the ark were come unto Jordan, and the feet of the priests that bare the ark were dipped in the brim of the water (for Jordan overfloweth all his banks all the time of harvest),

16. That the waters which came down from above stood and rose up upon an heap very far from the city Adam, that is beside Zaretan; and those that came down toward the sea of the plain, even the salt sea, failed, and were cut off: and the people passed over right against Jericho.

17. And the priests that bare the ark of the covenant of the Lord stood firm on dry ground in the midst of Jordan, and all the Israelites passed over on dry ground, until all the people were passed clean over Jordan.

GOLDEN TEXT.—When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee; and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee.—Is. 43:2.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Preparation.—The host had been encamped on the upper terraces of the Jordan valley. Early on the morning of the 7th of Nisan they broke camp and descended to the water's edge. It was on this day that Joshua made arrangements for the food supply (1:10, 11). Here, as if watching their chance to cross, they remained for three days. But for their faith that somehow God would find a way, this would have been very hopeless business. Joshua used the days of waiting to perfect the arrangement for the crossing, and directed that the people sanctify themselves (see Ex. 19: 10).

The Crossing.—The Jordan valley may be described as a great trench "160 miles long, and from two to 15 broad, which falls from the sea level to as low as 1,292 feet below it."—G. A. Smith. The river itself is a small, turbulent shallow stream, about 90 feet in width—about the width of many of our city streets. At certain seasons, however, it overflows its regular bed, and spreads out over the bottom lands, becoming quite a formidable stream. The river was high at the time of our lesson, and the fords, usually covered by only three feet of water, must have been impassable. The two spies probably crossed by swimming. "Hereby ye shall know that the living God is among you:" In the few encouraging words which Joshua spoke to the people before the start, he centered their attention on God, who was a living, helping present person. In Him was their strength. "The Lord of all the earth!" An idea of God vastly superior to that of the surrounding nations. "A significant title of the Most High at a time when the conquest of the land was contemplated."—G. F. Maclear. "When they that bare the ark were come unto the Jordan:" The priests, whose duty it was to carry it. They were over half a mile in advance of the people. Remember that Israel was a great company, and was spread out for a long distance up and down the river. The movement of the ark could not have been seen if the people had swarmed in all around it. From this time on, the ark, and not the pillar of cloud, was to be the symbol of God's guiding presence. "Rose up in one heap, a great way off, at Adam:" This damming up of the river took place over 15 miles above the point of crossing, probably near Tell Damieh, where the mountains crowd the river, and where a landslide or "jam" of floating trees could easily accomplish the result described. At the crossing of the Red sea God used "a strong east wind" to accomplish His purpose. Here it was probably some unusual obstruction near Tell Damieh. As a matter of fact, exactly this thing happened in the year 1267 A. D. at this very place. "What occurred 650 years ago, by what we call natural causes, may well have occurred 3,000 years before, timed by Divine interposition."—Canon Tristram in Sunday-School Times. "The people passed over:" Probably below the place where the priests stood in the river bed, that they might feel that God stood between them and the returning waters. The crossing was hurried, and effected at many different points.

The Memorials.—This memorial was a constant reminder of what God had done for them as a nation. Think, in this connection, of the value to us of our various memorials—soldiers' monuments, national holidays, Christmas, the Lord's Supper, etc.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Those who desire God's help should sanctify themselves, so that He can give it to them.

Then the ark of God went before the people, leading them in safety; now we follow the cross.

If the cross leads into deep waters, we may be sure that a path will be made through them.

When God says: "Arise, go over this Jordan," faith will not shrink, and God will make a way.

When God opens a path, then is the time to go over. Soon the Jordan may roll on as before.

Overworked Backs

Being Relieved in Fort Wayne.

You say it's from overwork when you're all tired out from sitting at your desk all day long, from sticking right to it no matter what your daily task may be. You go home with a torturous ache in the small of the back, with sharp pains in the loins. The kidneys rebel at overwork and the many aches and pains tell you they are sick.

Doan's Kidney Pills

Set the kidneys right again; remove the ache by curing the cause; cure every kidney ill from common backache to diabetes. Read this Fort Wayne proof:—

Mr. C. J. Noll, of 115 Barthold street, butcher employed at H. Strodel's meat market, says: "When I was working in Frenchtown an attack of kidney disorder got hold of me and though I tried every known remedy I was unable to get rid of it. I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box at Meyer & Co.'s drug store. Before I took these pills I was greatly troubled with backache. I could not rest at night in only one position, and when I was up it was almost impossible to stoop. The kidney secretions were discolored, had a bad odor and at times I grew very dizzy. I commenced feeling better as soon as I started taking Doan's Kidney Pills and by the time I had finished the first box I was entirely cured"

Falling Hair Stopped

I had typhoid fever this summer, consequently was losing my hair terribly and my head in places was perfectly bald. Newbro's Herpicide had just come into use in Philipsburg, and the doctor strongly recommended it to me. After three or four applications my hair stopped falling out, and is coming in again quite thick. I used to be troubled greatly with dandruff, of which I am now quite cured, so you see I have cause to praise Newbro's Herpicide.

THE MAN IN ARMOR

Was no match for the microbe. Giants he might slay but this microscopic organism defied him, and in many a campaign more men were destroyed by camp diseases than by the enemy's sword.

The one way to arm against microbic disease is to keep the blood pure. Impure blood both breeds and feeds disease.

The signs of impure blood are easy to read. Pimples, boils, and eruptions generally proclaim the blood to be impure. Scrofulous sores and swellings, salt-rheum, eczema, etc., are other signs of a corrupt condition of the blood.

Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and cures diseases caused by the blood's impurity. It cures scrofulous sores, boils, pimples, eczema and other defiling and disfiguring diseases.

"It gives me great pleasure to express my faith in the virtue of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Ezekiel Floru, of Greytown, Ottawa Co., Ohio. "I suffered everything for two years with humor on my face, which baffled the skill of some of the most noted physicians. Was at once advised to go to the hospital; was doctored there for three months without success. Came home discouraged. Then began to doctor with a 'chemist.' He also failed to help me. Then I began Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with no faith whatever in it. Did it only to please my wife; but I am happy to tell you that after taking five bottles I am entirely cured."

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

THE SHORTEST RAILROAD

It is at Los Angeles, But 300 Feet Long, and Pays Good Dividends.

The most unique, as well as shortest, dividend-paying railroad in the world, has recently been put in operation at Los Angeles, Cal. It is only 310 feet long and in that distance makes an ascent of half as many feet, so that it is also one of the steepest lines ever built. On its little white cars more rides may be had for a dollar than on any that ever ran, yet if ordinary railways were as profitable in proportion to length as this picturesque affair they would yield astonishing dividends.

The "Angels' Flight" is the appropriate name of this ingenious carrier of passengers, which affords means of transportation between the lower and level part of the city and the lofty hill portion, a large and beautiful residence section known as "Olive Heights." Formerly that eminence could be reached only by a long detour or by climbing half a dozen flights of exceedingly difficult stairs. Among those who trudged up and joked down these steps was Col. J. W. Eddy, and he conceived the idea that a railway up the incline could be made to pay, though railroading on so small a scale had never been attempted.

Colonel Eddy designed the diminutive system, and failing to interest anybody else, undertook its construction. While the financiers laughed at him and the public ridiculed his project, he pushed the work, making large expenditures, and soon had it completed. The enterprise proved a marked success from a financial as well as mechanical standpoint and is now the property of a distinct corporation, the Los Angeles Electric Incline railway company, with Colonel Eddy as superintendent. The people who scouted it are now patrons of the line. A street in the heart of the city that had been practically useless, save for the tunnel beneath, has been converted from an unsightly weed patch into a singularly attractive public utility. Electric fountains, grass-covered terraces and flowers make the place a pleasant resort. It has been named "Eddy park."

The "Angels' Flight" is built on the three-rail, automatic, turnout system. Two neat coaches, the "Olivet" and "Sinai," are attached to the ends of a double cable, which is wound over the drum of a ten-horse power electric motor in the power house at the top of the hill—a plant so small that it might be mistaken for a playhouse. As one car goes up the other descends, thus counterbalancing each other and effecting a great saving in power and expense. The chariots hold ten persons each, seated, and they are never "packed" as on any other railroad, because it is not permitted. Standing is positively prohibited, because a possible sudden stop might throw a passenger out and down to certain death. Absolute safety is assured, the breaking strain of the cable is placed at 81,000 pounds and the weight of a car is 2,700 pounds, which could not be doubled even if the car were crowded. Should the working cable give way another is ready to take its place, and in case that broke a safety clutch would stop the car instantly.

At the lower station the "bill of fare" informs the passenger that he may have one ride for 5 cents, three for 10 cents, ten for 25 cents, or 100 for $1. The designer estimated, in fixing the rates, that the people residing on the heights would pay the expenses of operation with one-penny fares, and the 5-cent fares of the thousands of tourists and curiosity seekers who would be eager for so novel a trip would furnish the profit. His calculation has been more than justified. The cars run every minute, are nearly always occupied, and the one man in the power house performs all the functions of conductor, brakeman, engineer and fireman on ordinary railways, so that the operating cost is small.

Entering at the lower station, the passenger steps upon the car and is seated, an electric bell rings, and the odd ride begins. The ascent is speedily made, and upon arrival at the upper terminus he passes through a wicket, first dropping a coin or ticket in the slot before the operator. Then he finds himself in a pretty, open building, provided with comfortable chairs, and cooled by the breezes wafted in from the sea and never felt at the base of the incline. This place is happily designated "Angels' Rest" and is surmounted with the gilded figure of an angel. The management asserts that the catchy names have had much to do with the success that has attended the scheme.

From the "Angels' Rest," the upper station, stairs lead up a steel observation tower, over 200 feet above the street at the foot of the hill and commanding a magnificent view. On the elevated platform visitors have the advantage of a powerful searchlight, a camera obscura and strong binoculars.

Spread out before the beholder is a panorama that would be hard to equal anywhere else. In the foreground is the heart of the stirring, bustling metropolis of the southwest, and stretching around is fifty square miles of the city, with the mingled charm of age and newness. On the one hand, range after range silhouetted against the cloudless sky, is the stately mountain scenery of the Sierra Madres, unexcelled in grandeur and interest; on the other, the eye reaches the white surges of the Pacific ocean twenty miles away. A view of the city at night, with its glisten of lights, seems like a glimpse into a fabulous jewel casket. In the distance a score of towns glow with electricity generated by mountain streams, and rushing trolley cars look like trails of colored fire in the valleys.

CURES ECZEMA AND ITCHING HUMORS THROUGH THE BLOOD—COSTS NOTHING TO TRY IT.

WHAT IS A FULL GENERAL?

Until recently the highest rank in the American army by regular promotion was major general, but the law has been changed and now lieutenant general is the highest. People use the word general mistakenly in speaking of or in addressing a lieutenant general, a major general or a brigadier general, but the single word "general" as denoting rank has a distinct application. It is purely an honorary rank, the highest that an officer can attain in this country and is conferred by congress for specially distinguished services and it always expires with the death of the man holding it. The only full generals that we have had are Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. Many persons believe that Washington held the rank, but that is an error. As commander of the continental army he was major general and as commander of the United States army in 1798, when war with France was threatened, he was made lieutenant general. Congress passed an act March 3, 1799, creating the rank of full general for him, but his commission was never issued.

The only lieutenant generals that we have had besides Washington are Scott, Grant, Sherman, Sheridan, Schofield and Miles, the last named now holding the rank. The active commanding officer of the army used to be the senior major general; now it is the lieutenant general, but he is not the "commander in chief." That is an error into which most people fall. The commander in chief is the president, made so by the constitution—"commander in chief of the army and navy." No other person has or can use that title. Official orders issued by General Miles are signed "the lieutenant general commanding," not "commander in chief."

In the navy the highest rank obtained by promotion is rear admiral, the rank of full admiral being within the gift of congress, like that of general in the army. Dewey is a full admiral, but that rank will expire when he dies and cannot be revived without a special act of congress.

GREAT LOVERS OF SWEETS.

It is a fact not generally known but readily believed that the people of the United States consume more sugar products than those of any other country on the globe, but it will surprise even those conversant with the fact to learn that they devour eight times as much per capita as they did in the first quarter of the last century, four times as much as the average per capita during the decade ending with 1850 and twice as much as they did in any year prior to 1870. In the years immediately prior to 1825 the average consumption of sugar was about eight pounds per capita; in the decade 1840-50 about ten pounds per capita; in the years immediately prior to 1870 the average was about thirty-two pounds per capita (omitting the war years, in which the consumption was very light); from 1870 to 1880 it averaged about forty pounds per capita; from 1880 to 1890 fifty pounds per capita; in 1891 the figure was sixty-six pounds per capita, and has ranged from sixty-two to sixty-eight pounds per capita since that time, the figure for 1901 being 68.4 pounds.

This growth in the consumption of sugar is evidently not confined to the people of the United States. The increase seems to have been equally rapid in other parts of the world. Figures recently published by the bureau of statistics showed that the sugar production of the world was eight times as great in 1900 as in 1840, the figure for 1840 being 1,150,000 tons and that for 1900 8,850,000 tons.

This increase in production and consequently in consumption has come largely through the development of the beet sugar industry, which increased from a production of 50,000 tons in 1840 to 5,950,000 tons in 1900. During the same time cane sugar production increased from 1,100,000 tons in 1840 to 2,850,000 tons in 1900. Beets in 1840 supplied 4.35 per cent. of the total sugar product of the world; in 1900 67.71 per cent.

The per capita consumption of sugar in the United States is greater than that of any other country except the United Kingdom, in which the consumption ranges from eighty-five to ninety-nine pounds per capita, against sixty to sixty-eight pounds in the United States.

A NIGHT AT THE PLAY.

ROBERT MANTELL.

Robert B. Mantell, who comes to the Temple next Wednesday, was born in Irvine, Ayshire, Scotland, not far from the birthplace of Robert Burns. He began his stage career in the Lancashire town of Rochdale, in England, when he was about 18 years old. He played there the Sergeant in "Arrah-na-Pogue," and Father Dolan in "The Shaughraun," and soon afterwards toured in the company of Miss Marriott, an English actress, whose professional taste led her to attempt Hamlet, Romeo and Richard III. Later he became associated with Charles Mathews, whom he has always looked upon as his dramatic instructor. On quitting Mathews he joined Mr. and Mrs. George S. Knight for a brief English tour.

About 1874 Mr. Mantell came to America with the intention of joining the Boston Museum Stock company, but a hitch in the arrangements resulted in his early return to England, where he appeared in support of the leading lights of the British stage. In 1878 he returned to this country to join Modjeska's company and at the close of that engagement he once more returned to England to support Miss Wallis in a line of characters that included Romeo, Orlando and Charles Surface. For three years thereafter he labored continuously in the legitimate. In the meantime he had attracted the attention of Dion Boucicault, who was then starring in England. The result was that on his return to the United States he bore a warm recommendation from Boucicault to the leading American managers. He was given the part of Jack Herne in "The Romany Rye," and then traveled two seasons with Fanny Davenport, when he made his memorable hit as Loris Ipanoff in "Fedora." In the autumn of 1884 he created the leading part in "Called Back," and in the following spring was engaged for Steele Mackaye's "Dakolar."

The season of 1885-86 was passed as leading man for Miss Davenport's company, and in the fall of 1886 he began a tour in "Tangled Leaves," a modern drama written by John W. Keller, a newspaper editor. In 1888 Mr. Mantell brought out "Monbars," Louis Nathal's version of a play by the Frenchman, Adolphe D'Ennery. That was followed by a revival of "The Corsican Brothers," and it by "The Marble Heart," "Romeo and Juliet," "The Lady of Lyons," "Othello," "Hamlet," "The Face in the Moonlight," "A Secret Warrant" and this season "The Dagger and the Cross."

Mr. Mantell has easily retained his place as the leading romantic actor of America and in the magnificent production of "The Dagger and the Cross" he has added another to his already long list of successes. This is Robert B. Mantell's sixth season under the direction of M. W. Hanley, the well known New York theatrical manager.

WILLIAM H. CRANE IN "DAVID HARUM."

Charles Frohman will again present William H. Crane in the dramatization of Westcott's widely-read book, "David Harum," at the Temple Friday next. Mr. Crane has been in possession of the play for over two years and during that time it has had a phenomenal measure of success. For sixteen weeks it ran in New York, for six weeks in Chicago, for two months in Boston, where it proved to be a record-breaker in point of attendance, and six weeks in Philadelphia. In transplanting the story from the book to the stage the dramatizers were careful to take few liberties with Westcott's work. Into three acts the play is divided and all of the scenes are laid in Homeville, N. Y. In the first act the audience sees David's bank on one side, Aunt Polly's house across the road and in the background the big barn wherein David kept his horses. All of the familiar characters are quickly introduced. There is David's factotum, Dick Larrabee, and Dug Robinson, who drives the stage from the depot. Then comes that old skinflint, Zeke Swinney, and shortly after the little Widow Cullum, the relict of Billy P. Mary Blake then puts in an appearance, and herein is where the only liberty that is taken with the story is introduced. She comes to Homeville to get a position in the public school, she having learned that for years she was dependent on General Wolsey. Her independence asserted itself and she determined to earn her own living. She went to Homeville because her mother was buried near there, and—well, because she knew that after the death of his father—John Lenox went to work in David Harum's bank. John Lenox comes into view and so does pert little Chet Timson. There is dear old Aunt Polly, and sloping along comes the village tough, Bill Montaig. Crane makes his first entrance as Harum behind that pesky critter, the bay hoss, which has been giving him a "dumb tough time of it" on the river road. The story is quickly developed. Deacon Perkins comes to look the bay "hoss" over and the animal is brought out of the barn and down to the trough. David then effects the sale of the animal, which will "stand without hitchin'."

The second act is laid in the office of the counting room of the bank. It is essentially the office of a man who loves horses. In this act there is the incident of the counterfeit bills, the tussle with Bill Montaig, the resignation of Chet Timson and the securing of the mortgages on the Widow Cullom's home.

In the third act another phase of David Harum's character is shown in his home life. The scene is laid in Aunt Polly's sitting room and the time is Christmas morning. It is snowing hard outside. Aunt Polly is having John Lenox's things surreptitiously removed from the Eagle tavern to her spare room. The Widow Cullom comes in answer to David's summons, expecting to be bereft of her home. There is the story of David's visit to the circus, the giving to the widow of her home, the engagement of John Lenox and Mary Blake and the curtain falls on the Christmas dinner, with David's opening that famous bottle of champagne.

"THE EVIL EYE."

At the Temple on Tuesday next will appear Charles H. Yale and Sidney R. Ellis' "The Evil Eye," or the further funny freaks of Nid and the continued comical contortions of Nod. This spectacular musical extravaganza is easily the biggest and best entertainment today before the public. It is a paragon of pretty girls, rich costumes, trick specialties and electrical scenic effects, which in combination with a hundred other features serve to keep the audience in an uproar from the beginning to the end.

This season everything is new, clever and original and Messrs. Yale and Ellis promise it the best "Evil Eye" of its five years of continuous success. In the sea of comedy which "The Evil Eye" presents two great features float triumphantly on the tidal wave of merit. One is the new great Phasey troupe of sixteen young, pretty English maidens and the other is Armstrong's bewildering electric ballet augmented to more than 5,000 lights. The sensation created by these two great acts has been emphatic and sincere and but emphasize the fact that "The Evil Eye" is always the leader in novelty and merriment. Richard T. Brown is now the traveling American and Josie Sissen the millionaire widow, who dotes on distributing her fortune to the four quarters of the earth. The Brothers Kennard are those monkey trick youngsters Nid and Nod and the balance of the long cast are acrobats, singers, dancers, actors and pantomimists of well known talent. "The Evil Eye" is an entertainment embracing mirth, music, mystery and marvels.

"THE VINEGAR BUYER."

"The Vinegar Buyer" is the title of the new comedy which Liebler & Co. have had Herbert Hall Winslow write for Ezra Kendall, and which is to be given its first representation in this city next Saturday. The title is an odd and amusing one, but it imperfectly describes the Joe Miller of the play, the character which Mr. Kendall impersonates, for Joe Miller does lots of things in the play which are of vastly more interest than his vocation as a vinegar buyer. Really the vinegar buying business cuts but a small figure in the play, though Joe Miller is a "vinegar buyer" beyond question. Still he is a grand, good fellow, whom the whole village learns to love for his big heart and wise head and generous impulses, whose whole life is devoted to good works, and whose bump of shrewdness and knowledge of human nature enables him to overcome the machinations of the wicked and care for the unfortunate and oppressed in a way that warms the cockles of the heart of the auditor, and makes him glad that he is alive. "The Vinegar Buyer" is in fact an attractive human story of real life in a small town in Indiana, and into which is woven a collection of interesting characters, bright and witty dialogue, and impressive situations, all of which in the hands of a superb cast, supporting the inimitable Ezra

Kendall, should prove a most delightful entertainment.

NO "HALF HOUR" IN THIS.

Those who have experienced the infinite delight of listening to one of Ezra Kendall's half-hour monologue sketches, which have won for him the proud position of the king of vaudeville, will be pleased beyond measure to know that at last we are to have the opportunity of spending an entire evening in his society, for Ezra Kendall, the most delightful comedian on the American stage, has been taken in hand by Liebler & Co. and will this season appear as a star in a full fledged three-act comedy, which is soon to be presented in our own city.

And the play, they say, is a "corker" in all that comprehensive and emphatic term implies. It is founded on J. Whitcomb Riley's poem of "Jap" Miller," with which Mr. Kendall has been greatly enamored for years and around which character he tried to persuade Mr. Riley to write a play years ago. Mr. Riley is not a playwright, however, but a poet, and he couldn't be persuaded to change his profession for "filthy lucre."

The conferences with Liebler & Co. resulted in that enterprising firm taking the matter in hand and engaging Herbert Hall Winslow, one of the best playwrights in America in that line of work, set him at the task. Kendall lent his assistance in the way of innumerable suggestions, especially those that were peculiarly applicable to Kendall and Kendallisms, and the result was a play which made short rehearsals imperative, for the mental and physical make-up of the actors couldn't stand the merriment the lines and situations of the play would evoke.

This is the play that Fort Wayne

does lots of things in the play which is to witness on Saturday next, and with such an impersonator of the leading role as Ezra Kendall and the support that has been given, such an evening should prove an unalloyed delight.

MY CHROMATIC-NOSED FRIEND

A Good, Common-Sense Sermon from the Pen of Robert J. Burdette.

For a good, common-sense temperance sermon brought right down to practical, every-day experience, there could be nothing better than the following from the pen of Bob Burdette. What he says of liquor drinking may be applied with equal force to all other expensive habits that seem but small items when counted singly, but which, when figured up as a whole, amount to enough to build a home in a few years, or to start a man in business. He says:

"My homeless friend with the chromatic nose, while you are stirring up the sugar in a ten-cent glass of gin, let me give you a fact to wash down with it. For some years you have been drinking a good improved farm at the rate of 100 square feet at the gulp. If you doubt this statement, figure it out for yourself. An acre contains 43,560 square feet. Estimating, for convenience, the land at $43.56 an acre, you will see it brings the land to just one mill per square foot. Now pour down the dose, and imagine you are swallowing down a strawberry patch. Call in your friends, and have them help you swallow that 300-foot garden. Get on a prolonged spree, and see how long it will take you to swallow enough pasture land for a cow. There is dirt in it—300 feet of good, rich dirt, worth $43.56 per acre.

"Now is a good time to look the matter square in the face, and cut off the expensive and useless custom of throwing money—five, ten, twenty, or thirty cents at a time—into the beer and whisky till, and save it instead, as the beginning of a fund to buy a farm or home. There is one thing sure as truth, and that is, that you can't give your earnings to somebody else, and also keep them for yourself. The men you give them to will neither buy you a farm nor build you a home. They may build homes with the money you give them, but the homes will be for themselves, and the farms they buy will be for themselves. Wherever you plant it, there it will grow. If you drop it on another's soil, he will harvest the crop; if you plant it for yourself, you may reap the fruitful increase, and gather the golden grain into your own granary; where by every God-given right it belongs."—American Homes.

CHILDREN INEBRIATES.

So common is the evil of drunkenness among children in New York city that the temperance societies are going to petition for a law making it a misdemeanor, punishable both by fine and imprisonment, for parents to give alcoholic beverages to their children under any circumstances whatever, unless for medicinal purposes and under the supervision of a doctor or apothecary, and there is a pretty fair chance that their petition will be granted.

Whatever may be the underlying cause, the amount of drunkenness among mere children is something appalling to contemplate. In certain sections of the town there are well organized gangs of boys, their ages ranging from 10 to 15, who make a practice of hopping onto weak-looking adult pedestrians and robbing them in order to get together the price of a "keg" of beer, which they carry to a vacant lot and guzzle until they are in a state of brutalized intoxication.

At the political clambakes and other out-of-door affairs of the east side population the number of miserably drunken young girls loitering around before the festivities are well under way is something sad to see, and yet such exhibitions attract little or no attention and elicit no other sensation than that of mild amusement from the grown up individuals attending such affairs.—Omaha Bee.

An Important Suggestion.

Discussion about the food-value of alcohol is closed by the Journal of the American Medical Association with these wise words: "Whatever may be said for alcohol will be utilized unscrupulously by advocates of the liquor interest. Give them an inch and they will take a mile. We believe it will be found far safer for medical men to stand on the facts opposing the general use of alcohol than even qualifiedly to advocate its usage, except exclusively as a medicine and under medical prescription." The best minds in the profession are undoubtedly agreed on this point, to give the saloonkeeper a monopoly of the liquor business—and to send him no customers.—Youth's Companion.

INFANTILE MORTALITY.

Statistics Which Show It Is Less Among the Jews Who Are Free from Drunkenness.

In the paper read by him at the meeting of the British Medical association at Manchester, Dr. J. M. Rhodes drew attention to the comparative lowness of the infantile death rate among the Jews in districts where infantile mortality generally is abnormally high. In Manchester the death rate among children up to one year was 198 per thousand, but in the district of Cheetham, which is largely occupied by Jews, the rate was but 124—less than two-thirds of the average. The Manchester figures are not peculiar in thus exhibiting the relative immunity of the Jewish population. Dr. Maurice Fishberg, a New York physician, has been studying the mortality statistics for that city with reference to races, and finds that the densely populated wards which are largely inhabited by Russian Jews had an average death rate of only 15.92, when that for the whole city was 18.53; while in two where the population is almost exclusively Jewish, the figures sank to 14.53 and 14.23. Dr. Rhodes lays stress upon the general freedom from drunkenness among the Jews of Manchester as an important element in the case, and Dr. Fishberg similarly speaks of the temperate character of their coreligionists in New York.—London Daily News.

A TREACHEROUS PLATFORM.

Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall.—1 Cor. 10:12.

A BOY'S INFLUENCE.

Story of How Charles Spurgeon Drove a Member of a Church from His Cups.

When Mr. Spurgeon was a little boy he lived with his grandfather, who was a minister. One of his members, named Roads, often went to the public house for a "drop of beer." This annoyed his pastor greatly. Little Charles saw his grandfather's sorrow. One day he exclaimed: "I'll kill old Roads, that I will."

His grandfather reproved him for saying such a thing. Charles said that he would not do anything wrong, but he was going to kill Roads. A day or two afterwards Charles came into his grandfather's room, saying: "I've killed old Roads; he'll never grieve my dear grandpa any more."

His grandfather was perfectly astonished, but his grandson said that he had been about the Lord's work.

Some time afterwards Roads called at the house and told the following story: "I was a-sitting in the public house, just having my pipe and mug of beer when that child come in and says: 'What doest thou here, Elijah? Sitting with the ungodly and you a member of the church.'"

Roads was so struck that he went out of the pub and fell before the Lord, asking His forgiveness. He never touched beer again.

TEMPERANCE FACTS.

Measures to promote temperance in Swiss towns are impeded by the fact that in nearly all hotels and restaurants guests are expected to drink wine or beer.

In accepting nomination for the lord mayoralty of Sheffield, England, Alderman J. Wycliffe Wilson has stipulated that as his total abstinence and non-smoking principles are well known, his colleagues must not expect him to make provision in these directions in any hospitalities that may take place if he is elected.

Three African monarchs, Emperor Menelik, King Lewanika and King Khama, have barred the entrance of drink into their territories. Thus the war against alcohol is being waged, and sober and enlightened heathens are teaching civilized Europeans valuable lessons in wise government.—The Temperance Record.

The board of aldermen of Elizabeth City, N. C., a town of 5,000 inhabitants, recently passed an ordinance making it an offense subject to a fine for a minor to smoke cigarettes upon the streets. The first offender was W. O. Saunders, editor of a local paper, aged 20, who refused to pay his fine of $50, and was sent to jail. He has appealed the case to the supreme court.

Mr. Henry H. Faxon, the temperance advocate of Quincy, Mass., has again recognized the services of the Christian church in the work of keeping the city free from liquor control, and sent his check for $100 each to the 23 clergymen, with his opinion that "the church holds the key to the situation; in every city or town the church or saloon is the ruling factor in government, and each citizen is serving one or the other."

Novel Way to Fight Rum.

A new and practical arrangement for providing masons and other building laborers, coachmen, errand boys, policemen and others with cheap food and non-alcoholic drinks has been called into being by the Berlin section of the German Society for Popular Hygiene. At stated hours special carts pass through the streets and dispense sandwiches, bread and butter, the sausages so dear to the German palate, tea, cocoa, coffee and soup, all at the lowest possible prices.

OUT OF DEATH'S JAWS.

When death seemed very near from a severe stomach and liver trouble, that I had suffered with for years," writes P. Muse, Durham, N. C., "Dr. King's New Life Pills saved my life and gave perfect health." Best pills on earth and only 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

For the Children.

THE BOY GIANT SAVES THE BABY CROWS

Copyright, 1898, by Caroline Wetherell

On the top of a cottonwood tree
There dwelt once a crow, Jimmy C.
His family of six
In a nest made of sticks
Were happy and cozy and free.

In a neat little house down the hill
There lived a boy—Birdsnesting Bill.
He climbed that tall tree
And frightened Jim C.
And threatened the children to kill.

The kindly young giant, Ah Grim,
And Jack of the Beanstalk with him,
Caught Bill at the nest,
His jacket they dressed

A Dry Land Yacht.

A yacht which sails on dry land is the novelty which may be seen on the great trackless plains of the Mojave desert, near Death valley. One day two young miners were trudging their weary way over the plain when a gust of wind struck them and blew away their hats. One of them suggested that if they had a wagon with sails on it they might overtake their hats or at least be able to travel faster than they could walk. Accordingly they set to work and built a low truck, on which they mounted two sails. Between their camp and their mine lay the smooth, hard surface of the plain, formerly the bottom of a lake, and they were soon able to manage their wheeled yacht so that they could make the trip in a few minutes. It is said that in favorable winds they can travel at the rate of fifty miles an hour.

Arithmetic in Japan.

Do you know that the little ones of Japan, just as you do, become interested in arithmetic by seeing and feeling what a pretty thing a cone, a sphere or cylinder is when cut out of wood with a lathe. They also make outlines of solid figures out of straw, with green peas to hold the joints together, and the blind children have flat blocks with the Japanese letters raised upon them.

The Game of Homonyms.

In this game two persons are sent from the room, and they select two words which are pronounced alike, but have different meanings, such as bear, bare, sea, see, etc. Suppose they settle upon the words bear and bare. Then they re-enter the room and one says, thinking of bear, "it has a thick coat." The other says, thinking of bare, "it has no coat at all." Then they continue to contradict each other, each telling the truth about his own word, until the players guess what the word is. The first one guessing must choose his partner and leave the room to think up another homonym, and the game is repeated till the children want to play something else.

A Mother's Love.

There is an old legend that at creation's dawn an angel came down to earth seeking something to take back with it to heaven. It returned with a bouquet of flowers, a baby's smile and a mother's love. When it reached again the gates of paradise, the flowers had withered, the baby's smile had vanished, but the mother's love was found to be as pure and eternal as the waters that flowed by the heavenly throne, and all the angels exclaimed, "There is nothing on earth pure enough for heaven but a mother's love."—Exchange.

BOWSER ON CROQUET

SAYS HE DOESN'T KNOW OF A MORE INTERESTING GAME.

[Copyright, 1902, by C. B. Lewis.]

AT 3 o'clock the other afternoon a delivery wagon left a box at the Bowser mansion, and Mrs. Bowser opened it to find balls, mallets and arches. She decided that a mistake had been made, but when Mr. Bowser came up to dinner he explained:

"There is no mistake. I bought the outfit and ordered it sent home."

"But you don't mean that you are going to play croquet?" she asked in surprise.

"But I do. We might as well have some amusements around home. I don't know of a more interesting game than croquet. To play a good game one has got to have a mathematical eye and a skillful hand. It beats golf all hollow. I don't understand your surprise."

"I WILL SET UP THE ARCHES, AND WE WILL BEGIN."

"Isn't it a great game to quarrel over?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Pish! Folks who want to quarrel will quarrel over any game. Yes, I've read in the papers that croquet has separated husbands and wives, broken engagements and caused ministers to resign from churches, but that's all nonsense, you know. There's more wrangling on a Sunday school excursion than over a thousand games of croquet. Indeed, what is there to wrangle about?"

"I thought there were many things, but perhaps I've forgotten or am thinking about something else."

"There isn't one single thing, and I'll prove it to you. After dinner I'll set up the arches, and we'll have a game. You used to play, didn't you?"

"Y-yes," she reluctantly replied.

"And I've heard you brag what a game you played. I will whitewash you four times out of five."

Mrs. Bowser groaned inwardly. If Mr. Bowser had brought home a horse, a cow or a dozen chickens, she might have dodged a row, but with croquet—never. She thought of suddenly twisting her ankle or being overcome by the heat, but Mr. Bowser's eye was upon her and she could not escape.

"Why, come to think of it," he said at the dinner table, "we used to play croquet when I was courting you, and I don't remember that we quarreled. No, of course we didn't."

It was true that they didn't, but it was because Mrs. Bowser shut her eyes to his brazen tricks to come out ahead. She didn't say so, however. She simply hoped that by some miracle a game or two might be played without an outbreak.

"Now, then," he said when dinner was finished, "I will set up the arches and we will begin business. If there is a misunderstanding of any sort, you will be to blame for it. Wrangle? Why, I could play for a month of Sundays and not have a word. There may be some excuse for wrangling over golf, but croquet is soft and gentle and placid."

Mrs. Bowser was pale faced and anxious looking as she selected a mallet and ball. She had determined to play her poorest and dispute no assertion. She did not mean to win the first shot, but it came to her. She meant to miss one of the arches as she made her play, but the ball insisted on going through both. As a matter of fact, carelessly as she tried to play, she had gone to the upper stake and was on her way back before Mr. Bowser got a shot. She had heard him breathing hard, but he didn't say anything until she made a miss. Then he remarked:

"I see I have got to play against bullheaded luck and chicanery, but—I think I can hold my own."

"Do you mean that I cheated?" she asked.

"Never mind what I mean. You can settle things with your own conscience. I'm coming for your ball."

Mr. Bowser passed through the first arch, missed the second and got in position to hit Mrs. Bowser's ball and send it away. There was a glare in his eye as he sent it fifty feet away and went back to the second arch. But luck was not with him. Before he could get through she came down and hit the stake and finished the game.

"Do you know what you are doing?" he asked as he leaned on his mallet and looked at her.

"Why, I've just whitewashed you. Haven't I?" she replied.

"And how did you accomplish it? Do you know the meaning of the word honesty? Have I got to keep my eyes on you all the time to get a fair deal in this game?"

Mrs. Bowser made no reply. She saw the end in view, and she hoped that if struck with a mallet death would be instantaneous. Mr. Bowser took the first shot, and by good luck he made the two arches. He was left in bad position, though, and before he could get through the third arch Mrs. Bowser overtook him and arranged to carry his ball with hers.

"What are you going to do?" he asked.

"Carry your ball along to play on."

"But you can't do it. There are rules in this game."

"Where is the rule that says I can't carry your ball along to play on again?"

"Go ahead, then. I knew you'd cheat the eyeteeth out of me if you could, but I told you that I shouldn't wrangle."

Mrs. Bowser used his ball until she was in position for the fourth arch and then sent it away and passed through the fourth and fifth and hit the stake. She was getting ready for the return when he advanced and quietly said:

"I will excuse you from further play this evening, and you may retire to the house."

"What's the matter? You surely can't say that I've cheated."

"I say nothing, madam—nothing except that you may retire. I shall probably have a little talk with you later on, a little talk. There are some things I want to say to you."

Mrs. Bowser had escaped death, and she was only too glad to drop her mallet and escape into the house. Mr. Bowser was knocking the balls about and gritting his teeth when a tramp came along and leaned on the fence to say:

"I used to play that game myself when I was an aristocrat, and I was pretty good at it too."

"Do you understand the rules?" asked Mr. Bowser.

"I think I do."

"Then come in and take a mallet. I want a straight game and no monkey work."

The tramp had "been there." He played clear to the upper stake without a miss, and he was getting ready to return when Mr. Bowser walked over to him and said:

"You can drop that mallet and get out of here!"

"But I'm only half through," protested the man.

"It makes no difference. How did you get in here anyway?"

"Why, you asked me to come in."

"Never! I'm not playing croquet with tramps!"

"I'd hate to be a mean old cuss like you!" said the man as he moved away. "You couldn't go through an arch if it was as big as a barn door, and it makes you mad to see any one else"—

Mr. Bowser jumped for him, and there was a struggle. They fell to the ground and rolled over and over, while two boys shouted for the police. Then, at the end of a minute, the tramp scrambled up and ran away with his hair flying and fright in his eyes. Mr. Bowser got up, but with more dignity. There was a long scratch on his nose and blood on his ear, but his voice was firm as he stalked into the house and stood before Mrs. Bowser and said:

"Woman, there is such a thing as crowding a husband to the dead line. You have crowded me there, and now the worm has turned. We will telephone our respective lawyers and settle on the amount of alimony, and to-morrow—tomorrow, Mrs. Bowser, you can return to the arms of your mother!"

MR. BOWSER JUMPED FOR HIM, AND THERE WAS A STRUGGLE.

Topic: "Fruitful or Fruitless."

In a day, almost, the blossom seems to bud and bloom; and in a day, almost, the fruit seems to form and grow ripe; but back of these days of surprisingly swift blossoming and fruit-bearing were scores of ordinary days when the tree was doing only ordinary work, drawing up the moisture, drinking in the sunshine, storing up energy for the time of sudden outburst. It is these ordinary days that count in our lives far more than the days that show great achievements.

The reports of Plymouth Congregational society show it to be in a most flourishing condition. The past year has been the best financially that the society has experienced. It has spent $50 this year on missions and has nearly doubled the amount accomplished in that branch of C. E. work in other years. Seventy new members have been taken in, which is an indication of the good the society has done in a spiritual way and the energetic work of its members. The president states that all of the committees have been reorganized for the coming year and are now ready for even greater things than they have yet accomplished.

The installation of officers of the Plymouth society was held in Plymouth church Friday evening, October 10.

The society of the First Presbyterian church will hold its meeting at 10 o'clock Sunday morning. This is an experimental meeting to see if that time will be convenient for all the members. The old time conflicts with the time for church, which has been changed to the afternoon.

There has been a change of officers in the West Creighton avenue Christian church which has not been reported to us before. But we are glad to extend our heartiest good wishes to both the retiring president, H. E. Brunner, and the new president, Hiram Drummond.

Let us call your attention for the last time to the social to be held in the parlors of the First Presbyterian church Friday evening, October 17. There will be a business session of the local union followed by a social evening.

AMERICA'S FAMOUS BEAUTIES

Look with horror on Skin Eruptions, Blotches, Sores, Pimples. They don't have them, nor will anyone who uses Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It glorifies the face. Eczema or Salt Rheum vanishes before it. It cures sore lips, chapped hands, chilblains. Infallible for Piles. 25c at Dreier & Bro.'s drug store.

CATARRH CANNOT BE CURED

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

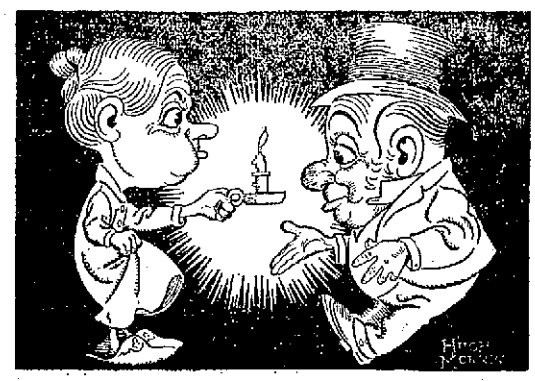
SHE FOUND OUT.

"Mrs. Jones," says the chairman of the county fair premium board, "we have tied the blue ribbon on that beautiful embroidered paper holder you exhibited in the Fine Art Hall."

"Paper holder?" repeats Mrs. Jones. "Oh! I'm so glad. I like to get the premium, of course, but after I got that thing worked, I didn't know what on earth it was, so I feel right thankful that you folks have decided the question for me."



Mrs. Smith (3 a. m.)—Don't tell me that old club story again. It's a bare-faced lie.

Mr. Smith (drunk)—On th'—hic—contrary—hic—it's sho old a story—hic—that it's—hic—got whiskers on it.

"Sonny, I see that you have been fishing?"

"Yith, thir."

"But you didn't catch any fish?"

"No, thir."

"And I trust that you didn't—

"Oh! no, thir. My ma will do all the thwearing when I get home."
